Elks Planning to Hold First "Jitney Dance" on Tuesday Evening, April 20

The social committee of Harrisburg Elks has added another luxury to the list one can obtain for a "jitney." One sandwich, a quart of peanuts, a cup of coffee, a trolley ride, a cigar, a cake of soap, half a dozen or more leeks of tobacco—depending upon capacity—a piece of pie, and a mug of certain kinds of brewed things—all these have been purchasable some time since for a single "jitney," one nickel or five-cent piece, if you don't care for the slang term. But the Elks' social committee has promised the latest thing for Harrisburg on Tuesday evening, April 20, for a "jitney."

Jury Knew Good Peanuts When Told About Them

Whether the city or the paving repair contractor will eventually pay the $1,050 damages awarded yesterday by a Dauphin County Common Pleas jury to Mrs. Lulu and W. H. O'Brien, must now be determined out between the contractor and the contractor's lawyer, Walter. The O'Briens won the verdict after a two-day fight, damages having been claimed for injuries which Mrs. O'Brien declared she sustained when she stepped in a hole in the asphalt that had not been properly repaired. Mrs. O'Brien got $750 and her husband $300.

HE'D SOONER LAUGH

Everyone who has seen the "Show Shop," knows that James Forbes has a rare gift of humor and here is one of his funniest. A little boy was sitting on one of the benches of Central Park, watching some of the people ride the donkeys. An exceedingly fat woman hired a donkey and was about to mount when she saw the small boy and said to him: "Little boy, don't you want me to hire a donkey for you?" "No, thank you. I'd rather sit here and laugh."—May Young's Magazine.

"Eat oranges—eat them all the time, as many as you can. They will save you many a doctor's bill," said Dr. Wiley, the world's leading authority on pure food. "I believe in the youth-protracting and beauty-making power of oranges," wrote Lina Cavaliere, famed singer. "If I could have but one fruit, it would be oranges." THE AUCTIONEER WITH BRILLIANT CAST SEEN LAST NIGHT AT THE MAJESTIC

The S. R. O. sign was in evidence last night at the Majestic for the revival of "The Auctioneer," presented by David Warfield in the role of "Simon Levi." The role in his hands has more than just a passing interest.

He created the part, over ten years ago, he rose to the height of a star, and to that place which occupies the privilege of seeing and experiencing. And probably nowhere else in the world is well illustrated as down in Hester and Grand streets, New York—just the exact scenes in which "The Auctioneer" are set. Those who have lived and worked in that section are most familiar with the episodes and life of the play, and consequently gain a pleasure from the "local color" that is entirely lost to others.

True to life, as are all of the Belasco plays, extreme care and nicety of detail, mark the play of last night. "Favorable has been the comment which has greeted the Belasco production, and in producing "The Auctioneer" nothing was spared which might contribute to a well rounded out production which would closely adhere to the simple set by his fellow-men. The plot of "The Auctioneer" is built upon the faith and generosity of "Simon Levi" for his fellow-men and his kin. No fault of theirs was too great for him to forgive. His happiness consisted in the work he did, and what he might have had, neither in what he might attain. And so deeply does Warfield burn his own characterization into the minds of his audience that it seems that it must be possible for the audience to go out upon the street and find the "Simon Levi" of the play.

UNITED REPUBLICAN PARTY IN '16—TAFT

[Continued from First Page.] both Taft and the Governor snail. When Professor Taft lectured in Technical high school auditorium last evening under the auspices of the Academy Spectator club, he was greeted by a packed house. His subject was "The Signs of the Times." "The Signs of the Times," did the former President refer to the 1916 campaign, his remarks were often so pointed and his allusions to the mistakes of the present administration at Washington so thinly veiled, that there wasn't a person in his audience who failed to realize that "The Sign of the Times" is the political trend of thought back towards a more conservative stand in politics.

"A short time ago," began the ex-President, "I was given an opportunity to be contemptible for philosophical and to be removed from office. However, being an optimist, I took advantage of my position to look about me and observe the signs of the times."

"I found that in the past three decades, or a generation, there is to be discovered three distinct movements, or signs. They are, first, the movement towards combination and concentration; second, the movement towards a purer Democracy, and third, the movement toward greater altruism—a purer feeling of brotherhood that has brought great measures of fraternalism."

