HUGHES SCORES WILSON'S POLICY

power to impose or collect tariff duties except for the purpose of revenue."
We are told in its present platform that there have been "momentous changes" in the last two years, and hence, repudiating its former attitude, the Democratic party now declares for a "nonpartisan tariff commission."
For Scientific Protection
But have the "momentous changes" incident to the European war changed the constitution of the United States? Is it proposed to use a tariff commission to frame a tariff for revenue only? Is the opposing party ready to confess that for generations it has misread the constitution? Is that party now prepared to accept the protective principle? Rather, so far as the tariff is concerned, it would appear to be without principle.
Witness its action in connection with the sugar duties, its reaffirmation of the doctrine of a revenue tariff, its dyestuffs proposal and its formulation in lieu of protective duties of an "anti-dumping" provision, the terms of which are sufficient to show its ineffective character!

The Republican party stands for the principle of protection. We must apply that principle fairly, without abuses, in as scientific a manner as possible; and congress should be aided by the investigations of an expert body. We stand for the safeguarding of our economic independence, for the development of American industry, for the maintenance of American standards of living. We propose that in the competitive struggle that is about to come the American workman shall not suffer.
The Republican party is not a sectional party. It thinks and plans nationally. Its policies are for the promotion of the prosperity of every part of the country, south, east, north and west. It is not simply a question of a wise adjustment of the tariff in accordance with sound principle, but there is also the need in other respects for stable conditions for commercial and industrial progress.

If we are to meet effectively the conditions which will arise after the war is over, we must put our house in order. Let it be understood that the public right is to be maintained without fear or favor. But let us show that we can do this without impairing the essential agencies of progress.
Must Aid Honest Enterprise.
There is no forward movement, no endeavor to promote social justice, which in the first analysis does not rest upon the condition that there shall be a stable basis for honest enterprise. This subject has several important phases to which at this time I can allude only briefly. We should place our transportation system on a sure footing. We should be able wisely to adjust our regulative powers so that the fundamental object of protecting the public interest can be fully secured without uncertainties or conflicts and without hampering the development and expansion of transportation facilities. The national end may be accomplished without the sacrifice of any interest that is essentially local, or without weakening public control.
Our present system is crude and inadequate. Moreover, in the severe economic struggle that is before us, and in seeking as we should to promote our productive industries and to expand our commerce—notably our foreign commerce—we shall require the most efficient organization, quite as efficient as that found in any nation abroad. There must be no unnecessary wastes and no arbitrary obstructions.
We have determined to cut out, root and branch, monopolistic practices, but we can do this without hobbling enterprise or narrowing the scope of legitimate achievement. Again, we must build up our merchant marine. It will not aid to put the government into competition with private owners. That it seems a counsel of folly. A surer way of destroying the promise of our foreign trade could hardly be devised. It has well been asked: Does the government intend to operate at a profit or at a loss? We need the encouragement and protection of government for our shipping industry, but it cannot afford to have the government as a competitor.
Urges Protection of Labor Interests
We stand for the conservation of the just interests of labor. We do not desire production, or trade, or efficiency in either, for its own sake, but for the betterment of the lives of human beings. We shall not have any lasting industrial property, unless we buttress our industrial endeavors by adequate means for the protection of health; for the elimination of unnessary perils to life and limb; for the safeguarding of our future through proper laws for protection of women and children in industry; for increasing opportunities for education and training.

We should be solicitous to inquire carefully into every grievance, remembering that there are few disputes which cannot easily be adjusted if there be an impartial examination of the facts.
We make common cause in this country, not for a few, but for all; and our watchword must be co-operation, not exploitation. No plans will be adequate save as they are in accord with genuine democratic sympathy.
I stand for adequate federal workmen's compensation laws, dealing not only with the employes of government, but with those employes who are engaged in inter-State commerce, and are subject to other hazard of injury, so that those activities which are within the sphere of the constitutional authority of Congress may be dealt with under a suitable law.
For Conservation of Resources
We promise to promote by every practicable means our agricultural interests, and we include in this program an effective system of rural credits. We favor the wise conservation of our natural resources. We desire not only that they shall be safeguarded, but that they shall be adequately developed and used to the utmost public advantage.
We turn to other considerations of important policy. One of these is our attitude toward the Philippines. That, I may say, is not a question of self-interest. We have assumed international obligations which we should not permit ourselves to evade. A breach of trust is not an admissible American policy, though our opponents have seemed to consider it such. We should administer government in the Philippines with a full recognition of our international duty, without partisanship, with the aim of maintaining the highest stands of expert administration, and in the interest of the Filipino. This is a matter of national honor.
Would Pass Woman Suffrage
I endorse the declaration in the platform in favor of woman suffrage. I do not consider it necessary to review the arguments usually advanced on the one side or the other, as my own convictions proceed from a somewhat different point of view.
Some time ago, a consideration of our economic conditions and tendencies, of the position of women in gainful occupations, of the nature and course of the demand, led me to the conclusion that the granting of suffrage to women is inevitable.
Opposition may delay, but in my judgment cannot defeat this movement. Nor can I see any advantages in the delay which can possibly offset the disadvantages which are necessarily incident to the continued agitation.

Facts should be squarely met. We shall have a constantly intensified effort and a distinctly feminine movement constantly perfecting its organization to the subversion of normal political issues. We shall have a struggle increasing in bitterness, which I believe to be inimical to our welfare.
If women are to have the vote, as I believe they are, it seems to me entirely clear that in the interest of the public life of this country, the contest should be ended promptly. I favor the vote for women.
Stands by Civil Service Laws
We have erected every effort to improve conditions in the menace of incompetent administration. It is an extraordinary notion that democracy can be faithfully served by inexperienced men. Democracy needs exact knowledge, special skill and thorough training in its servants. I have already spoken of the disregard of proper standards, in numerous instances, in appointments to the diplomatic service.
Unfortunately, there has been a similar disregard of executive responsibility in appointments to important administrative positions in our domestic service. Even with a respect to technical bureaus, the demands of science have been compelled to yield to the demands of politics.
We have erected against importunities of spoilsmen the barriers of the civil service laws, but under the present administration enactments providing for the creation of large numbers of places have been deliberately removed from the merit system. The principles of our civil service laws have been shamelessly violated. We stand for fidelity to these principles and their consistent application. And, further, it is our purpose that administrative chiefs shall be men of special competence, eminently qualified for their important work.
Time For Budget System
Our opponents promised economy, but they have shown a reckless extravagance. They have been wasteful and profligate. It is time that we had fiscal reform. We demand a simple business-like budget. I believe it is only through a responsible budget, proposed by the executive, that we shall avoid financial waste and secure proper administrative efficiency and a well-balanced consideration of new administrative proposals.
We live in a fateful hour. In a true sense, the contest for the preservation of the nation is never ended. We must still be imbued with the spirit of heroic sacrifice which gave us our country and brought us safely through the days of civil war.

We renew our pledge to the ancient ideals of individual liberty, of opportunity denied to none because of race or creed, of unwavering loyalty.
We have a vision of America prepared and secure; strong and just; equal to her task; an exemplar of the capacity and efficiency of a free people. I endorse the platform adopted by the but for want of sufficient bids was sold.
