

COUNTRY CLUB SINKS DEEP WELL

Permanently Assured of Unfailing Water Supply on New Club Site

Work on the new site of the Country Club of Harrisburg at Fort Hunter is progressing rapidly. Ground was broken several weeks ago for the club house and the eighteen-hole golf course is rounding into shape very satisfactorily in the opinion of those who have inspected the greens and fairways.

The problem of the water supply, probably the most essential element in the future welfare of the club, has been solved by the Farley Gannett firm of consulting engineers, the work being under the direct supervision of Theodore E. Seelye. After eliminating three alternate sources of supply the final decision to sink a well was made. The Dauphin Consolidated Water Company would have proved satisfactory except that the pipes were too distant and the water too low. Fishing Creek was given up because it would have required pumping and the water was found to be impure; a spring on the mountain side was considered but the danger of its running dry eliminated it. So the engineers went down 184 feet through 100 feet of sandy shale and struck a vein of deliciously soft water. The well has already been sunk and the water will be forced by an electrically driven deep well pump into a reservoir of 20,000 gallons capacity, which will be of concrete lime, and located way up on the mountain 2,300 feet south of the clubhouse.

Unfailing Supply of Water Guaranteed
In the opinion of the engineers who had charge of the work of investigation, the well system is best from every standpoint under the circumstances, inasmuch as it is the cheapest method and guarantees an unfailing supply of fresh water for all purposes. The well is enclosed in a stone pumphouse. Water will be carried through 6-inch woodstove pipes, which it is expected will be laid within ten days. The whole job will probably be completed in a month and when put into operation the daily consumption of water will range from 4,500 to 10,000 gallons per day in the summer.

Several fire plugs at various points throughout the grounds and a comprehensive piping system for watering the greens on the course will be installed. A public tank about 1,000 feet from the clubhouse will drain into the creek for sewage disposal.

Ground was broken for the clubhouse on July 27 and work on the foundations was scheduled to start today, according to Robert G. Goldsborough, chairman of the building committee. The tennis courts are being graded and the clubhouse is being roofed before winter sets in, the chances are it will be ready for occupancy by late Spring of 1917.

The naval base, it was said, would be located on one of two islands within easy steaming distance of Corinto, the principal seaport of Nicaragua. The San Diego, with Admiral Caperton aboard, will proceed to the Gulf of Fonseca to make a survey of the islands about September.

CONKLIN TO BE REAPPOINTED

Forestry Commissioner Will Be Named For His Fourth Term Very Soon

Reappointment of Robert S. Conklin, state forestry commissioner since 1904, is expected to be made soon after the return of Governor Brumbaugh from Maine. Mr. Conklin's last term, to which he was appointed by Governor Tenor, expired some months ago. The Governor held it over until just before his vacation and then left for Maine without acting.

Mr. Conklin has been connected with the Department of Forestry since 1894, soon after it was erected into a department and knows more about its operation than any one in the State government. He was made deputy commissioner in 1903 and succeeded Dr. J. T. Rothrock, who was the first commissioner and who trained Mr. Conklin and has been his adviser ever since. Prior to that Mr. Conklin was connected with the Legislature. He comes from Lancaster county.

Company Arrives—The Boalsburg machine gun company of the First Cavalry reached the mobilization camp yesterday and will be mustered and sent South soon. There is no longer any doubt of the company being accepted and no one seems to be able to understand the attitude of officials who did not accept it when it was first offered.

Cold Storage Opinion—Section 16 of the cold storage act of 1915, was declared unconstitutional in a decision handed down by Judge J. McF. Carpenter yesterday in Pittsburgh. The opinion was the outgrowth of a bill of demurrer filed by Edward S. Nolan, a wholesale dealer in butter and eggs, seeking to enjoin agents of the dairy and food division of the Department of Agriculture of Pennsylvania from placing tags or other markings of any kind upon carton tubs of butter and from preventing the sale of the product by Nolan. The court held that the section conflicts with the fourteenth amendment to the commission in that it violates the provisions of the "declaration of rights."
