UNCLE HARRY TELLS ABOUT THE BIG NEWS OF 1915

"Well, boys, it's pretty nearly time to say 'Good-by' and 'How do you do,'" said Uncle Harry.
 "I know what you mean," said Joe. "You mean 'good-by 1915' and 'how do you do, 1916'?"
 "Exactly," said Uncle Harry, "and I was wondering, as I walked over, whether you fellows would like me to tell you about some of the important take one of these back seats and I'll promise not to make any noise."

 "Glad to have you, father," said Uncle Harry, "and I know the boys will welcome you to our club."
 "Yes, indeed," added the boys.
 So father pulled his chair around and Uncle Harry began:

news of the Old Year—some of the big things that happened during 1915. Would you? How about it, Jimmy?"
 "That'd be fine," said Jimmy, "and"

"To begin with, boys—and father—the war is still going on, and the armies in France are just about where they were last January. Lately, though, there have been many peace rumors, coming from so many different places, and I believe, and hope, that before the end of the new year peace will be declared.
 "Early in the year Germany was successful in her campaign against Russia, and captured a number of Russian and Polish cities, including Warsaw. Since summer Bulgaria has joined Germany and the soldiers of these two countries have invaded and captured Serbia and have practically opened a way to Constantinople so that they can join the Turkish forces in that ancient city, Italy, which joined the British allies early in the summer, at first made rapid progress against Austria, but lately that campaign seems to have come to a halt. Although both sides have tried to win Greece, that little country has decided to remain neutral. The Turks still hold Constantinople against the British and French fleets, and the British navy continues the successful blockade against Germany in the North Sea.

"The war is costing about $75,000,000 a day, and the number of men who have been killed and injured runs into the millions—probably more than 5,000,000. Germany alone reports the loss of more than 2,000,000 since the beginning of the fighting.
 "Since last New Year's Day the whole world has learned of the suffering of the Polish people and great quantities of food and other needed supplies have been sent from America to Poland."

"The war has caused the United States a lot of trouble this year, hasn't it?" asked Joe.
 "Indeed it has," said Uncle Harry. "Several American ships, and many British ships carrying American citizens, have been sunk by submarines, and President Wilson and Secretary of State Lansing have been about the two busiest men in the United States trying to straighten out these difficulties. After the big steamship Lusitania was sunk in May, causing the death of more than 1,000 people, including many Americans, President Wilson took a very firm stand and secured from Germany a promise that more care would be taken in attacking ships on which Americans might be traveling."

"It would have been very easy for President Wilson to have caused the United States to get into the war, but he knew that Germany had no quarrel with the American people and that the sinking of the ships was the result of Germany's efforts to prevent Great Britain getting fresh war supplies and not a willful desire to harm Americans. President Wilson knows the awful cost of war and the suffering it brings to people and he has done all that he could to save America from what has been going on in Europe for a year and a half."

"Now tell us something about what happened in the United States during 1915," said Jimmy.

"In some ways it has been record-breaking year," said Uncle Harry. "We have had the biggest and finest exposition that the world has ever known—the Panama-Pacific Exposition at San Francisco. Our farms have produced the biggest grain crop in the history of the country. Our inventors and scientists have discovered how to send telephone messages all the way across the continent, and what is even more wonderful, send wireless telephone messages from Washington to San Francisco and even on to Honolulu. American doctors have done splendid work here in our own country discovering new and better ways of curing and preventing diseases, and have given aid to the sick and wounded in Europe. But for the American doctors and nurses in Serbia, probably all the people of that country that were not killed in the war would have died in the typhus fever epidemic."
 "The United States government scientists have made many valuable discoveries, including ways of making a number of important chemicals which American manufacturers need but cannot get from Europe on account of the war."
 "Carranza, the Constitutionalist leader, has succeeded in winning control of the greater part of Mexico; the fighting in that country is about over; the United States and many other countries have recognized Carranza as the leader of the Mexican people, and plans are being made to give the boys and girls of Mexico good educations and help the people build up their country."

"The nations of Central and South America are becoming more friendly with the United States, and if this war will only stay over in Europe, or better still, come to an end soon, the people of North and South America will continue to enjoy the greatest peace and prosperity ever known.

"Early this month Congress opened and President Wilson outlined his plans for new laws which he believes should be passed, including the improvement and enlargement of our army and navy.
 "The politicians are planning for the conventions which will nominate candidates for President, to be voted on next November. These conventions will meet in Chicago and the Democrats in St. Louis. President Wilson will probably be the Democratic candidate for re-election, but nobody seems to know who will be the Republican candidate.

 "It's been a great and important year, boys, and 1916 will be even greater. There will be lots of interesting things happening and you can count on me telling you all about them."
 "Happy New Year, Uncle Harry!" shouted the boys as Uncle Harry started up the street.
 "Same to you, boys, and many of them," he answered.

are located on the top of a table mountain, known as Acoma Mesa. Upon this mesa are houses one, two, and even three stories in height, nearly all of them being surrounded by high walls, these being built as protections in case of war. These homes are made of clay bricks, which were baked out in the open by the sun. Their buildings are at once simple and substantial. In addition to being used as winter quarters this mesa is used as a retreat in case of an attack by any hostile tribe, and it is an ideal fortress. — The Christian Herald.
