

Important Announcement From Kaufman's Underselling Store

The New-Bigger and Better Kaufman Underselling Store Will Soon Be Ready for Occupancy

We are pleased to announce that our new store is nearing completion. All mechanics are hustling and are on the home stretch, finishing up every little detail. The store fixtures are here and are now being installed and the New Kaufman's Underselling Store will be ready in ample time for the fall business. A Ready-to-Wear Department Store of which all of Harrisburg and vicinity will and may be justly proud.

But remember there is a vast amount of hard work ahead for our buyers and department heads. An immense amount of merchandise is to be bought and gathered together and it requires time to do this properly. The merchandise must be the best the markets have to offer. Must be the best from a quality standpoint and must be secured at prices as low as the prices of the largest purchasing power in the country. Therefore, all of our time from the day that we close this Temporary Store will have to be spent in the New York Market.

Prior to undertaking the great amount of work connected with the opening of the new store we feel that our salespeople should have a chance to rest, a chance for recreation and enjoyment, so that they will be prepared to serve you with the same courtesy and ability you have always found with us in the past that they will be ready to help the new Kaufman's Store to do the biggest business of its career. For these reasons we have decided and found it necessary to close our Temporary Store as soon as possible and devote our entire time to arranging for the opening of the new store.

We want to thank our friends and the public in general for their loyalty and patronage during our stay in this small Temporary Store. We also ask for your kind indulgence and patience for the space of time that we cannot serve you, as we are only closing this store to make it possible to serve you better in the new store.

Our Temporary Store Will Be Closed in a Very Short Time

Before closing we are going to have a FINAL WIND-UP SALE of all merchandise now on hand. All of this merchandise must and will be sold, as nothing but entirely new merchandise will be shown in the new store. Tomorrow's papers will give you full particulars and announce to you the date on which we start this BIG SALE.

Women AND THEIR INTERESTS

Why I Married a Second Time

By DOROTHY DIX

"Every marriage," said the Middle-Aged Man, reflectively, "is a profound mystery to the bystanders, but a second marriage is an insoluble enigma that they do not even try to solve. Romance and the foohardy daring of youth account for people getting married the first time, but why should those who have ascertained from experience the perils of matrimony tempt its dangers again?"

"It looks, to the outsider, as if the man or woman who had been happily married the first time would be afraid to marry again on the principle that lightning does not strike in the same place, and that he or she could not hope to find again a mate equal to the first, and that he or she would refuse 'a lesser love,' as the poet puts it.

"Also, it looks as if those who had been unhappily married, and who had their fingers in the matrimonial fires couldn't be dragged by wild horses within telephoning distance of the altar again.

"But nothing of the kind happens. Experience seems to cut no ice in matrimony. Those who have been happily married, and those who have been unhappily married, rush blithely back into the holy estate and leave us wondering why.

"In my own case it was necessity. It was because a wife was the only answer to a tragic domestic problem. It was because only a woman's hands, and the hands of a lady, were strong enough and gentle enough to save for me all that I held of worth in the world.

His Deep Gratitude

"And whatever else I have given to my second wife, I have given to her a passion of gratitude whose depths she does not even guess, because I dare not tell her how desperate was my need of her.

"When I was a young chap I married a nice girl, and we lived contentedly and happily enough together. I was no saint and she was no angel, and we had our little ups and downs, but we were building up together, too, and were absorbed in that and in our home and little boy.

"Then, after ten years of this pleasant Darby and Joan existence, my wife died suddenly in that most tragic of all deaths, when she gave her life for that of a little daughter.

"At her death, all the old tenderness and romance rushed back upon me, and I was heartbroken, and then in the midst of my grief I was confronted with the appalling domestic situation that her loss had created.

Both Mary's mother and mine had long passed away, neither one of us had any convenient women relatives that could be called upon to fill the gap in my household and so there I was left with my two motherless children and my two motherless houses to take care of.

"And I didn't know how to do it. I had no more idea of what to do for a tiny baby than I had of how to perform a surgical operation. I could figure out to the last ounce how much steel it would take to build a million-dollar skyscraper, but I sat down helplessly and helpless before the grocery book, and could manage a thousand workmen, but not a cook or a nurse.

A High-priced Nurse.

"I did the best I could. I hired a high-priced baby expert to take care of the little ones, and a housekeeper to run the house, and thereafter I lived in a state of perpetual squabbles between the two, coming home, time after time, to find out that the drawn battle between them had resulted in one or the other leaving the house. Sometimes the baby was wailing with hunger because the nurse had gone. Sometimes I went hungry because the cook had departed.

"And the bills were something frightful. There was waste, and extravagance, and thievery in every department, with no comfort anywhere in spite of the large expenditure. Worst still, with no one but hirelings to look after him, with no anchor to hold him to home, my little boy soon began to run the streets, and to become an uncouth little hoodlum.

"I stood this pandemonium of a home for two years, and then, when my little girl began to talk, and her first lisped words were the replica of the dialect of a Swedish nurse I happened to have at that time, I realized that the only salvation for me and my children was for me to marry again.

"And I did. I found a noble woman who must have felt called to the missionary field, for she took me and my disorderly household in her benevolent care, and brought order out of chaos. She has been a real mother to my children, who love her as well as they could love their own mother, and I have repaid her for all her goodness to me and mine by striving to do everything in my power to make her happy, and, as I said, by a passionate gratitude whose depths I would not like her to know, for I should not have married again had I not been driven to it by necessity."

Billboard Segregation Urged by McFarland

J. Horace McFarland, president of the American Civic Improvement Association, yesterday urged the co-operation of the billboarders of the United States in solving the unsightly billboard problem.

"Segregation of billboards, purity in advertising and co-operation to improve appearance," was the subject of Mr. McFarland's paper delivered at the closing session of the National Billposters at Atlantic City. The Harrisburg man referred to the great help in the work that can be added by the billboarders themselves, and he asked the convention to continue to work with the American Civic Improvement Association to bring about the best results to the mutual advantage of both organizations.

Officers elected for the year included the following: E. L. Rudy, Toronto, Can., president; W. Cassidy, Knoxville, vice-president; P. B. Heber, Fon-du-Lac, Wis., treasurer; John H. Logeman, Chicago, secretary.

Will Contribute $50,000 For Baltimore Pike

So anxious are the citizens of Delaware and Chester counties to have that portion of the old Baltimore pike running south from Wawa improved that they have agreed to contribute $50,000 to the State Highway Department if this road is reconstructed next year. A delegation consisting of T. Larry Eyre, A. P. Irwin, Chadd's Ford, and Representative Richard Baldwin, of Delaware county, called upon State Highway Commissioner Cunningham to-day and made this offer.

After considerable discussion, in the course of which it was brought out that Chief Engineer Ulmer had estimated that approximately $300,000 would be necessary to construct this road, Mr. Eyre suggested that he would persuade the county commissioners of Chester county to contribute $10,000 in addition to this if Mr. Baldwin would make a similar suggestion to the county commissioners of Delaware county. This was agreed to and Commissioner Cunningham assured the delegation that the State would undertake the reconstruction of this highway next year if the $70,000 promised was secured.

PRISONER ATTEMPTS TO ESCAPE IN GARBAGE CAN

(Correspondence of Associated Press)

London.—An attempt by a German prisoner to escape by concealing himself in a can of garbage was discovered at the camp at Leigh this week.

A farmer who buys all the food refuse of the camp was carting away a number of cans. The unusual weight of one of them roused his suspicions. He removed a quantity of cabbage leaves and found a German soldier beneath.

A German named Schmidt was shot and killed at Leigh a week ago while trying to escape.
