By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
If some girl you know had a beautiful gold bracelet, would you sneak into her home, steal the jewel and then flaunt it in the face of the world with the serene feeling that the bracelet was yours because you had taken it and that no punishment would ever befall you? Absurd suggestion—is it not?
Well, then, if the stealing of a mere bauble would brand you as a thief to be shunned by decent people and to be shut in prison to repent of your crime, how can you expect that the theft of love and honor—the stealing of a man's protection and affection is to go unpunished?
There is no more contemptible crime in all the calendar of shameful deeds than stealing another woman's husband. It is a black sin, too—and ahead of it stretches, link by link, a chain of shame and disgrace.

Do any of you girls who give your love to a man who has sworn to "love, honor and cherish" another woman until death, ever look at your affair with that man in the clear light of reason and common sense? I think not. The only light in which you ever consider it is the murky haze of your wilful blindness or the violent gleam of your uncontrolled desire.
Now, for a few minutes, turn your face to the light and with me look squarely at the situation you are making. Don't flinch when you see it in all its distorted ugliness. Keep on looking until your brain has recovered sanity and power enough to control your feverish and cruel little heart.

Look at the wife from whom you are stealing the priceless jewel of love and trust in the man she married. You are going to tear her home of love down about her head. You are going to wreck her home itself. A few years ago she was young and pretty as you are now—or perhaps she was "understanding" and sympathetic and so attracted the man who is now the greatest factor in her life.
She gave him her youth, her energy, her love, her life itself. And he tired of her. Do you dare take her whole joy in life away from her? Her husband has been the center of her universe for years. Do you dare throw her whole world off its orbit and leave it smashed to atoms at her feet? Do you dare blot out the sunshine from her life forever? Can you steal your happiness and make another woman pay for it in agony?

What of the Outcome?
If you dare—if you toss your head and cynically murmur, "Every one for himself and the devil take the hindmost," aren't you afraid that your invitation will be accepted? You will be condemned and shunned by decent people. Your friends will pity you, but despise you too much to be kind to you in your state of social leprosy. You will be sneered at and subjected to insult. Your parents and family will be outcasts, too, because they are of your blood—and how they will suffer as they join in paying the toll for your stolen happiness!
Can you bear all that? Can you bear knowing that you have hurt the career of the man you love so unwisely? Men will not feel that they can trust him in business when he have proven so untrustworthy in the most sacred relation of life. He will be dropped by many and have to drop the rest whose wives will refuse to recognize you?
Does even this fail to daunt you? Then face the cruellest fact of all—the man who turns from the wife who has given him soul and spirit and love, will even more surely turn from the girl who has only the last to give. Face desertion. For that will be your portion as surely as you forced it on another woman.
If the wife who is bound to him by ties of love and honor and decency—by ties of home and children, perhaps—by custom and habit—cannot hold him, how can you expect to do so who have broken all of these bonds?
Some day he will see a face that is younger and fresher than yours. It will have the mystery of the unknown. Off after it will go your "light of love." There will be nothing but an outworn passion to hold him to you. And that is a weak cable soon broken. He will no longer have society to fear. He will have no shred of manhood and honor to bind him. He sacrificed them all for you.
Off he will go after his newer fancy, and you will not have the one consolation given the poor wife whose life you spoiled even as some younger woman is spoiling your marred and shameful existence. Society will not offer you sympathy and help. Instead it will laugh and sneer at the thief who was not clever enough to hold her stolen property. And in your wretchedness and shame you will be alone.
Don't Be Misled
"But he is going to marry me," you say. "His first marriage was all a mistake and he realizes that I am the one love of his life."
If this is so—and there is about one chance in a hundred that it is—don't let him come into your life until he is free to marry you. And even then, could you ever trust a man who

COALDALE WANTS ENOUGH TO DRINK

Interesting Complaint Filed With the Public Service Commissioners

The borough of Coaldale, Schuylkill county, has filed a complaint with the Public Service Commission, alleging that the water supply furnished that borough by the Panther Valley Water Company is inadequate for domestic and fire purposes; that on from two to four days of each week for the past year or more, a lack of water has frequently existed for hours at a stretch, and sometimes for periods of from ten to twelve hours each day there is no water in certain parts of the town.
R. B. McKee, a resident of Steuben township, Crawford county, has instituted a complaint against the Pennsylvania Railroad Company, charging that the company has recently made certain changes in its line which necessitated the removal of a siding which he had up to that time made use of, and which said company promised to replace when the changes in the grade had been completed. The petitioner asks the assistance of the commission to secure the restoration of the siding.

A FASHIONABLE AUTUMN FROCK

An Interesting Design Showing Quaker Collar and Cuffs.

