SHOWER CONFETTI ON BRIDE-ELECT

Luncheon Guests of Miss Melville Cover Miss Gertrude Berry With Rose Leaves

One of the prettiest of social events given for a much betrothed bride-elect, was the bridge luncheon this afternoon, with Miss Marie Melville as hostess to Miss Gertrude Berry, at her residence, 1835 North Second street. Pink was the prevailing color in the decorations of the house, with asters and tall stalks of gladioli among a profusion of summer flowers.

The table appointments were also of pink with a crystal basket of asters gracing the center and pink silk shades capping the candlesticks. The daintiest of place cards, represented a little bride catching Dan Cupid in a golden wedding ring, and the favors were lovely long stemmed pink satin roses, the centers soft yellow bars filled with rose petals, to be used to shower the bride, and to be carried afterwards as vanity bags. The hostess had the honor of announcing that the wedding of Miss Berry and Ernest Henry Sullings will take place Monday morning in the Reformed Salem Church.

The guests included several out-of-town folk who are here for the Sullings-Berry wedding on Monday. In the party were Miss Berry, Miss Margaret Berchard, Mrs. B. McKennan Dague, Mrs. R. J. HOME-READING COURSE FOR CITIZEN-SOLDIERS

(Issued by the War Department and all rights to reprint reserved)

This course of thirty daily lessons is offered to the men selected for service in the National Army as a practical help in getting started in the right way. It is informal in tone and does not attempt to give binding rules and directions. These are contained in the various manuals and regulations of the United States Army, to which this Course is merely introductory.

LESSON NO. 6 CLEANLINESS IN CAMP

(Preceding Lessons: 1, Your Post of Honor, 2, Making Good as a Soldier, 3, Nine Qualities of a Soldier, 4, Getting Ready For Camp, 5, First Days in Camp.) When large numbers of men are assembled in camp it is necessary for the good of all that strict rules of personal conduct and sanitation should be enforced. These rules are by no means a hardship. They are a protection. By insisting on strict obedience to these rules, the diseases which once took so heavy a toll in nearly all military camps have been brought under control; some have been practically eliminated.

Suppose you were asked to make a choice: either to live under conditions in which smallpox, typhoid fever, diarrhea, dysentery and cholera flourish; or to live under strict regulations which make these diseases far more of a rarity in military than in civil life. Your good sense would lead you to choose the latter. It is the same with cleanliness that you co-operate with enthusiasm in the measures that will be taken to keep your camps clean, comfortable and healthful.

One of the pests of camp life, if perfect cleanliness is not observed, is the presence of swarms of flies. Flies are dangerous. Somebody has said, with perhaps a slight exaggeration, that to soldiers they are more dangerous than bullets. This is because flies carry disease germs. They feed on manure, garbage, uncovered food, human excreta and the like. They also lay their eggs wherever refuse of the same kind is found. The best way to keep flies away from camps is to destroy the places where they breed and feed; in other words, keep the camp spotlessly clean.

For this reason the daily "polishing" (or cleaning up) of the camp is a matter of first importance. You will be required to keep your company street free from even small objects, bits of food, and the like which might attract flies or other insects. At least once a day a squad will be detailed to inspect and clean every square foot of space in or near your living quarters. This is a duty which an experienced soldier usually performs with more interest and thoroughness than the raw recruit; for he more clearly realizes its importance.

The best safeguards against disease, either in the army or out of it, are soap and sunshine. You will be required to keep everything in the camp well scrubbed and well aired. If it were not for the raw recruit, doubtless he would be anxious to do it, anyway. The good soldier is almost "fussy" in the care he takes of his clothing, his bedding and his other belongings. Personal cleanliness includes using only your own linen.
