OIL STRIKE A HOAX

Campers Poured Kerosene Down a Well; Find Excited Town
Sharon, Pa., Sept. 5.—Kerosene oil poured down a pump in front of the home of Jerome Hawkins, at Clarksville, by a party of campers as a joke resulted in a considerable monetary loss to many residents of the town, as well as great excitement among oil men, who swarmed into the village seeking oil leases wherever they could be had.

The kerosene was poured down last Thursday morning. The pump is patronized by many of the village folks and when water drawn from the well showed heavy traces of oil excitement grew intense. Many persons paid big bonuses for leases on land adjacent to the "oil strike." The hoax became public property yesterday. The campers left.

MOVIES TAKEN OF THE KIPONA

Great Water Fete Will Have Important Place in Film of Harrisburg

All the little thrills, the exciting races and close finishes, the heartrending swimming struggles, the floats and crowds of Harrisburg's first annual Kipona will be witnessed again by those interested in motion pictures made by the Fairlie Film Company yesterday.

The camera man that is making a big film of Harrisburg was everywhere on the river during the Kipona events. He filmed the pretty girl swimmers as they shot along towards the finish and again as they emerged like mermaids from the stream; he caught the canoe races, crowds and the girl aquaplaner—in fact a complete record of the Kipona was made and will be shown shortly in a local theater.

The camera man, in his tour of the points of interest, has made films of St. Patrick's cathedral, the city entrance of the panoramic view from the Mulberry street bridge, of the Fifth Street Methodist Episcopal Church, Bethlehem Lutheran Church, St. Stephen's Church, congregations leaving these churches, the John Harris home, grave and ferry tablet, many scenes of the State encampment at Mt. Getz, city filtration plant, the Boyer city car, courthouse, Rotary club luncheon at Municipal Port to-day and other scenes of interest.
