

FACE ONE MASS OF BIG PIMPLES

And Blackheads. Skin Awfully Sore and Would Itch. Was Almost Crazy. Could Hardly Rest.

HEALED BY CUTICURA SOAP AND OINTMENT

"My face was one mass of pimples and blackheads. The pimples were big, red ones and festered and came to a head and my skin was awfully sore. Before long my face was so full of pimples that I could not get a pinhead between them. I was a sight. The pimples would itch and I was almost crazy. At night I could hardly rest. Then I tried Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I cleansed my face at night and then applied the Cuticura Ointment and in the morning washed with the Cuticura Soap. I kept this up for six weeks, and I was completely healed." (Signed) Miss Mae Platts, 447 E. King St., York, Pa., Aug. 15, 1915.

Hot Water for Sick Headaches

Tells why everyone should drink hot water with phosphate in it before breakfast.

Headache of any kind, is caused by auto-intoxication—which means self-poisoning. Liver and bowel poisons called toxins, sucked into the blood, through the lymph ducts, excite the heart which pumps the blood so fast that it congests in the smaller arteries and veins of the head producing violent, throbbing pain and distress, called headache. You become nervous, despondent, sick, feverish and miserable, your meals sour and almost nauseate you. Then you resort to acetanilide, aspirin or the bromides which temporarily relieve but do not rid the blood of these irritating toxins.

A glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, drunk before breakfast for awhile, will not only wash these poisons from your system and cure you of headache but will cleanse, purify and freshen the entire alimentary canal.

Ask your pharmacist for a quarter pound of limestone phosphate. It is inexpensive, harmless as sugar, and almost tasteless, except for a sourish twinge which is not unpleasant. If you aren't feeling your best, if tongue is coated or you wake up with bad taste, foul breath or have colds, indigestion, biliousness, constipation or sour, acid stomach, begin with phosphate hot water cure to rid your system of toxins and poisons.

COMB SAGE TEA INTO GRAY HAIR

Darkens Beautifully and Restores Its Natural Color and Lustre at Once

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea, with sulphur and alcohol added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get the ready-to-use preparation improved by the addition of other ingredients, costing about 50 cents a large bottle, at drug stores, known as "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," thus avoiding a lot of trouble. While gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking the small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared. After another application or two your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant and you appear years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

The Social Pirates

Story No. 5

The Millionaire Plunger Plot by George Bronson Howard. Novelization by Hugh C. Weir. Copyright Kalem Company.

And so the enslavement of Gerry was begun. It went on apace. Before long the state of his feelings toward Mona was no longer a secret. He was ready to do anything to win her. But Mona pretended a blissful unconsciousness, and Gerry—Gerry the heartbreaker, the squire of dames—was actually afraid of her! He was afraid to put his fate to the test. Sometimes, it seemed to him, Mona liked him immensely. But there were other times when she was cold and distant, and he was never sure which way Mona would greet him when he came, with the fast-growing portfolio of sketches of the bungalow he was to build for her. He never saw Mary when he called, as he did, now, nearly every afternoon. If she was in when he came she always stayed in her own room; if she was out, she looked up at the window when she neared the house. If Gerry was calling, Mona always arranged a signal, and Mary, seeing it, would turn and walk for an hour or so, to give Gerry time to leave.

"It seems a shame, almost—he's so easy," said Mary. "I hate him—and it may be easy for you, but it isn't for me," said Mona. He's always trying to make love to me! And I—I wouldn't marry him if he were the only man on earth! "You certainly would not, my dear," said Mary. "I'd marry him first!" "All joking aside, though," said Mona, "if this is it's time to put your plan into execution. Jack Deering knows his part thoroughly. And I think Gerry is as ripe for plucking now as he ever will be."

"I've been thinking that myself, Mona. Suppose you let him take you to lunch tomorrow. He asked you, didn't he?" "Yes—and I said I'd telephone him in the morning." "All right. Tell him to make it the San Marco at 1 o'clock. I'll be there—and you can notice me, after you get comfortably settled at your own table. You know what to do? We've rehearsed it often enough." "Half past twelve," said Mona, after a moment's thought. "It's dreadfully early, but we don't want to leave too little time, if we really decide we can start something tomorrow."

"All right—I think that's a good idea, Mona. I'll let Jack Deering know tonight then. Well—the great adventure is really going to begin at last! The preliminary skirmish is over. Not nervous, are you?" "Not even a little bit! There's no reason to be! I know Gerry, you see?" "Nothing more? Are you sure?" asked Gerry.

They were finishing their lunch at the San Marco. Mona had accepted very few invitations from him; it was her desire that he should regard her company at lunch or dinner as an event, and she had been thoroughly successful in this regard. He was all attention; he was ready to meet, to anticipate, indeed, her slightest wish. Certainly he was reduced to exactly the condition that Mona and Mary wanted him to be in!

"This coffee is delicious—no, nothing else, thanks," said Mona. "You ordered a heavenly lunch, Oh!" Her exclamation was caused by the sight of Mary, who sat at a table on the opposite side of the room. She bowed delightedly.

"What is that?" asked Gerry, naturally. "Mary Burnett," answered Mona. "She hasn't seen her for years. I didn't know she was in town. Mary's terribly proud, and she never has much money, so she has rather avoided me and some other old friends. I'm afraid, because—"

"I understand," said Gerry. "It's the people you like best who always seem to feel that way—the ones you don't like are never bashful because they're poor!" "I'd like you to meet her," said Mona. "I wonder if she'd come over and have some coffee with us?"

It proved that Mary would—which wasn't surprising, since the whole episode had been carefully planned, down to the last detail, the night before. Gerry smiled as the girls gushingly expressed their delight at seeing one another again, which seemed to him to be entirely unaffected. He admired Mona's tact in talking to the girl who was less fortunate than herself; it seemed to him that it was exquisite.

"That's what I mean," said Gerry. "I ought to do it," said Gerry. "Gee—I'm glad to see a mean outfit like that stung any old time!" "That's what I mean," said Mary. "But he doesn't like the idea—and, beside, he says it would take some money, and he hasn't got enough to make it worth while."

"I could lend him some," said Mona, impulsively. "If that isn't just like you!" said Mary. Listen to her, Mr. Gerry! She doesn't even know what it is—and she's willing to take a chance!" "It's people who do that who get the big rewards, though," said Gerry. He had an inkling of what was in the wind. He was decidedly interested and quite glad that Mona had seen her old schoolmate.

To Be Continued Tomorrow.

"Americanization" Will Be Discussed by 9,000 Women

By Associated Press New York, May 19. — Prohibition suffrage, preparedness and hats will be taboo at the biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which opens here next Wednesday, according to an announcement made to-day by the local board of arrangements. Workmen were busy to-day arranging checkrooms for the 9,000 hats of the 9,000 delegates who will attend the convention. Not a hat must be seen on the floor of the convention hall, according to those in charge.

The first of the great army of women delegates representing clubs in every part of the country whose memberships total 2,500,000, are expected to arrive here Saturday morning.

The convention will be opened by addresses of welcome by Governor Whitman and Mayor Mitchell. The main topic for discussion at the convention will be "Americanization" the education of women immigrants in the English language and American ideals.

ASTRONOMICAL CHARITY.

In the June Woman's Home Companion Hayden Carruth says: "We think that Mr. Carnegie's advice to folks with surplus wealth—to devote it to promoting astronomy—was far from wise advice. Promoting astronomy at present seems to us much like a man who, when his house is afire, takes out a pair of manicure scissors and begins to trim the cat's whiskers."
