

You Mothers With Croupy Children—Clip This Coupon

Arrangements Are Being Made for the Leading Local Druggists to Give Away to the First Who Present Coupons, 25c. Jars of the Remarkable Southern Treatment—Vap-O-Rub.

Entirely External—You Just Rub It On Over Throat and Chest. Colds Go Over Night and Croup In Fifteen Minutes.

To mothers with small children, particularly to mothers with croupy children, we bring a message of good cheer. It is no longer necessary to dose the delicate stomachs of the little chaps with Ipecac or strong internal medicines to relieve these troubles. A quicker and better method is the "outside" application—Vick's Vap-O-Rub Salve. This salve is so made that, when applied for croup or cold troubles over the throat and chest, the body heat releases the ingredients in the form of vapors. These vapors carry the medication, all night long, with each breath, through the air passages to the lungs, loosening the phlegm and clearing the head. Vap-O-Rub is also absorbed through and stimulates the skin, taking out the tightness and soreness.

In severe cases first apply hot wet towels over the throat, chest, and back, between the shoulder blades, to open the pores of the skin; then rub Vap-O-Rub in well and cover with a warm flannel cloth. Leave the covering loose around the neck, so that the vapors arising may be freely inhaled.

Usually, even in the worst cases of spasmodic croup, breathing is made easier in fifteen minutes. An application at night will, in nearly every case, prevent an attack. Sufferers from asthmatic and catarrhal troubles will find Vap-O-Rub gives excellent results.

In order to acquaint their customers with this preparation, the leading local druggists will give away a limited number of 25c size jars free to those of their customers who present the coupon below.

MODEL FARM FOR COUNTY JAIL?

Workshop Reformatory Method Being Discussed by Attorneys of City

Model farms and workshops as substitutes for penitentiaries and reformatories in the reformation of criminals are heartily advocated by many well-known lawyers of the Dauphin county bar.

The farm-and-workshop reformatory method was the subject of considerable discussion at the annual session of the Pennsylvania State Bar Association last week in Pittsburgh and the plan was endorsed by the bar committee.

The committee made an exhaustive report on the revision of the penal laws and some remedial legislation was recommended for presentation to the next session of the State Legislature. The abolishing of the county jails in every one of the sixty-seven counties of Pennsylvania for all purposes except that of detention is one of the important moves suggested by the lawyers.

The real object has a double incentive—the inauguration of a modern system of penology with a view to producing better citizenship and the reduction of cost of maintenance of penal institutions.

Among the local barristers who talked on the subject were A. Carson Stamm, a member of the law firm of Olmsted and Stamm and president of the city school board; John Fox Weiss, former district attorney of Dauphin county and a member of the committee on revision and amendment which drafted this suggestion; Charles H. Bergner and Jesse E. B. Cunningham, formerly deputy attorney general.

Opinion Differs

Expressions of opinion on the part of lawyers and jurors in this city seem to indicate that the idea, while regarded by some as an excellent step to be taken from the humanitarian standpoint, to others does not appeal at all, but is the result of hysteria and "soft" sentiment. One prominent lawyer spoke in highly commendatory terms of the new State Penitentiary in Center county, near Bellefonte, and of its warden, John Francis, as an example. Francis, he said, has inaugurated a new method of handling the criminals under his care, using the merit system and treating them more as men than beasts, assuming that they have enough intelligence and business acumen to recognize the humane treatment that they receive and act accordingly.

A. Carson Stamm, taking the viewpoint that reformation of the wrongdoer is the only real justification for punishment, made the following statement in support of the above recommendation:

Reformation Objective

"Any improvement in the penal system that will make for better citizenship and reduce the cost of maintaining penal institutions must be welcomed. There are three theories at least three theories about punishment for crime—vengeance, an example to deter others, and the reformation of the wrongdoer. The first two are happily fast becoming obsolete. Vengeance is hate; and to punish one for the sake of deterring another hardly appeals to a sense of justice. The only real justification for punishment for wrongdoing is the reformation of the wrongdoer and his restoration to his rightful place in society. Anything that will help accomplish this end must be a good thing."

John Fox Weiss, a member of the committee on revision and amendment that drafted this suggestion, declared his belief in the proposed step is an advance in penology that is certainly worth a trial.

