

CONCENTRATION OF STATE OFFICES

Superintendent Shreiner Now Working Out Plan to Relieve Congestion on Hill

Plans whereby departments and bureaus of the State government now scattered in buildings about the business section of Harrisburg or about to leave structures which the State bought for extension of Capitol Park and are about to be torn down will be concentrated in three or four buildings, are being worked out by the Board of Public Grounds and Buildings. Surveys of properties are being made with a view to leasing for a long period as it will be some time until the State starts erection of more office structures in the park.

The scattered bureaus of the Public Service Commission are being gathered into two buildings and a plan is being discussed to place the Department of Labor and Industry and the related divisions of the State government in one building. One of the first buildings to be considered in the construction will be the educational building, funds for the plans having been made available a few years ago.

There is a demand for space in the Capitol and by concentrating the departments in other buildings better arrangements can be made. The Money Keeps Up—In spite of the fact that the licenses now being issued at the State Highway Department are good only until the end of the year the revenue from this source being turned into the State Treasury by the automobile division every day runs about $2,000 and $3,000. The revenue from licenses is far and away beyond expectations this year. Consider Crossing—The Public Service Commission has ordered an inquiry into its own violation into the condition of two grade crossings at Mt. Dallas. The commission has the Black Lick branch of the Pennsylvania railroad's Clearfield division cross a State highway in Cambria county. This is the second location on which the commission has proceeded against a crossing on its own initiative, the other case being at Mt. Dallas. The commission has arranged a hearing in this case for next Wednesday. On Friday hearings will be held at Hazleton in thirty cases and at Scranton in similar matters.

Buttons Received.—The first of the buttons to be distributed to those of draft age who have been exempted have been received at the State draft headquarters from Washington and will be sent out to local boards immediately. Justice Named.—John Baumann has been appointed a justice of the peace for Connelleville township, Fayette county, to fill a vacancy. Boil the Collar.—The State Health Department to-day received a collar from a woman living in an eastern county which she said she had bought from a collar peddler and which in view of stories about poisoned courtplaster she deemed best to have investigated. The collar was returned with the suggestion that it be boiled half an hour.

To Start Hearing.—State agricultural officials will leave here to-morrow for Pittsburgh to arrange for the start of the Western Pennsylvania milk investigation, which will begin under the auspices of the State Milk Commission next Tuesday in Pittsburgh.

Contract Hearing.—The contract of the borough of Wormleysburg and the Riverton Consolidated Water Company for fire protection in the borough will be heard by the Public Service Commission next Thursday.

Eby After Roads.—Representative John S. Eby, of Perry county, was here to-day on State highway matters. Case Dismissed.—The Public Service Commission in a decision by Commissioner John S. Killing has dismissed the complaint of the North Abington Water Company against the Abington Electric Company. It was a controversy between two Lackawanna county companies.

COAL TO GO HIGHER; WILL NOT BE LOWER

not be had at any price. This situation is not probable, but it is a possible one.

Drop Out of Question

It is true that Federal authorities have fixed anthracite prices at the mines, and have set a limit on the profits to be realized by wholesalers. It is also true that the government commission of which Dr. H. A. Garfield is the head may fix the price at which coal will be sold by the retailers to Harrisburg people, but all dealers agree that a drop in prices is out of the question. Several prominent coal men when interviewed made the statement that instead of a reduction in the retail price is an absolute necessity. That the increase will not be great was admitted, but the dealers say that it is impossible to sell coal during this winter at the prices which now prevail.

Pea Coal Advanced

In support of their contention that there must be an increase in the cost to local people, the dealers point out that prevailing prices are based upon the present cost of coal at the mines. While the price fixed by the Government is in some instances lower than the price asked by the independent operators, in many instances it is higher. The Government price lower than the price of the Philadelphia and Reading Coal and Iron Company, the Susquehanna Coal Company and the Lehigh Valley Coal and Navigation Company. As a matter of fact, the Government permits an increase on some grades, pea coal for instance, having been advanced ninety cents per ton. It will be impossible, dealers claim, for them to absorb this increase.

