FASHION REVIEW AT BOWMAN'S

Gowns? Hats? Yubetcher! And on Real "Live" Models,

Top

Those same desires which this week are making Cohan's theater the Mecca for thousands of the fairer sex within the attracting zone of Broadway's glare, to-day are attracting hundreds in Harrisburg to the semiannual Fashion Review at the store of Bowman & Company.

If it's a "tip" as to the proper thing for Milady to wear in hat, gown or frock this season, you can get it at the Fashion Review. And incidentally you, Milady, will spend as pleasant an hour or so as you could at any matinee.

Beneath two wide rows of crimson Ruscus trees over in a quiet screened corner of Bowman's fourth floor, there is a broad inviting bower beneath which caged canary birds warble continuously. At the entrance to the arbor there is stationed an orchestra which sends forth the swaying strains of a dreamy waltz; at the other there is a screened bower. Softly shaded lights lend an additional romance to the scene.

As the Draperies part This is the setting for Bowman's Fashion Review. When the second day's exhibition opened this morning at 10 o'clock, more than a hundred women filled the comfortable chairs reserved for the audience.

As the orchestra swung from a dreamy waltz into stately march, the curtains at the draped end of the bower parted and a chic model stepped forth. As the style-critics looked with bated breath, she strolled superbly over towards the orchestra.

As she came toward there were smothered exclamations of admiration from the audience. The man with the bass fiddle swept several notes as the girl swept towards him, but no one except the alert reporter noticed that.

Tall, stately, chestnut hair, blue eyes that flashed and sparkled, a form that—well, that made the basic of a slender skip who contended that this was the model. And her gown was—well the city editor fell down on his job when he failed to send his special woman writer to cover this story. She might have been able to describe that gown—and the succeeding ones which were shown—but a mere male? Nup!

Some of the gowns were made of a material from which that dress was made. Sleeves that clung to a shapely arm, an arm that wasn't made merely to show off gowns, were made of some filmy, lacy stuff, and then there was a deep V shaped opening at the throat edged with a white lace. Little circles of fur ran round the wrist with a circle of the same material around the bottom of the skirt.

Atop that chestnut hair sat a creation which a clerk explained was a hat. It, too, was brown. A sailor effect, it seemed, with some lacy like stuff between the rim and crown which left soft-shaded light fall upon the face beneath.

That's what one of the gowns looked like. There were others. Charming evening costumes, street gowns and afternoon dresses—all were there.

WILSON REVIEWS UNION SURVIVORS OF CIVIL WAR

As each contingent swung along applause broke out afresh and many of the old soldiers responded to the President's greeting by waving flags.

Tired by the march from the Capitol to the White House, a little more than a mile, veterans looked exhausted when they reached the President's stand. Many leaned upon younger and more robust comrades. A few strode forward with unflinching steps.

The President stood throughout the entire review, removing his hat each time an American flag passed.

The procession was headed by Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, retired, who upon his arrival before the White House dismounted and joined the President in the reviewing stand.

Then came detachments of regular soldiers, sailors and militia. Sons of Veterans followed and directly behind them, led by the United States Marine Band, came the first of the old soldiers.

Considering the advanced age of the men there seemed few exhaustions. The marching distance had been shortened as much as possible and the weather was ideal, the heat from the sun being tempered by a crisp breeze.

Veteran life and drum corps got most applause from the crowds. They were times, of course, when the shrill tones from the fife sounded a little weak, but that made no difference to those that heard. One corps was followed by a single old soldier marching equipped just as he had marched fifty years ago, his knapsack and blanket strapped to his back.

On his shoulder he carried the same musket he used throughout the war.

The grand parade and Presidential review was the crowning event of the annual reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic. It was in commemoration of the grand review after the close of the Civil War.

A half century ago President Johnson's grandstand in front of the White House reviewed 169,000 conquerors of the Army of the North. To-day President Wilson from the same spot greeted the survivors.

Estimates of the number of veterans in line at from 20,000 to 30,000. Pennsylvania avenue from the Capitol to the White House was thronged with a crowd of spectators that rivaled the inauguration times. All departments of the federal and district governments, the public schools and practically all business houses were closed for the occasion.

March to White House The line of march was from Peace Monument at the west entrance of the Capitol grounds, up Pennsylvania avenue and through a court of honor, erected in front of the White House.