On the other hand, the confidence that Charles H. Bergner, well-known lawyer, and J. E. B. Cunningham, deputy attorney general, have in the advisability and efficacy of such a move was best exemplified in the short expression of opinion which each made. The former exclaimed, "Perfect rot," and the latter answered in an equally forcible way, "Poppycock."

"Easier to Commit Crimes?" "Criminals," said an eminent jurist recently on this very subject, "feel the disgrace, not of having committed the crime for which they are sent up, but of the actual going to jail. If you are going to fix up all these lovely reformatory and things for them, you are going to take away in a certain measure the disgrace that attends being put in a place of detention. Take away this disgrace, which is the only one that the criminal feels, and you have made it much easier for a man to commit crime."

The plan suggested by the committee, which also advised that the legislation necessary to bring about the changes be introduced at the next session of the Legislature in 1917, includes the establishment of six model farms, in different portions of the State, and the extension of the employment and compensation theory to a county or intercounty plan, using products raised and manufactured by the inmates in the counties comprising these various districts.

The Millinery Department Dons a Robe of Brilliantly Colored Beauty in This

Seasonable Exposition of Advance Models

Millinery of Superb Design For Immediate Wear

IN days gone by, April was the beginning of the Spring season, and 'long about October, autumn styles usually came to the front.

Quite different from the present time, when here mid-winter finds a complete change from the subdued shades and wintry materials of previous months, to the light and bright creations that forerun the Spring.

Women will have it so. To many it affords a very welcome change of dress. Spring is a long way ahead, and models shown in this exposition are for immediate wear.

Designers—and please note, only those of high repute have co-operated in making this special showing a possibility—take pride in fashioning styles for this particular period, because it is the first general change in the vogue of Millinery, and their one thought is to mark it with distinctly different lines; having gathered inspiration from a dozen sources.

New Are The Shapes—And Rare Combinations of Color; And Novel Oddities of Materials Are Important Features

APPARENTLY there is no shortage of ideas; for the many hats are truly specimens of unusual thought and comeliness. To illustrate the variety, consider that our entire Millinery stock is composed of these new models.

Shapes are unique in the trend toward larger brims—found in sailors that roll and flare; but turbans, higher than ever, are the other extreme. Sport hats are particularly smart and new.

Imagine the novelty of oilcloth in bright red and green; or the richness of straw in combination with various colored silks. Others of leather, lissire and satin; and among the trimmings, flowers and foliage are everywhere to be seen.

No less important are the moderate prices, ranging from $4.95 to $10, and upward for the more elaborate, exclusive models.

THE OHIO BLOCKADE

Only two months ago, in the State of Ohio, the writer was delayed overnight at a small country town by a thunder storm lasting barely two hours. The roads became temporarily impassable, but the people took it as a matter of course! After fourteen hours' delay we started, and by steady going made four miles in the first hour. We were lucky at that, for the roads were unpeppably bad, due to the rain of a few hours. Think of the conditions that must exist in the winter and Spring—conditions that last for days! Think of this existing, not only generally throughout

If Too Fat Get More Fresh Air

BE MODERATE IN YOUR DIET AND REDUCE YOUR WEIGHT WITH OIL OF KOREIN

Lack of fresh air weakens the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, the liver becomes sluggish, fat accumulates and the action of many of the vital organs are hindered thereby. The heart action becomes weak, work is an effort and the beauty of the figure is destroyed. Fat put on by indoor life is unhealthy and if nature is not assisted in throwing it off by increasing the oxygen-carrying power of the blood, a serious case of obesity may result. When you feel that you are getting too stout, take the matter in hand at once. Don't wait until your figure has become a joke and your health ruined through carrying around a burden of unsightly and unhealthy fat. Spend as much time as you possibly can in the open air; breathe deeply, and get from any druggist a box of oil of korein capsules; take one after each meal and one before retiring at night. Weigh yourself every few days and keep up the treatment until you are helplessly harmless. Oil of korein is absolutely harmless, is pleasant to take, helps the digestion and is designed to increase the oxygen-carrying power of the blood. Even a few days' treatment should show a noticeable reduction in weight. There is nothing better.—Advertisement.

Quality That Merits the Slogan

THROUGH all the changes which have marked the more than a half century's growth and progress of the House of Herman, one thing has remained the same—the determination to give quality. This is convincingly evidenced by the great popularity of