Traces Nation's Prosperity. Professor Taft traced the prosperity and political fortunes of the United States from the lowest ebb at the end of the Civil War to the zenith about ten years ago. All this time he declared was "an agitation and a combination." The people of the United States developed with wonderful rapidity, he declared, and their ingenuity resulted in many wonderful inventions.

"Little rills and small streams of savings all poured into the larger rivers of capital until we had great comforts for the average man and his condition of living rose far above that of Queen Elizabeth's time."

"But," declared Professor Taft, "as we approached the ideal in life, evils arose. Capitalists became intoxicated with their power. Corporations were formed and formed great trusts. Then they defied the people. Here the former President digressed a long enough to say that too many men of to-day neglect their duties as a citizen by failing to go to the polls to cast their votes."

Neglect Electoral Rights. "Such conditions as I have described," he asserted, "were permitted to exist because we—the people—were not looking to the material things in life. We neglected our electoral rights. We left things up to those who made running the government their business—because it was to their profit."

The election of McKinley in 1896 was called a great moral victory for the people of the United States by the ex-President. He declared, in fact, he declared, that the people became awakened and began to assert their right to rule.

The development of the Interstate Commerce act was traced by the lecturer. "It was twenty years before the people obtained just what they wanted," he said, "but they got it."

"You tried to do it with people," declared Mr. Taft, "when they are clear and know what they want—well, it's worse than a buzz-saw."

He traced the development of the antitrust law and showed what beneficial results it has brought to the common people. "Some people say that law is a failure," he exclaimed. "Yes, there are a lot of men who go about the country saying so—but you'll notice they are obeying it. The oil trust and the tobacco trust, they are obeying it. Why, more than 85 per cent of the oil is refined by independent refiners, yet while the oil trust was in existence only 15 per cent was refined by these independent refiners."

Professor Taft condemned the Clayton Bill and Trade Commission act passed by the present Congress as unnecessary. Workers' compensation and child labor bills were commended. "They'll work out," he declared. "The full crew bill was termed an act that imposes a heavy burden upon the railroads without providing the proper commission to decide how many men should be placed on each train."

Lauds Labor Unions. Labor unions were lauded as having brought wonderful improvement to the conditions among wage-earners. The political power of these unions, Professor Taft declared, is very great and has been used to the great benefit of workingmen. He declared, however, that all power must be restrained, whether it be in a trust or in a union. The gist of popular government, he declared, is the exercise of a just and common power. The initiative, referendum and recall were condemned as weak theories and as un-American. "Why can't we face these truths in our government affairs, as we would in our own business," he asked. "Why can we be

ALDRICH, TARIFF LEADER, IS DEAD

[Continued from First Page.] fourth year. Senator Aldrich will be buried in Swan Point Cemetery, Providence, R. I., Sunday afternoon.

Dr. John S. Thatcher, his family physician, has left Mr. Aldrich less than half an hour before he died. Mr. Aldrich appeared to be recovering from the slight attack of indigestion which put him in bed yesterday afternoon. Ten minutes after the physician left, however, Mr. Aldrich suddenly became unconscious. He died within a few minutes.

Members of his family were summoned when he became unconscious and were at the bedside when he died. They included Mrs. Aldrich, his wife; Miss Aldrich and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., his daughters; and Winthrop Aldrich, his son. John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Mr. Aldrich's son-in-law, could not be reached in time and was notified of his death within a few minutes after he had died.

Mr. Aldrich was born in Foster, R. I., in 1841 and entered politics at the age of 34. He served in the Rhode Island assembly and in 1873 was sent to Congress. Two years later he was elected United States senator. He represented Rhode Island in the Senate until 1911, when he retired.

When You Wash Your Hair Don't Use Soap

Most soaps and prepared shampoos contain too much alkali, which is very injurious, as it dries the scalp and makes the hair brittle. The best thing to use is just plain mulsified coconut oil, for this is pure and entirely greaseless. It's very cheap, and beats soaps or anything else all to pieces. You can get this at any drug store, and a few ounces will last the whole family for months.

Simply moisten the hair with water and rub it in, about a teaspoonful is all that is required. It makes an abundance of rich, creamy lather, cleanses thoroughly, and rinses out easily. The hair dries quickly and evenly, and is soft, fresh looking, bright, fluffy, wavy and easy to handle. Besides, it loosens and takes out every particle of dust, dirt and dandruff.
