Historic Papers Lost in Washington College Fire

Special to the Telegraph
 Chestertown, Md., Jan. 17.—William Smith Hall, the main building of Washington College, was wrecked by fire early to-day.
 So rapidly did the flames spread that all the archives, including many historic documents, some of them in the handwriting of George Washington, were burned. The building cost $75,000 to erect.
 The president, Dr. James W. Cain, members of the faculty and the whole student body of about 125 young men stood by while the college building burned, unable to enter the structure, which was a seething furnace. The girl students live in the town. Destruction of the heating plant and the great library will cripple the college for the winter. The cornerstone was laid in 1783.

Vatican Hears Kaiser Is Not Out of Danger

Rome, Jan. 17.—According to reports received by the Vatican, Emperor William underwent an operation last Thursday. Although the operation is said to have been successful, a week must elapse before His Majesty may be pronounced out of danger.

A CHILD DOESN'T LAUGH AND PLAY IF CONSTIPATED

Look, Mother! Is tongue coated, breath feverish and stomach sour?

"California Syrup of Figs" can't harm tender stomach, liver, bowels.

A laxative to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Children simply will not take the time from play to empty their bowels, which become clogged up with waste, liver gets sluggish; stomach sour.
 Look at the tongue, mother! If coated, or your child is listless, cross, feverish, breath bad, restless, doesn't eat heartily, full of cold or has sore throat or any other children's ailment, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," then don't worry, because it is perfectly harmless, and in a few hours all this constipation poison, sour bile and fermenting waste will gently move out of the bowels and you have a well, playful child again. A thorough "inside cleansing" is oftentimes all that is necessary. It should be the first treatment given in any sickness.
 Beware of counterfeit fig syrups. Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Look carefully and see that it is made by the "California Fig Syrup Company."

A. P. OPERATORS HOLD DINNER

Men Who "Take Stuff" For Papers All Over State Meet at Plaza

The day and night operators of the Associated Press' Pennsylvania circuits, representing every city in the State and Trenton and Wilmington, gathered here Saturday night for the first "Good Fellowship" dinner. The dinner, which was held at The Plaza, was the first in the eastern States of the kind and men traveled many miles to meet those with whom they "talk" on the wire every day but whom they had in many cases never seen. In many respects the dinner was unique and was marked by some interesting speeches, "services" bulletins and handsome decorations.
 H. D. Grube, of Lancaster, one of the veterans of the wire, was toastmaster, and before "clearing" the board for the speeches gave some interesting history about the news service in this State in the last twenty-five years. W. F. Flanagan, traffic chief of the eastern division of the Associated, brought the greetings from Washington, and F. H. Trickle sent them from the southern division at Washington. R. A. Mooney, in charge of traffic from Philadelphia, spoke for "J", the home office, while W. A. Connor, head of the news department in Pennsylvania, who was detained at home by death in his family, sent a letter congratulating the men of the wire on their dinner and commending their splendid service. The news end was represented in the speechmaking by J. H. Reiting, day editor, and Paul A. Weeden, night editor, from the Philadelphia office, and by A. Boyd Hamilton, the Harrisburg representative of the Associated. A number of "news" messages, not strictly "A P matter," were sent in for the operators.
 W. S. Meek, of this city, chairman of the banquet committee, E. B. Murphy, Reading; R. W. Wescoe, Williamsports; B. L. Theurer, Harrisburg night operator; "Dave" Casem, Lancaster, and other men who send and receive the news for the papers of the State were then called on for "short stories." Just before "20", as the close of the wire is called, there was a vote for a dinner next year and thanks for the committee, consisting of W. S. Meek, H. D. Grube and R. A. Mooney.

Man and Wife Killed by Train in Storm

Special to the Telegraph
 Altoona, Pa., Jan. 17.—Caught in a cut on the Pennsylvania railroad near Union Furnace last night, and blinded by a snowstorm, John Stach and his wife Mary were struck by a train and killed outright. Each was carrying a child at the time, 4-year-old Mary being in the father's arms and 2-year-old Annie in the mother's.

The children escaped with comparatively slight injuries. The fatality occurred while the family was returning from Tyrone, where they had spent the evening. They arrived at Union Furnace on a local, and started through the cut as the shortest way to their home. The wind was beating the fine snow in their faces. Hearing a train approaching they stepped on an adjoining track and were run down by a freight. Husband and wife were hurled to the tracks, and the children knocked from their arms.

Fire and Flood Causes Damage of Many Millions

Special to the Telegraph
 Christiania, Jan. 17.—Twenty thousand persons are homeless in Bergen as a result of a fire which swept the city early yesterday, causing property damage estimated at not less than $40,000,000.
 The fire, which originated in the business district, gained rapid headway. The flames were fanned by a gale and soon the largest buildings, hotels, banks, electric plant, newspaper offices, telephone and telegraph stations were destroyed. At least a third of the city was burned.
 Efforts of the firemen and police to control the conflagration as the flames swept into the residential section proved futile, and dynamite was used to blow up the buildings in the path of the fire. Two persons are reported to have lost their lives.

Bandits Shoot Up Store in Wild West Style

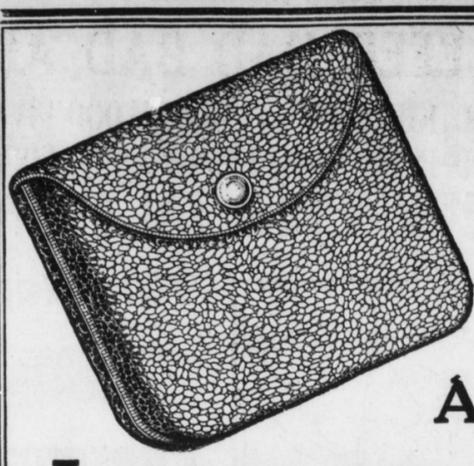

Lebanon, Pa., Jan. 17.—Five masked and heavily armed men entered the general store of J. Warren Light, in East Lebanon, just before midnight Saturday, and held up the place in true western style.
 Without giving the three clerks in the store at the time any opportunity to obey the command, "hands up!" they opened fire. There was a rush for the doors on the part of the clerks, whose cries of alarm and the noise of the fusillade of shots aroused the neighborhood.
 Police rushed to the scene, but the masked men had fled, leaving, untouched, the contents of the cash register, amounting to $110. None of the clerks was injured.

Veteran's Head Crushed With Bolt as He Sleeps

Special to the Telegraph
 Souderton, Pa., Jan. 17.—Thomas Barrett, a veteran of the Civil War, was murdered last night in an occupied barn on the Moyer farm, on the outskirts of this place. His skull was beaten in with a bolt.
 For several years Barrett has slept in a stall in the cow stable, and here he was murdered. On the front door of the barn were bloody finger prints, and to preserve them as evidence that and Kramer's son Bert, aged 35, were away by direction of Coroner McGlathery. The authorities believe robbery prompted the act. Barrett was a pensioner and besides earned money working at odd jobs.

Mexican Bandits Kill Former Pennsylvanians

Special to the Telegraph
 Hazleton, Pa., Jan. 17.—W. S. Troy, of Hazleton, has received word that his cousin, David Kramer, aged 53, and Kramer's son Bert, aged 35, were killed by Mexican bandits between Guerrero and Mimica.
 The Kramer family lived at Zion's Grove a few years ago, the father running a saw mill. Later they moved to Arkansas and then to Mexico, where they opened a big ranch. The murders occurred during a Villista raid.

