

Why a College Training can be Secured in Evening Classes

Ten years ago the Wharton School of the University of Pennsylvania inaugurated evening courses of collegiate grade. The question was then asked—"Can college work be successfully given in evening classes?"

Experience has conclusively demonstrated the success of this Wharton School movement. Men and women of courage, foresight and fixed purpose are willing to devote their evenings to such work, and they have found that the Wharton School materially helps them to a much larger measure of success than they could otherwise attain.

To such people the tasks of their vocations are pleasures—especially when they have the opportunity to apply in the Great Laboratory of Business the truths and principles they are learning in the evenings. Commercial education comes to have a reality and a meaning to them which it could not have without this contact.

The best of this situation is that the training can be secured without any sacrifices by your family, for your earning power goes right on. The annual income of our evening students exceeds $1,350,000.

What excuse will you offer either yourself or your family for not seizing this opportunity Now?

Information, Registration and Consultation with members of the Faculty at Chamber of Commerce every evening, except Saturday 7 to 9.

GLASS SAYS HE IS IN FAVOR OF LOAN

Framer of Federal Reserve Act Makes Address at Harrisburg Club

The difference between the old national banking act and the new federal reserve system lies in greater flexibility of the currency under its operation and in the ability to meet the needs of the country in a financial way under any conditions.

This was the gist of an address by Carter Glass before the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce at a luncheon at the Harrisburg Club to-day.

Mr. Glass digressed from his topic sufficiently long to say he is heartily in favor of the loan which English and French capitalists are endeavoring to negotiate in this country. "There is no reason for closing down business in this country because there is a war in Europe," he said. He also paid a very high tribute to President Wilson for his part in the passage of the reserve act.

Mr. Glass, as chairman of the congressional committee that framed the new reserve act, had been invited to address the Chamber on the new law as it applies to commercial relations. He was introduced by Donald McCormick, president of the Dauphin Deposit Trust company and a well-known figure in Pennsylvania banking circles. The meeting was attended by bankers from all over the Central Pennsylvania district.

In presenting Mr. Glass, Mr. McCormick dwelt upon the necessity of financial preparedness as well as of military preparedness and said that by defective laws in the past the country has lost fully as much money as would have been required to finance a war.

Mr. Glass spoke in glowing terms of the new reserve act, saying that it corrected two grave weaknesses in the old. The more noticeable of these, said he, was the lack of flexibility. The second defect in the old law he said was the "fictitious value of its reserve system." Since the new law has been in operation, he said, it has been found that instead of the country bank being dependent on the New York bank, the New York bank is really dependent on the country bank. For instance, he pointed out that the New York banks under the old system at one time owed the country banks $846,000,000, whereas they had loaned back to the country banks only $184,000,000, the difference being used for speculative purposes in New York.

"The whole effect of the new system," he continued, "has been to permit the banks under the federal system to loan as much money as any community needs on the basis of the total sum of its commercial assets, instead of limiting them to loans based on the limitations of national indebtedness as represented by bonds."

Mr. Glass explained the workings of the act in detail, and summed up his conclusions in this sentence: "The operation of the federal reserve bank means sane expansion when business men's activities are at work and automatic contraction when business men's activities are at rest."

Dissolution of First U. B. Church Possible

Discussion of the dissolution of the First United Brethren Church, Boas and Myrtle streets, will be a feature of a congregational meeting of that church this evening.

The First Church, which was the mother of the thriving United Brethren churches now situated in various sections of the city, has been losing membership through the death of old members quite rapidly in recent years and in the territory which it covers nearly all the people are "churched." Most of its members, furthermore, now live on Allison Hill and in the growing uptown sections.

Supper to Be Held Every Month; Getting Ready For Big Sundays in October

Supper will be served at these suppers by an auxiliary committee of women. The membership committee last night announced that it is busy at work to swell the attendance close to the 500 mark for the first three Sundays in October, the first of which will be "United Brethren conference Sunday," the second, rally day, and the third, a day of interest to men only, "when a live wire speaker will talk on a live wire subject."

