

CHURCH COMPLETING PLANS FOR ADDITION

Christ Lutheran Specifications Are Nearly Finished; Elect New Members to Council

Final plans and specifications for the addition to the Christ Lutheran Church are being completed by the architect, J. T. Ritchie...

To Give Organ Recital. — Professor Drefuse, organist of the Bethlehem Presbyterian Church, will give a recital in Harris Street United Evangelical Church...

Texas Sheriff Will Go Round World For a Horse Thief, He Says

"We go after horse thieves, if it requires a tour of the world," remarked Sheriff A. J. Mann, of Fort Worth, Texas, to-day.

New Brass Signs Extend Welcome to Harrisburg

Both the Reading and Pennsylvania passenger stations now display the brass "Welcome to Harrisburg" signs installed by the Chamber of Commerce.

COLONEL HUTCHISON SENDS HIS GREETINGS TO FORCE

The first greeting from Colonel Joseph B. Hutchison, who is in the Fountain Springs hospital, near Ashland, Schuylkill county, was a postcard received to-day.

AMUSEMENTS

MAJESTIC Saturday, matinee and night, April 24—McIntyre and Heath in "The Ham Tree."

COLONIAL Every afternoon and evening—Vaudeville and Pictures.

MOVING PICTURES Palace, 10 a. m. to 11 p. m. Photoplay, 10 a. m. to 11 p. m.

McINTYRE AND HEATH IN "THE HAM TREE"

Mr. John Cort's sumptuous revival of George V. Hobart's and Jean Schwartz's successful musical comedy, "The Ham Tree," in which he introduces the famous delineators of the dark, McIntyre and Heath...

PHOTOPLAY TODAY

Popular Lubin actor, Earl Metcalfe, is featured to-day in the three-act Lubin production, "The Cipher Key," a story of South American trading and intrigue.

"CINDERELLA" AT THE REGENT

Mary Pickford, queen of all moving picture stars, never appeared in a production where she was enabled to display her ability to better advantage than in "Cinderella," shown at the Regent Theater to-day.

Astrich's Wash Dress Sale. Fourth and Market Sts. WASH DRESS SALE Begins Wednesday Presenting Two Wonderful Lines of Summer Frocks and House Dresses "Boston Maid" and North Shore. These dresses are accurate copies of exclusive designs made up in the loveliest wash materials...

Every improvement ever originated in silk gloves has been introduced by Julius Kauser & Co. The new Queen Elizabeth silk glove with its flare and frill designed this Spring especially to wear with long sleeves is patented and can be found only in Kauser silk gloves.

WOMEN AND THEIR INTERESTS

Their Married Life

Helen woke up, with a start, conscious that something had happened to awaken her and yet not wide enough awake to know what it was. She was warm and threw back the sheet impatiently and as she did so she sat up wide awake.

"What's the matter?" she said as Warren made his way across the room, stumbling over things as he went.

"Hello, well, what is it?" "Wireless, of course, send it to these hotels," he said crossly, "think they have to ask if you want a wireless."

"I suppose they wanted to wake you up that way, dear," said Helen soothingly.

"Wake me up that way. I suppose they wouldn't have waked me if you had pounded on my door with a message. There they are now, and Warren opened the door on a crack and took the envelope from the boy.

"Suppose he expected a tip, but he didn't get it."

Helen fumbled around for the light which by her bed, but somehow couldn't find it.

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it is, and Helen, turned on her lights as Warren blinkingly held the paper up to the electric bulb.

"Thought so," he stormed, "as soon as that telephone rang I knew something was wrong."

"What is it, dear? Is anything wrong?"

"Is anything wrong? No. I have to wait three days for the next steamer."

"What's the matter, are you blind?" said Warren, the piece of paper in his hands ready to read.

"There it