At the head of the procession was Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles, with distinguished army and navy officers as his aids. Colonel George A. Hulse, chief of staff of the command-in-chief of the G. A. R., was the active marshal of the parade. The U. S. Grant Post of Brooklyn, N. Y., acted as special guard to Commander-in-chief Palmer.

In addition to the veterans in line there were Sons of Veterans, various citizen military organizations, troops of the regular army, signal corps and sailors from the fleet of warships and the United States Navy. Veterans marched in their respective Grand Army departments the line being headed by the Department of Illinois, which was the first to be organized after the war.

Signal Announces Parade Lieutenant George C. Round, president of the Veteran Signal Corps Association, gave the signal announcing the start of the parade.

With President Wilson to review the procession were members of the cabinet, other distinguished officers of the United States, the Supreme Court and members of Congress.

Other events of the day's program included a drill by blue jackets from the warships on the white lot, a reception in honor of the command-in-chief and national officers of the G. A. R. by the ladies of the G. A. R. and camp reunions.

President Wilson, accompanied by military and naval aids, left the White House to take his place in the reviewing stand when guns fired on the Mall announced the start of the procession.

IS YOUR STOMACH CLOGGED WITH WASTE?

Druggists Guarantee to Return the Money if Mi-o-na Does Not Relieve You. It is a pleasure to send a medicine when customers come in afterward and tell you how much good it has done them. Druggists everywhere can tell of this experience in their sale of Mi-o-na, the well-known stomach remedy. And that is the reason why they are always glad to sell and recommend Mi-o-na. It does the work and ends all stomach distress just like the Mi-o-na people further and sells Mi-o-na on a positive guarantee that unless it helps the purchaser he can have his money back. That may seem rash, but customers have said so many good words in Mi-o-na's favor that very few packages are likely to be returned. Anyone who has dyspepsia, whose food does not digest well, and who has to take thought as to what he can eat, and when, can leave 50 cents deposit at any drug store and take home a box of Mi-o-na and if the remedy does not regulate his digestion and help his dyspepsia he can withdraw his money. This shows great faith in the merit of Mi-o-na. It is really a most unusual medicine—the rapid increase of sales since it was introduced in Harrisburg shows that it does all that it is claimed to do—relieves dyspepsia, regulates digestion and enables those who use it to eat just what they want with no fear of trouble after. Sold by H. C. Kennedy and any other leading druggist in this vicinity.—Advertisement.

Commission Named to Codify Descendents' Laws

Governor Brumbaugh to-day announced the appointment of Judge John Marshall Gest, Philadelphia, Judge Thomas J. Baldridge, Hollidaysburg, and ex-Speaker George E. Alter, of Springdale, Allegheny county, as members of the commission provided by the last Legislature to codify the laws relative to decedents' estates. The commissioners will serve without compensation, but are given an appropriation of $10,000 for expenses. Judge Gest is a judge of the Philadelphia orphans' court and Judge Baldridge is judge of both common pleas and orphans courts in his county. Ex-Speaker Alter is an attorney of wide experience and high attainments and also thoroughly posted in regard to decedents' estates. The commission is regarded as an unusually strong one.

RECEIPTS INCREASED BY $20,000

New York, Sept. 29.—Receipts of the Episcopal Board of Missions for application to its regular budget during the past year amounted to $1,067,000, an increase of $20,000 over the previous year, according to a statement issued by that board to-day. This sum does not include some hundreds of thousands of dollars applied to special purposes. In addition a $271,000 fund was raised to meet an emergency.

KINDS OF RHEUMATISM

In popular language the word rheumatism is a term that covers a multitude of ills of which pain is the chief symptom. Articular rheumatism, inflammatory rheumatism and rheumatic fever are all names for the same disease. Muscular rheumatism affects the muscles and does not spread from one spot to another like inflammatory rheumatism. Lombago is a form of muscular rheumatism. Some people have rheumatism every winter, especially those people who inherit a rheumatic tendency. They will continue to have recurring attacks until the blood is built up to a strength sufficient to overcome the rheumatic poison. External applications and drugs that simply relieve the pain are useless. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills build up the blood and really correct the trouble. With the poisons in the blood there is a continual combat between the health forces and the disease. When the rheumatic poison prevails the blood gets thin rapidly. When the blood is made rich and red by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills the poisons are destroyed and expelled. The free booklet, "Building Up the Blood," tells the whole story, and is sent on request by Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y. Your own druggist sells Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.—Advertisement.