By MAY MANTON

8745 Long Waisted Gown for Misses and Small Women, 16 and 18 years.

Truly is the present a season of interesting contrasts, and here is a girl's dress, eminently picturesque in its lines and cut, that is finished with demure collar and cuffs which seem to belong to the Quaker maiden in her plain attire. The effect is good, however, and when the dress is good, fashion may be content.
The frock is very charming either for silk or for wool fabrics and it can be made as it is here, of one material throughout, or with the skirt and the over-bodice of one material and the under-bodice and sleeves of another, and since combinations are greatly in vogue, this latter effect has many possibilities. Here, one of the new crepes, combining silk and wool, is trimmed with soft chiffon velvet, and the collar and cuffs are of white washable satin. A totally different effect could be obtained by making the over-bodice and the skirt of plaid taffeta and the under-bodice with sleeves of Georgette crepe or crepe de chine and the collar and cuffs of the same or of organdie. The skirt is in two pieces and is joined to a yoke, and this yoke in turn is joined to the plain bodice, the closing of the blouse and the yoke being made at the front, while the over-bodice is adjusted over the blouse and closed at the left shoulder.
For the 16 year size will be required 9 3/4 yds. of material 27 in. wide, 6 3/4 yds. 36, 5 3/8 yds. 44, with 3/4 yd. 36 in. wide for the collar and cuffs, 1 yd. 27 for girdle and bands.
The May Manton pattern No. 8745 is cut in sizes for 16 and 18 years. It will be mailed to any address by the Fashion Department of this paper, on receipt of ten cents.

had made love to you when bound in honor to another woman?
Your whole life would be one long miserable fear of the day when he would serve you as you had helped him serve your predecessor. You would be torn by suspicion of every woman who touched his life—even at its mere edges. You would know that there were qualities of falsehood and deceit of self-indulgence and of pitilessness for a woman once he had tired of her in your lover's nature! You will grow wretched waiting for the inevitable day when he would tire of you and set off on another dishonorable wooing. You would murder your youth and charm by your very fear of loss of power when once they were gone.
But the chances are ninety-nine against one that you will never be given the title of "wife" by the man who has come to know that you do not hold it sacred.
The price you must pay for the love of another woman's husband is higher than that extorted from any other thief—it is peace of mind, honor, position, family ties, self-respect, honorable love and a home and children. All this you pay for a little period of delirious love making—and at the end you reap remorse, desertion and life-long misery.
Can you persuade yourself that it is worth while. No—I am sure you never can. You have faced the light. You have looked the thief you contemplated square in the face and you shrink. If you have one grain of decency and one of common sense you cannot steal another woman's husband. Be sure of that.

Peculiar Old White Mare She Was!

ET'S ambition was to "get there." May be it was instinct that prompted her to travel at breakneck speed, for every trip over the wide countryside was an "Errand of Mercy"; carrying her owner—the doctor—to the "sick bed" of her kin.

A little peculiarity all her own, was that of increasing her speed on each hill she encountered—and the steeper the hill, the faster she galloped, only at the top, stopping to give her head a meaning shake; adjust her proud poise and break into a steady pace again.

Right here in this building we're all "running up hills" in order that the store may be completed in a shortened period.

Our purpose is to "get there"—ours is an URGENT ERRAND OF SERVICE.

The sooner work is finished, the better for all. Workmen who realize this can be found wherever you look about the building, and many lunch hours are cut short by their own design.

Armed Men Scour Hills For Mail Car Robbers

By Associated Press
Wheeling, W. Va., Oct. 9. — Hundreds of armed men scoured the hills of Harrison, Pleasants and Doddridge counties during the night in search of the highwaymen who early yesterday robbed Baltimore and Ohio passenger train No. 1 at Central Station and got away with unsigned bank notes. Every available clue was followed by sheriffs, United States deputy marshals and posses of citizens, but information reaching here this morning was that no real progress had been made.

Predicts Coal Price Raise of $3 a Ton

Coal prices may be boosted from $2 to $3 per ton before the end of the year according to announcement by an official of one of the big coal handling companies in this city to-day.
The war in Europe which has been responsible for the recall to the colors of their mother countries many of the foreigners who were employed in the coal fields and the shortage of cars are declared to be the cause of the probable rise in cost of fuel.
Railroads it is said are able to furnish but sixty per cent. of the number of cars necessary to handle the supply. M. R. Millerg, sales agent for the United Ice and Coal Company has explained the situation and the possibility of a rise in prices in a letter sent out to patrons.

"The Palace of the King" to Be Shown in Pictures

A stupendous production, depicting a love story of old Madrid and the picturesque court life of 350 years ago is "In the Palace of the King," Essanay's new six reel photoplay, dramatized from the famous novel by F. Marion Crawford, and which will appear at the Colonial Theater on Monday and Tuesday. Five thousand persons were engaged by Essanay to take part in this photoplay, which, critics say, is one of the best ever produced.
Besides the thousands of men and women employed in the film, hundreds of blooded horses and thousands of dollars worth of beautiful costumes were used to lend the necessary realistic color.
Of special interest is the cast of players, most prominent of which are Richard Travers, F. J. Ratcliffe, Arleen Hackett, Lillian Drew and Nello Craig.—Advertisement.

Keep Your Eyes on the Store Windows

The public eye likes interesting sights. And next week—beginning Monday—the city will be full of them. They will be in the show windows of the enterprising merchants.

They will be in the garb of near and dear friends—friends introduced to you through the advertising columns of the newspapers of this city.

The Show Window Display is part of a continent-wide demonstration in the interest of better business.

Just as the merchants of this city are vying with each other, so is the city as a whole in competition with hundreds of other cities in the United States and Canada.

On behalf of the merchants and the newspapers we invite you to inspect the store windows next week. You will have no trouble distinguishing the displays for they will bear signs reading:
