Miss Winnie Dock Says She Believes in Ginger

Miss Lavinia L. Dock, of Graeflenburg, known among a host of old acquaintances here as "Vinnie," was asked last week at her home if she really intended to be one of the White House pickets of the suffragists.

"I had the privilege of picketing for the English Women's Freedom League at the House of Commons in 1909 and intend taking my turn soon at our White House. My English experience gave me a deep conviction of the vast moral value of the silent protest. I said it did not gain the vote for English women is only to testify to the intense stubbornness of the refusal of justice by those in power."

"I am a woman of conviction," continued Miss Dock, "with many kinds of experience behind me, and I affirm that the more troublesome and perilous are the signs of the times, the more loudly and insistently should women make their protest against disfranchisement and their demand for political voice."

"It would seem nobler, more just, more truly 'American' if men instead of carping at us would stand forth to demand that ordinary political recognition for us which we have so long been denied and which is supposed to form the basis of our country's freedom."

"The work done by conventional bodies is valuable and indispensable, but the unconventional ones have always been the leaven that has leavened the whole. What would your gingerbread be without the ginger?"

WHAT POOR TEETH COST

Decayed teeth are causing more harm to the human race than alcohol, Dr. Albert C. Pones, of Bridgeport, Conn., says that approximately ninety-five millions of persons in the United States have decayed teeth, notes the Popular Science Monthly. Dentistry's next great step, in his opinion, is to wipe out or prevent tooth decay by a systematic campaign of education on the care of the teeth among schoolchildren.

TAKING TWO THOUSAND PICTURES A SECOND

Some day the scientific camera-man is going to photograph for us the thoughts and movements in nature which we have never been able to see because of their lightning swiftness. This camera-man, predicts the Popular Science Monthly for March, will have a camera capable of taking two thousand pictures per second—or possibly a camera which takes a continuous motion picture with no revolving shutter and intermittent film movement. He will, in fact, be able to photograph the fastest movements in nature.

Hogs Have No Need of Brains

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 21.—Contrary to the theory that hogs are an essential to animal equilibrium, four Holt county farmers are willing to testify that a 500-pound hog slaughtered recently at the farm home of James Collins, near Mound City, was found to have a perfectly empty brain pan.

Attesting the reputation of the four farmers for truth and veracity, the Mound City Journal accepts the story as true.