May Go Higher

At the present time the following prices prevail in Harrisburg. In some instances, due to increased or decreased cost in handling, there may be a slight variation from these figures, but generally speaking, they apply to the whole city. Pea $8.25, nut $7.95, store $7.80, size $7.65. Dealers claim that they are now paying about $4.75 per ton at the mines, with about $1.50 additional for freight. This is 40 cents a ton more than they were paying a year ago. Since the first of May the price at the mines has been increased each month, and September 1 the price per ton at the mines will be 50 cents higher than it was May first. Taking into account the present cost of material, feed and labor, dealers declare that it is impossible to maintain the present prices.

Howard C. Fry of the Fry Coal Company, briefly expressed the opinion of various dealers who were interviewed. "We are sorry to announce that there can be no reduction in the price to users," said Mr. Fry. "In fact, every indication points to an increased cost. The rate fixed by the government applies only to the big producers. The independent producers, of which there are over a hundred, are permitted to charge 75 cents a ton more for their coal than the price charged by the mine-owning railroads."

Several dealers expressed the opinion that Harrisburg may experience a severe coal shortage this winter. Walter L. Montgomery, of the firm of J. B. Montgomery, said that there is not enough coal stored in Harrisburg to last ninety days at the present rate of consumption. Demand Greatly Increased. Coal will not cost the consumer more money because of a decreased production, because more coal is being mined now than ever before, but because of the largely increased demand. Due to the war activities, steamboat coal, in great demand by steel mills and other industries, comprises a good share of the output of some of the largest collieries. Steel mills that have been idle for twenty-five years are now working twenty-four hours a day, and the mines are unable to meet the demands. That is the story in a nutshell.

Independent operators have been getting fancy prices for their output for some time, and because of their increased cost of operation, they will be permitted to charge 75 cents per ton more than the larger companies. The action of the Federal authorities should prevent a repetition of conditions which existed in Buffalo and other cities last winter, when anthracite sold as high as $20 per ton, but that the price will not be a slight variation from these figures, but generally speaking, they apply to the whole city.

NEWS OF STEELTON

WAR GARDENS SUFFER IN STORM

Streets Covered With Mud; Crops Washed Out by Torrential Rain

The heaviest rainstorm in several years passed over Steelton and Highrise yesterday afternoon, and early last evening causing thousands of dollars in damage to businesses in the former town. The streets were completely washed out and many of the crops raised on many of the war gardens were ruined. While the heavy rain did not cause much damage to the big blast furnace, Bethlehem steel company, work was retarded in some of the departments, particularly in the blast furnace, which was banked several hours when the furnace pit filled with water, and some of the low built shops on the bridge and construction department where the floors were covered with ten to twelve inches of water.

A majority of the night turn force left the steel plant several hours before the rain started, and the service. This stoppage came when the storm broke up the streets of the borough was washed out and many of the crops raised on many of the war gardens were ruined. While the heavy rain did not cause much damage to the big blast furnace, Bethlehem steel company, work was retarded in some of the departments, particularly in the blast furnace, which was banked several hours when the furnace pit filled with water, and some of the low built shops on the bridge and construction department where the floors were covered with ten to twelve inches of water.

The most trouble in Front street was caused by Booser's run which, early in the evening began disgorging everything movable that came within reach of the water. Hundreds of tons of slate and mud came down to a depth of three feet on the street. As soon as the water subsided the surface of the street was a force of men and several teams on the job opening the street to car traffic.

Big sewer cavens were caused at River and Swatara streets, and between Mohr and Good streets in Swatara township. The Swatara street hole was caused by the residence of H. S. Messinger, whose yard had stepped across the spot, where the surface of the street was before the water ate the ground away.

