Mays Is Succeeded in Sixth by Foster; Jack Coombs Forced to Take Bench After Gardner Poles One Over River Field Wall in Seventh For Homer; Pfeiffer Pitches in his Place

The Brooklyn Nationals won their first world series game today, turning back the Boston Americans by a score of 4 to 3. The series now stands: Boston Americans, two; Brooklyn Nationals, one.

It was Brooklyn's lusty and timely stick that brought over the winning run for the National League champions. They had no difficulty negotiating Mays's underhand ball. The home folks played a smart fielding game and not an error marked their play.

The old veteran, Jack Coombs, started in the box for Brooklyn but he began to lose his effectiveness in the sixth inning when Boston put over two runs and in the seventh when Gardner knocked the ball over the fence for a home run. He signaled for a relief pitcher.

Admirers of Former Governor and Justice Throng Plaza of Pennsylvania Railroad Depot; Prominent Men on Local Committee Which Met Great Leader Here on Way to Hagerstown to Address Meeting

Accompanied to Harrisburg on Special Train by Senator E. E. Beidleman, State Committeeman Frank A. Smith and Col. Charles E. Covert; Sorry He Could Not Speak, but Extends His Greetings to Great Throng

Harrisburg gave a splendid greeting to Charles Evans Hughes, Republican candidate for president, when he passed through the city this afternoon on his way to Chambersburg and Hagerstown. Mr. Hughes was unable to make a speech because his physician had ordered him to conserve his voice for his engagements, but he spoke briefly in appreciation of the big outpouring of people from the city and vicinity who jammed the Union Station plaza and cheered him. "I am exceedingly sorry that I can not speak to the people of Harrisburg," said Mr. Hughes as he left the train. "I wish I could, but my physician has ordered me not to do so. But I want to greet the people here."

Mr. Hughes came from Philadelphia where he had addressed the big meeting last night and was accompanied to this city by Senator E. E. Beidleman, Frank A. Smith, State committeeman, and Charles E. Covert. When his train arrived Spencer C. Gilbert, chairman of the reception committee, waited on him at his car in company with State Treasurer Robert K. Young, Secretary of the Commonwealth Cyrus E. Woods, E. J. Stackpole and William M. Hargest, who escorted the nominee to the station.

The train platforms were filled with people from trains in the station who wished to greet the candidate and the upstairs platform and the waiting rooms were so jammed that a couple of dozen policemen had to work to keep the throngs from getting in the path of the candidate and his party. The appearance of the candidate was the signal for cheers and the crowd which was packed about the station took up the acclaim when the smiling face of the New Yorker appeared. There was something like the manner in which the redoubtable Colonel charges to a platform about the way Mr. Hughes rushed out to the edge of the carriage platform. "I wish I could make a speech, but I cannot do so," said he to Mr. Gilbert.

Residents of the city for weeks have been in a state of consternation because of the unchecked raids, which usually develop over each week-end.

FRENCH STRIKE BLOW SOUTH OF SOMME RIVER

Swing Across Stream; Great Battle in Volhynia and Galicia Rages

Increased activity south of the river Somme is reported by the French war office. For some time the main efforts of the French and British have been made north of the river, but last night the artillery was unusually active on the front between Denicourt and Lihons. This may be the prelude to another blow below the river, in accordance with the French policy of swinging the attack back and forth from one side of the river to the other. Although the great battle in Volhynia and Galicia apparently is continuing with the same ferocity that has marked the fighting since the new Russian offensive began, Petrograd reports that nothing of importance has occurred. Herlin is almost equally uncommunicative and few details are permitted to reach the outside world of this campaign, which represents the supreme effort of the Russians this season to break the Austro-German line and capture Lemberg.
