CHICAGO MAN TELLS OF ALLIES' SUCCESS

In Article He Declares Constantinople Will Fall by Spring or Earlier

Special to The Telegraph
Chicago, Aug. 26.—Louis Edgar Browne, a staff correspondent of the Daily News, now with the forces of the Allies at the Dardanelles, sends a cable dispatch to his paper giving interesting details of the Allies' success there. Telegraphing from Mudros, near the eastern base of the Allies, on August 26, via Athens, he says: "Through a bold stroke the British Army has dealt the Turks a humiliating and disastrous reverse, resulting in the capture and destruction of the main lines of communication between Constantinople and the forces defending the Gallipoli Peninsula, thus entirely cutting off the ammunition and food supplies that had moved down the Peninsula from the base of the army in the field.

"This strategic success, it is calculated by the Allies, will equal the effect upon the Balkan political situation of the fall of Warsaw. The demoralization and the surrender of the Turkish Army defending Gallipoli Peninsula are predicted for the near future. The opening of the Dardanelles and the eventual fall of Constantinople are now said to be inevitable, and it is only a matter of time before the 20th century crusaders will raise the standard of Christianity on the mosque of St. Sophia.

"Constantinople by the Spring
"Minor military difficulties will probably prevent the Allies from reaching Constantinople before Spring, but the startling results of the latest British military achievement, eclipsing anything of a similar nature in history, assures the Allies of full eventual victory over the Turks.

"The result was brought about by a ruse. The Allies made a great display of an intention to invade Asia Minor and the Turks rushed every available man to the defense of Smyrna, Adramyti and other Asiatic cities.

"Suddenly during the night thousands of troops at half a dozen bases embarked on transports, destroyers and trawlers and steamed hastily to an unknown rendezvous.

"Like a thunderbolt from a clear sky the British invaded the Gallipoli Peninsula at Suvla Bay, where the Turks were hopelessly unprepared. At night an immense fleet gathered in the Gulf of Saros from all points of the compass.

"The landing of the huge expeditionary force was orderly, scientific and almost unopposed, and it was followed by a rapid advance to a position four miles inland, which was immediately fortified. This move entirely severed the enemy's lines of communication, with the result that 100,000 Turks, or what is left of the seven army corps (250,000 men) defending the peninsula, are nearly surrounded and virtually besieged. The army's retreat is impossible and entirely off from escape; it must either fight to death or surrender. It is now a question of how long the Turks can subsist on the supplies they have.

"Land Without Cannonade
"The landing was splendidly executed. Half a thousand small boats, launches and pinnaces bristling like porcupines with fixed bayonets carried the troops quietly ashore and returned repeatedly for fresh loads. Immediately after the landing 50 Turkish outposts surrendered, and these were the only enemy soldiers seen during the day. The spectacular bombardment and continuous roar of cannonading, which were a feature of the original landing at Seddul Bahr, were conspicuously absent. Turkish reports say that 60,000 British troops landed within 24 hours.

"During the night the Turks mobilized about 70,00 men and at daybreak flung them against various points of the British line. Both sides were supported by artillery. The battle raged all day in the terrific heat of the Asiatic sun.

"Because of the ever-changing position of both forces the only shelters were boulders, bushes and ravines. The Turks turned the rugged beds of the mountain torrents into almost impregnable trenches.

"On Monday morning the British made a violent right flank attack, putting the enemy entirely to rout with terrific losses. The Australian and New Zealand forces holding the territory to the north of Gabe Tepe, who had been heavily engaged for four days, concentrated simultaneously on the left flank, the attack resulting in the junction and consolidation of the Australians with the British invading force, so that now there is a continuous battle line twelve miles long, twice cutting the main road over which the Turks defending the peninsula received all their supplies.

"According to a Turkish announcement the losses in the battle were: British, 4,000 dead, 9,000 wounded; Turkish, 8,000 dead, 12,000 wounded."

DR. COOK AGAIN A CLIMBER

Dr. Frederic A. Cook will not down. Indeed, he tends more and more to get on top. On the last day of June he arrived in Yokohama, and lost no time in stating that he was on his way to the Himalayas, there to struggle upward to the highest earthly crest—the roof of the world, namely, and the top of Mount Everest. This time he has the movies on his side. He takes a film camera and an operator with him, and is already negotiating weekly leases for his "Round the World Tour" of which his "Conquest of Mount Everest" will only be a side show. He still discusses the North Pole calmly, and still believes he found it; likewise Mount McKinley.

