NEWSPAPERS OF STEELTON NO DOUBT ABOUT LOAN'S LEGALITY

Steel Corporation Books Orders For 50,000 Tons of Plates For Vessels

The Iron Age in its weekly review of the steel trades to-day says: "Some increase in the amount of semifinished steel available for early delivery in the Pittsburgh district is the latest indication of lessening strain in the steel trade. As additional new capacity is finished in the next four or five months less is likely to be heard of a steel shortage."

The general demands of shipyards as a factor in sustaining plate prices regardless of the war are getting more attention. The Steel Corporation's latest bookings include 50,000 tons of plates and shapes for vessel work, delivery in the second half of 1917, and one large plate producer has contracted with shipbuilders to supply half its entire output in the same period.

A total of 50,000 tons of new sub-way and elevated work is soon to be placed in New York and bridges still figure prominently in Eastern lettings. The West Coast has been the beneficiary of the high prices are cutting down fabricating operations. In April the new work let amounted to 72.5 per cent. of full capacity, which is rated at 100 per cent. of capacity. Paris to-day reports the capture of a German fortified position on the northeast slope of the hill.

Other operations in the Verdun region, according to the Paris afternoon bulletin, were confined to a successful raid by the French on German trenches north of Hill 287, west of Hill 304, and to heavy firing along the front which has active all along this front during the night.

What to Do to Get Fat and Increase Weight

The Real Cause of Thinness Most people eat from four to six pounds of good, solid, fat-making food every day and still do not increase in weight one ounce, while on the other hand many of the plump, chunky folks eat very lightly and keep gaining all the time. It's a fact that the nature of the individual, it isn't Nature's way at all.

Most people stay thin because their powers of assimilation are defective. They absorb just enough of the food they eat to maintain life and a semblance of health and strength. Stuffing won't help them. A dozen meals a day, a patent drug, but in the most people need is something that will prepare the intestines until they can absorb their blood can absorb them. Some things too, that will multiply their red blood corpuscles and increase their blood carrying power.

For such a condition it is well to recommend eating a Sargol tablet with every meal. Sargol is not, as some believe, a patent drug, but is simply a careful combination of six of the most effective and powerful assimilative and blood-building elements known to chemistry. It is absolutely harmless, yet has been wonderfully effective and has made thousands of people plump, often, according to reports of users, has the effect of increasing the weight of a thin man or woman from three to five pounds a week. Sargol is sold by George A. Gorgas and other good druggists everywhere on a positive guarantee of weight increase or money back.—Advertisement.

KNOW OF REVOLT FAR IN ADVANCE

(Continued From First Page.) bellion broke out. The government had received advice, said Sir Matthew, that an attempt would be made to land arms in Ireland from German submarines; also that rifles had been purchased from Irish soldiers on home leave, while others had been taken into the country in passenger baggage.

Small Section Disloyal The former under secretary gave this testimony in the course of a long statement outlining the formation of the national volunteers, of which he declared a small section only had shown themselves disloyal, the leaders of this section having issued a manifesto declaring that Ireland should provide for its own defense and indicating an intention to establish a free national government of Ireland. The leaders of the movement, he said, directed their efforts to securing more rifles and ammunition and to storing as large an amount of material as possible. This was where the real danger came from, he added, as it was felt that an attempt at disarmament might lead to bloodshed.

Thought Police Strong The executives in Ireland being in possession of sufficient evidence of the association of the movement's leaders with a foreign enemy, continued Sir Matthew, decided upon their arrest, and were discussing the matter on April 24 when the rebellion broke out. He defended the failure of the government to disarm the volunteers on the ground that such action might have alienated the sympathies of many loyal volunteers and added:

"There are 25,000 Irish Catholics enlisted in the army."

The royal Irish constabulary was considered strong enough to cope with disorders, the witness continued. A mobile force of 500 mounted men and 2,000 others, with three machine guns, were at the disposal of the government, with 2,500 men from the Curragh, were thought capable of dealing with the outbreak in Dublin, but, contrary to expectations, they were insufficient.

The club hopes to get out an even bigger delegation this year than last for Good Roads Day, May 25, when it is hoped between 300 and 400 will be at work on the roads.

Under the direction of the State Highway Department a force of volunteers will drill holes in the rock at Rife Hill in order that the State employes may later blow it away with dynamite and widen the highway at that point so two teams may pass, and where sharp curves will be reduced and sand flats removed and filled with crushed stone.

The ladies of the town have volunteered as they did last year to organize a commissary department. Lunches will be packed and shipped by automobile to the workers and ladies will serve hot coffee at various points along the road.

Motor club runs advertising the observance will be held carrying speakers to Halifax, Berrysburg and Elizabethtown to work up interest. The motorists will assemble at East Park on the morning of Good Roads Day at York and go to the various sections. The State will provide the tools.
