

SUGGESTIONS TO SICK WOMEN

How Many Are Restored To Health.

First.—Almost every operation in our hospitals performed upon women becomes necessary through neglect of such symptoms as backache, irregular and painful periods, displacements, pain in the side, burning sensation in the stomach, bearing down pains, nervousness, dizziness and sleeplessness.

Second.—The medicine most successful in relieving female ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It regulates and strengthens the organism; it overcomes disease.

For forty years it has been making women strong and well, relieving backache, nervousness, ulceration and inflammation, weakness, displacements, irregularity and periodic pains. It has also proved invaluable in preparing for childbirth and the Change of Life.

Third.—The great number of unsolicited testimonials on file at the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., many of which are from time to time published by permission, are proof of the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, in the treatment of female ills.

Fourth.—Every ailing woman in the United States is cordially invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for special advice. It is free, will bring you health and may save your life.

ORPHEUM—Tuesday evening, October 10—Cohan and Harris present "Hit-the-Trail-Holiday."

Wednesday night, October 11—Fritz Kreisler, benefit S. P. C. A. Friday and Saturday, with daily matinees, October 13 and 14—Oliver Morosco offers "Feg o' My Heart."

MAJESTIC—Vaudeville. COLONIAL—"The Social Secretary." GRAND—"Crown Prince's Double." REGENT—"Little Lady Eileen." VICTORIA—"The Upheaval."

Coming direct from a most successful engagement of one year in New York City, George M. Cohan's "Hit-the-Trail-Holiday" will be presented at the Orpheum Theater to-morrow evening.

The idea for the story of "Hit-the-Trail-Holiday" was suggested by George Middleton and Guy Bolton. It has to do with a most superior sort of Broadway bartender, who finds himself in a small New England village, is forced, through a series of natural events, into joining a temperance movement.

How the erstwhile drink mixer turns a "dry" into a "wet" by the force of his mental and physical prowess is told in four swift-moving acts that make for the heartiest sort of laughter.

In presenting to our patrons to-day's attraction, "The Upheaval," the Victoria offers a treat for the first time in this city at the Victoria.

Lionel Barrymore, in "The Upheaval," the man whom all people despise because of his father's reputation before him. Jim Gordon, as the central figure of the story, is the victim of circumstances for the reason that all the money he inherited from his father was made by corrupt methods in politics. But Jim Gordon wins back the respect of everybody in a most interesting way. In this great play the powerful influence he has in a community is also demonstrated. House Peters, in "The Rail Rider," will be the headliner for Tuesday.

One of the most interesting studies in make-up ever seen on the screen is afforded by Norma Talmadge in "The Social Secretary."

Two Norma Talmadges in play, "The Social Secretary," shown at the Colonial Theater to-day and to-morrow. In this new play she is seen as a beautiful young woman who has to earn her own living, and is so annoyed by the unwelcome attentions of her employers that she adopts a disguise. In order to affect a decided change in her appearance she draws down the corners of her mouth and resurrects some long-forgotten gowns. But even then a nice-looking girl wants to see how she naturally looks once in a while, and this is what gets the pretty star in trouble again. Lovers of good, high-class society dramas, that are staged in a superior manner, will not be disappointed in this play. Fay Tincher, in one of the usual funny Triangle comedies, called "Love's Getaway," will be seen on the same program. During the World's Series baseball games, the pictures will be suspended for a short time in the afternoon, Wednesday and Thursday. William Farnum will be seen in "The End of the Trail," a master photoplay.

The comedy, "Hit-the-Trail-Holiday," is George M. Cohan in his merriest mood. The play depicts the experience of a New York bartender, who, accepting a position in a hotel in a thriving village, becomes interested in a temperance movement and foregoes the art of drink-mixing for the prohibition life.

"Hit-the-Trail-Holiday" is a play of types to which Mr. Cohan has succeeded in transplanting a number of very human and easily recognized characters, one of which is visualized by Frank Otto, as Billy Holliday. The local date is Tuesday evening at the Orpheum.

TWO ARTISTS TO APPEAR TOMORROW EVENING AT FAHNESTOCK HALL

SASCHA JACOBINOFF When Sascha Jacobinoff, the young American violinist, went to Europe to study, he was not discouraged by the report that Carl Flesch, the master violinist, took but six pupils a year. With characteristic determination he obtained a hearing and was one of the favored half dozen who obtained the benefits of the great master's art.

ELSA LYONS COOK Harrisburg music lovers will have an opportunity to hear this young violinist in his first American recital at Fahnestock Hall, next Tuesday evening, October 10, at 8:15. He will be assisted by Elisa Lyons Cook, an American dramatic soprano.

COMING—WED. AND THUR. Wm. Farnum in "THE TRAIL"

The sale of seats for the engagement of "Feg o' My Heart," which Oliver Morosco is sending to the Orpheum, Wednesday day, with daily matinees, will open Wednesday morning. The company that will be seen here is as nearly the equal of the original cast as it is possible to make it.

Mr. Morosco personally engaged the players and carefully watched all rehearsals, in order to satisfy himself that the performance would be as good as that given by the New York company.

Fritz Kreisler, who will appear in violin recital at the Orpheum, Wednesday evening, for the benefit of the Harrisburg S. P. C. A., is again in town Friday and Saturday. One of his specialties is his revival of the wonderful music for the violin written in the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries and long since forgotten.

The third group he will play on Wednesday is composed of five delightful examples of this classic music, headed by the Paghiera of Padre Martini, who was born in Bologna, in 1706. He was taught music by his father, played the violin as a child and became one of the most important scientific musicians of his day. After being ordained as a priest in 1722, he was made organmaster at the Church of San Francesco, Bologna, where scholars flocked to him from all over Europe. He was a close student of philosophy, theology and mathematics and had a wonderful library of 17,000 volumes, given him by the scientist, those of the day. His music is largely sacred, very melodious and follows closely the traditions of the old Roman school.

One of the favorite Kreisler records is the "Abade Provencale" of Louis Couperin, which is also included in this group. The haunting loveliness of this ancient French air, reminiscent of the Troubadours, makes an instant appeal to an audience.

The closing number is more modern, being the popular "Caprice" of Wieniawski, the brilliant Polish violinist, who was one of the great concert violinists of the middle of the nineteenth century.

As Mr. Kreisler is especially generous with his program, a special hearing should be in his request to the president of the Harrisburg S. P. C. A., John T. Olmsted, who will present it to Mr. Kreisler.

An event of the current theatrical season which should stand out conspicuously is the coming production of "The House of Glass" by the Candler Theater, New York, last September and remained in the Metropolis until the advent of hot weather, a period of eight months. The element of novelty pervades the entire four acts of the play and the startling twists of situation and incident keep the auditor absorbed and the emotions tingling from beginning to end. Cohan and Harris have produced a company of distinction for the interpretation and the production is complete in every detail. The play will be seen in this city and at this theater Wednesday, October 11, with a special matinee at 2:15. Evening at 8:15.

A rare treat is said to be in store for patrons of the Majestic Theater the first half of this week, where Crossman's Six Entertainers, favorites of last season, are appearing. Their repertoire of vocal and instrumental musical numbers strike a responsive chord in the audience, while the stage setting and costumes are very attractive. Tommy Ray, in a little ofering entitled, "The Singing Fireman," is an added attraction on the bill. Mr. Ray, who is one of the survivors of the Lusitania, tells in an interesting way of a fireman's life on a big ocean steamer. A series of moving pictures, showing some of the hardships of such a life, are thrown on the screen. Other acts on the bill are: Weston and Claire, in an entertaining song and dance novelty; the Whipple-Houston Company, presenting a farce comedy, entitled "Spooks," and one other act.