NUXATED IRON

In Nervous "Run Down" Conditions—Free Prescription by Dr. Sauer.

Most weak, pale, nervous, rundown people fool themselves into thinking they are gaining strength by taking stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, or by drinking large quantities of strong tea or coffee, which whip up their vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of their lives later on. Give your poor, starving blood corpuscles plenty of blood food—iron—and you can throw liquors and stimulating medicines to the wind. Two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron taken three times per day after meals will often give most surprising physical and mental power in one or two weeks' time. — E. Sauer, M. D.

FIRE SWEEP BLOCK WILL BE REBUILT

Cafe. It is expected business will be resumed by Tuesday. New buildings, it is understood will be erected on the site of the Philadelphia cafe and Keener properties.

To Build Brick Buildings

Plans for a new building on the site of the old Central garage will be announced on the return of George Doehne from Atlantic City. It will likely be a brick structure, probably three stories high. A brick stable will also be erected replacing the one in Blackberry street which was used by Dr. J. H. Oyer, the veterinarian.

Fire Chief John C. Kinder said to-day that the estimates of losses given in the Telegraph last night were as nearly correct as was possible to get them. When the insurance companies have reported, the total loss may fall to $125,000.

Fire Chief Investigates

Fire Chief Kinder to-day with assistant chief Edward Halbert, made a further investigation into the origin of the fire. While witnesses, who were at the fire early, say the flames were all confined to the Philadelphia cafe building, Fire Chief Kinder said, "it could have started in the garage." He added: "I am not certain that we will ever learn positively where the fire did start. Employees of the Philadelphia cafe tell different stories regarding a gas explosion. Some say the explosion took place early in the evening; others that it happened after they closed up. An examination will be made of the gas range as soon as the ruins are cleared away."

Search For Valuables

Workmen were busy to-day digging through the ruins for lost valuables. Mrs. Harris Cohen missed several rings and trinkets after she made an inventory of her valuables to-day. They were in a bureau drawer. Search is still being made in the ruins of the Keener building for diamond rings and a gold watch lost by Mrs. Keener. In the Philadelphia cafe were two quarter gas meters. Both were burned off, and the money is buried in the debris in the cellar. Occupants of the top floors of the apartment buildings also lost jewelry. In order that no person except those authorized, search for the valuables, a patrolman will be on duty at the ruins until further notice. The following list of automobiles destroyed in the garage, on which there is an insurance, was given to Fire Chief Kinder last night:

Autos Burned.—H. V. Runk, proprietor of the garage, three cars, no insurance; Edward G. Hoffman, Jackson car, insured; William Morgan, Jackson car, no insurance; William E. Myers, Maxwell car, no insurance; L. G. Smith, Maxwell car, insured; Nick Lingerling, Maxwell car, insured; David H. Ryan, Jackson car, no insurance; Edwin C. First, Hayes car, no insurance; Dr. M. L. Wolford, Ford car, insured; Lesli, Fireling, Chalmers car, no insurance; Charles Lovitts, Maxwell car, no insurance; Herman Astrich estate, delivery car, insured; Paul Bender, Maxwell car, no insurance; Asa, three delivery trucks, insured; Fessier Produce company, one delivery truck, insured; Miller & Kades, delivery truck, insured; W. H. Cassel, Maxwell car, no insurance; Charles Boyer's joy car, partially insured; Roberts and Hoin, agents for the Hayes car, one machine, insured; P. H. Keboch, agents for the Jackson car, lost four cars, two of which were insured.

One car was taken out of the rear of the garage, and was found last night in another garage. It was the property of Samuel Spencer, of the Rother Company, which was rescued by E. C. Manahan, of the Bowman and Company and Ray Alexander of the Morton Truck Company. Both these gentlemen were rewarded to-day.

I want to thank them for it. I can't understand why people want to tell us how to do things. No fire department would have done any better than the local companies. Many departments—including those who are paid, would have done worse. It is all well enough to tell what Harrisburg ought to do, but how are we to get the money to do it. What use would there have been for the aerial truck after the buildings had collapsed. Mr. Howland is wrong."