"While no man has ever attempted the ascent of Mount Everest, I am sure that it can be done. Otherwise I would not have undertaken it. I have studied the problem as thoroughly as possible, and the greatest difficulty that I foresee is the hostility of the natives. Nepal, in the northern part of which Mount Everest rises, is an independent Indian kingdom and its people see very few white men. Aside from that possible obstacle I believe that the ascent of the highest of the Himalayas will be easier than that of Mount McKinley. In the case of the latter peak it is on ice from 2,000 feet up, while on the sides of Mount Everest there is vegetation up to 19,000 feet.

"The mountain, however, is 29,000 feet high. He thinks he can conquer it in three months, and, says he, "I did it McKinley in three weeks. Will he do Mt. Everest in the same way?"

JAPAN TO MAKE DYE-STUFFS

A big government laboratory at a cost of $5,000,000 to enable the Japanese to make their own medicines and dyes will, it is expected, be erected as a memorial in celebration of the coronation of the Emperor this Fall. This was decided lately by a committee in charge, and report has it that it has secured the Premier's approval. The funds for the laboratory are to come partly from the government and partly from individuals, and are to be the subject of a Diet law. Since the war dyes and medicines have not been obtainable from Germany, and Japan now expects to launch the new enterprise. There is an unfortunate possibility that a change of premiers would work toward delaying the project.

STANDARD OIL CO.'S CHINESE ENTERPRISE

The China Press of Shanghai printed a Peking dispatch dated June 18, saying that "owing to an unforeseen affair, the date of the signing of the contract with the Standard Oil Corporation for the extension of the Shensi petroleum oil fields has been postponed for one month from May 9. Negotiations are proceeding satisfactorily between Mr. Bemis and Hsiung Hsi-lin."

To this the Press adds: "Mr. C. H. Blake, general manager of the company in Shanghai, explained to the China Press yesterday that the telegram could not mean that there were any special difficulties about. The condition of things was such that the signing of the contract could not be met. Duhait, etc. and so they were going on from month to month getting extensions. So far no oil had been found. Wells had been sunk 3,700 feet, 3,300 and 1,700, but without results. They were still working hard."

In Korea oil is reported to have been discovered or located "2,000 feet underground in the neighborhood of the river Congchon, North Pyongan-do." At any rate, an American, Mr. G. Hammond of Seoul, is said to have applied for leave to work there.

PENMEN FIRST ON FUJI'S WINDY PEAK

Yearly the first ascents of Mount Fuji are celebrated. This year three Tokyo students were the first. They went up from Gotemba with a guide, William B. Chase, musical critic of the New York Evening Sun, and Carl Hoffman, city editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, claiming another primary distinction. This is disclosed in a modest proclamation which they naturally sent, marked "rush," to the Tokyo papers: "Greetings from the crator of Mount Fuji. So far as we can learn we are the first foreigners to reach the top this year. We walked from Miyashita, twenty-one miles and made the actual ascent of eight miles in twelve hours. The climb was made mostly by moonlight. The weather was perfect but cold, and there was a strong gale at the top."

How benignly this will influence our next musical season and what stunts the "Frisco reporters will be expected to perform remains to be seen.

THE PEACEFUL CHINESE

Conditions in China continue to produce disquieting symptoms, and it is certainly no real kindness to China to conceal them in support of the fiction that the big country has advanced far on the road to progress. For instance, a Mukden dispatch of June 24 says: "The Chinese military authorities here have received a report that the garrison troops at Chaovangfu, province of Jehol, rose in rebellion June 20 and occupied the whole city of Chaovang. They drove government officials out of the city and set free all the prisoners, who are now plundering the city." Here is another: "On June 9 three Chinese employes in the railway town of Changtu went for a country ramble to a village nearby. One of them returned on June 11 saying that they had been seized by eighteen bandits. He bore a message from the captors of the other two that, unless $10,000 in cash and six revolvers were forthcoming within five days, the captives would be tortured to death."

PLAYGROUND KIDS IN GREAT OUTDOOR MEET

That the playground athletic meet can be held however has been decided as the teams of small boys will continue their training even after school opens. The usual events including dashes, a short distance run, and high and broad jumps will comprise the program.

Playground Supervisor George W. Hill said today that the city high schools might also be asked to compete in several events in order to make the meet more representative of the athletic prowess of the school children of Harrisburg. While this has not been definitely decided upon it is likely that the Central and Technical-school athletes will be complete in the dashes perhaps, the quarter mile run, the jumps and possibly the hurdles. The Sycamore track is an eighth of a mile.

Three Committees Working

Chairman J. Ray Hoffer, of the committee in charge of the water carnival arrangements, started three committees working to-day. Other committees will be named to-morrow. These committees received instructions at noon to-day. They will be called together early next week to hear reports. The committees busy to-day were:
