State College Observes Wartime Commencement

State College, Pa., June 12.—Presence of khaki-clad students and the absence—because of enlistments and training camps—of nearly half of the 388 who received degrees made the fifty-seventh commencement at the Pennsylvania State College yesterday distinctly a wartime function.

A new note of seriousness pervaded the exercises. The meritism which in the past has formed a part of the day's program was lacking, because the festivities were marred by their frivolous trappings. There was little ostentation, and the program was modified.

Presenting their candidates for recognition, the deans of the various schools recited the achievements of State College men and women who were in the army and navy during their degrees, and complimented the entire graduating class on its patriotism. Diplomas will be forwarded to the homes of the graduates, and on farms to come here for them.

Canada to Consider a Conscription Measure

Ottawa, June 12.—A bill for compulsory military service by Canadians between the ages of twenty and forty-five years, was presented in the House of Commons yesterday by Sir Robert Borden. The premier said that on January 1, 1915, he had authorized the enlistment of 500,000 men for overseas service and to offer war taken as a pledge that the number would be raised. Under the voluntary system more than 400,000 men had been raised and their services had brought cheer to the British and glory to Canada, he declared.

Taft Declares America Must Work Hard to Insure a Lasting Peace

Pittsburgh, June 12.—William Howard Taft, speaking at a general meeting of the national conference of charities and corrections, whose subject was "International Adjustment, After the War," declared that the United States would have to put billions of money and millions of men into the struggle. This, he continued, would give this country, when the nations were gathered around the peace table, the right to say "We demand a just peace, and no peace can be a just peace unless it is a lasting peace."

Mr. Taft described the acts of Germany against the United States as "deliberate murder" and continued: "We are in this war because we are not willing to admit that we are no longer an independent nation, and that our citizens have no right to freedom and happiness whether it be upon the sea or on the land. We have not gone into it from any jingo spirit. No nation has a better right to go to war because we are simply protecting the rights of our citizens from a nation which has paid no attention to international law. Then, our allies represent the demand of the world against our enemies the military dynasties."
