CONVICTED OF MANSLAUGHTER

Jury in Case of Evan Malievac Brings Verdict in Perry County Court

New Bloomfield, Pa., April 14.—This morning the jury in the case of Evan Malievac, charged with killing Bezo Svetkovic, brought in a verdict of guilty of voluntary manslaughter.

Evan Malievac, an Austrian, was on trial for the murder of his fellow countryman, Bezo Svetkovic, better known as George Savage, at Duncannon, January 22, of this year. How he cut his throat from ear to ear, stabbed him repeatedly in the breast, cut his face and head, has been published. Malievac acknowledges his guilt, but claims self-defense and that he had been threatened by Savage and his crowd.

J. C. McGinness is foreman of the grand jury, and Theodore Miller, policeman, is prosecutor, the jury finding true bills on the counts, first or murder, and second, voluntary manslaughter.

The jury selected to try the case consists of Frank Kistler, Jackson township; Harry Fleck, Newport; G. E. Bair, Spring township; William M. Long, Greenwood township; D. C. Hays, Spring township; E. E. Sheaffer, Saville township; William Holman, Liverpool borough; Amos Billow, Rye township; W. Harry Carnes, Penn township; Frank Schuman, Sandy Hill District; J. Keeley Everhart, Newport; James Stambaugh, Spring township. Only three jurors were challenged: George E. Snyder, Walter E. Gregg, W. H. Lenig.

Lewis Redcovitch, charged with being an accomplice of Malievac and who fled the country but was later apprehended and brought to jail, was freed, the grand jury not finding a true bill on the count of murder.