2,500 WOMEN NOW ENROLLED

Pledge Their Motors, Homes and Work of Their Hands to U. S. in Case of War

Philadelphia, Jan. 17.—More than 2,500 prominent women from every section of the State of Pennsylvania have enlisted in the Pennsylvania Women's Division for National Preparedness since the great rally held recently by that organization in the Garrick Theater, this city. These women, many of them leaders in society, pledged their motors, their homes and the work of their hands to the service of the United States, should war or any other calamity demand their services.
 Immediately following the monster meeting, which was addressed by Major General Wood, commander of the Department of the East of the United States Army, more than 1,000 of the 1,500 women in the audience enrolled in the preparedness body. Not only did these representative women from various sections of the State enlist in the movement, but they readily volunteered their services in a State-wide enrollment campaign soon to be inaugurated by the Pennsylvania Women's Division for National Preparedness.
 At a special meeting called by Mrs. George W. Childs Drexel, the Division's president and organizer, tentative plans were decided upon for the State-wide campaign. An urgent plea for the women of the State to enroll in the movement was made by Mrs. Walter King Sharpe, of Chambersburg, a vice-president of the Division.

Prepare Big Campaign

Mrs. Sharpe, in explaining the objects of the Division to the assembled women, declared that it is the duty of every woman in Pennsylvania to render every possible aid to the government should the country be plunged into war. She said that the work of the division will not conflict with the work of the Red Cross, but would gladly co-operate with that body.
 Announcement was made to-day at the headquarters of the Division, at 104-111 Middle City Building, 34 South Seventeenth street, that arrangements are nearing completion for the State-wide enrollment campaign. It is the intention of the Division to send out a corps of speakers to every section of Pennsylvania to explain the objects of the division. The speakers will confine their efforts to addressing women's organizations. A number of prominent women have already volunteered their services as speakers.

BABE DEAD IN EXPLOSION

Special to the Telegraph
 Fayette City, Pa., Jan. 17.—A year-old son of Paul Fister, was killed and thirteen families were made homeless near here yesterday morning when fourteen houses of the Pittsburgh Coal Company, one of them vacant, were burned, causing $25,000 loss.

PART ECLIPSE OF THE MOON

Visible Here Jan. 20th; Some Notes of Celestial News Interest Given Here

The month of January will present a number of unusual occurrences in the astronomical world, says Professor C. R. Heinely, instructor of astronomy at the York high school.
 The constellations which are visible during the month are the most brilliant of the entire year. Orion, with its bright star Rigel, is high up in the sky in early evening. Canis Major, with Sirius, commonly known as the Dog Star, is found in the southeast. Almost directly overhead are Daurus, the Pleiades and Aldebaran. In the eastern sky will be seen Leo, the last of the winter constellations. This star is one of a group which forms a sickle. Regulus is the last star in the handle of the sickle. The Big Dipper will be found low in the sky with the handle pointing toward the northern horizon.
 Added to this dome of brilliant stars are the naked-eye planets Mercury, Venus, Mars, Jupiter and Saturn, all shining in the evening. About the middle of the month Mercury will be seen shining low in the sky in the twilight. By February 4 it will be the morning star.

The planet Venus, visible for some time in the southeastern sky, will continue to shine longer and will grow more brilliant each night until April 23. This planet will attain its greatest brilliancy about a month later.
 Jupiter appears in the western sky but sets early in the evening. Saturn with its ring is in the southeast in the constellation Gemini, Mars, is moving westward among the stars, becoming larger and brighter each night; it will be seen in the constellation Leo close to the sickle and will be recognized easily, as it is almost blood-red in color. During the early part of next month it will have reached its nearest approach to the earth.
 Another interesting feature will be a partial eclipse of the moon. This will occur in the early morning, January 20. About one-seventh of the moon's diameter will be covered by the earth's shadow. The entire phenomenon, from first to last contacts, will consume about 1 hour and 29 minutes.

One of the most beautiful objects in the sky during this month will be the wonderful variable star Mira, shining in the southwest, in the constellation Cetus. Mira usually gives a faint light, but at an interval of about every eleven months it rapidly becomes brightening until its brilliancy is increased several thousand times. Mira reaches its maximum brilliancy about January 8. No satisfactory explanation has been advanced as yet for this periodic change.
