NOVEL HEATING PLAN

Carlisle, Pa., Jan. 19. — When the heating system of the hotel broke down, a novel method of warming the place was tried with success by William R. Kline, proprietor of the Cumberland Hotel here. One week ago the boiler of the heating plant went out of commission and a new one had to be secured. Faced with the problem of heating the 30 rooms of the building, Kline hit upon the plan of using a traction engine, the machine being taken alongside of the hotel, a pipe run under the pavement and in the hotel through which steam was forced.

Sander Predicts That Many Plant Diseases Will Come From Europe

Washington, Jan. 19. — Legislation to forbid importation of nursery stocks except by the Federal Department of Agriculture for experimental purposes was proposed to the American Forestry Association at its conference on the pine blister disease here to-day, as the only means of preventing spread of a multitude of insect pests and plant afflictions now threatening forests and farm crops. Nurseryman opposed the suggested legislation on the ground that high prices of many fruit trees and shrubs now imported would result from their propagation in this country.

J. G. Sanders, Pennsylvania State Zoologist, predicted that many plant diseases heretofore unknown would be imported from Europe unless a federal embargo is established.

Sharkskin Used In Eyeglasses

The newspapers have devoted much space recently in chronicling the visit of Alaskan representatives to the convention of the National Retail Shoe Dealers with the view of interesting the shoe manufacturers in utilizing sharkskin in the manufacture of shoes. For years the tough skin of sharks has been utilized in the manufacture of various articles of merchandise, among them being a "holdfast" nose-piece for eyeglass mountings. This nose-piece is not necessarily an expensive one but is guaranteed not to slip off the nose and is covered by patent letters. "Sharkskin" is the name of this mounting and will be found in the optical store of J. S. Belsinger, Optometrist, 295 Locust street.

The Public Service Commission to-day continued the hearing in the objections to the Pennsylvania Railroad's application for leave to refuse coal cars to coal operators who do not load from tipples. The hearing lasted until late last night and many soft coal operators opposed the order, some declaring that it would work great hardship and force them to suspend. One man said he had only been able to keep his force together by means of bonus payments and another said that he had given diamond pins as prizes to keep his men. The argument will be heard Tuesday.

The township of Baldwin, Allegheny county, filed two more complaints against jitney operators to-day. Several were filed early in the week. Deputy Attorney General W. M. Hargest has returned from Philadelphia, where he attended the Supreme Court.