The canal did not hold the water sent into it from the surface drain- ing and tanks were overflowed and Mohr street and the eastern works side. Much damage was caused in the eastern part of the businessplaces along the eastern bank of the canal and at Front and Chambers streets. The water piled up on the opposite side of Front street were filled with water.

Special officers were stationed near a water hole in Front street near Booser's run last night to direct traffic to avoid accidents. The outskirts of the borough in Cameron street, Spring creek and shot towers in the water through a driveway in Cameron's yard, and about an hour after the heaviest rain ceased. The rain brought disappointment to hundreds of children in all parts of the borough. When a postponement of Komper Day exercises was forced upon organizers, Supervisor Irwin will to announce arrangements for holding the exercises.

Many Cellars Flooded. At Highrise, Bird's run overflowed its banks about 5:40 o'clock and for several hours the section lying between Paxton and Front streets, and from Penn to Second streets, was under water. Nearly all the cellars in Penn and Broad streets were flooded. The water on the floor joists and a large quantity of eatables and canned fruit were caught in the flood and destroyed or badly damaged.

The war gardens which were the pride of their owners suffered most. In some cases the top soil was completely washed away, taking crops and all that were growing on them, and the rocky ground underneath. The run which flows through the Kunkle estate and crosses the street within the memory of the oldest inhabitant. This was caused by the breaking of the Elroyer dam, located on the site of the old coal gas plant several miles north of the borough. When this volume of water raced down on Highrise the gardens were not deep enough to hold it and when the crest reached the bridge at Jury street, the water was surged to a depth of three feet, blocking all traffic.

Fires were drawn from the two steam boilers used in operating the mill, just in time to avoid an explosion and at the time the fireman got out of the boiler room the water had flowed into the fire-boxes.

Ed. Cross has returned home from a business trip to Philadelphia. The funeral of John H. Snyder was held from his home, Swatara street, yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The Rev. James Cunningham, pastor of the M. E. church, officiated. Burial was made in the Middletown Cemetery. The members of Post No. 11, A. R., of Harrisburg, had charge of the services.

Lloyd Kramer received word yesterday from Governor D. C. to report for duty there next week, having secured a position with the government. He has resigned his position as clerk in the office of the car shops.

Some of the bridge material has been delivered to the new location and stored on the old National Tube Company site.

It is estimated that the cost of the bridge will be $47,000 which will be offset by the State Highway Department, commissioners of Dauphin county, Middletown, Company and the borough. The borough has bought ground east of the present pike so as to enable it to build a suitable approach to the bridge which will be started in a few days.

County to Help Pay Cost of Road Bridge

The County Commissioners to-day agreed to pay $2,000 toward the expense of constructing a bridge over the Pennsylvania Railroad tracks just north of Middletown. The two abutments for the bridge have already been built and the borough officials are anxious to have the remainder of the work rushed. The structure will cost about $45,000, it replaces one which was razed about two years ago.

While walking down Front street, near the Harrisburg Hospital, last evening, Deputy Coroner A. S. Speer, found a crisp new fifty-dollar bill in a pool of water on the pavement. GOOD SHOES

High Heels Put Corns on Toes

Who cares? Corns or calluses lift off without any pain.

Because style decrees that women crowd and buckle up their tender toes in high leeled footwear, they suffer from corns, then they cut and trim at these painful pests which merely makes the corn grow hard. This suicidal habit may cause lockjaw and women are warned to stop it.

A few drops of freezone applied directly upon a sore corn or tender callus gives quick relief and soon the entire corn or callus, root and all, lifts off without pain. Ask the drug store man for a tiny bottle of freezone, which costs but a few cents, but is sufficient to remove every hard or soft corn or callus from one's feet.

Freezone dries in a moment and simply shrivels up the corn or callus without even irritating the surrounding skin.

Women! Keep a bottle of freezone handy on the dresser and never let a corn ache twice.—Adv.
