RETREATING ITALIANS SUFFER ANOTHER DEFEAT

60,000 MORE CAPTURED WITH TWO POSITIONS

Victorious Teutons Sweep Forward Against Retiring Forces of General Cadorna; Total Prisoners Now 180,000; 1,500 Guns Taken, Berlin Claims; British Capture Beersheba

By Associated Press

General Cadorna's forces retreating to the line of the Tagliamento river have suffered another crushing defeat.

Berlin to-day reports the capture of two bridgehead positions from Italian troops which made a stand east of the middle Tagliamento and the cutting off of an Italian force which was retreating toward the lower course of the river.

In the latter operation 60,000 Italians were captured, according to the German claim, bringing the total of prisoners reported taken by the invaders of northern Italy to 180,000 and the number of guns to 1,500.

One of the bridgeheads captured was that at Dignano, which is directly on the Tagliamento, about 23 miles almost directly west of Udine.

Not Across River

The other bridgehead lost by the Italians was at Codroipo. This place is also about 23 miles from Udine but lying off to the southwest on the main railway line from Udine to Treviso and Venice. It is some three miles east of Tagliamento.

The Germans do not claim to have forced a crossing of the Tagliamento, but it is evident that they are not on its easterly bank in strong force, and probably ready for an assault upon the line itself.

The German effort to outflank the Tagliamento line from the Carnic Alps apparently is not gaining ground fast.

Armies Intact

While the German blow overpowered and dispersed the Italian forces along the Isonzo north of Gorizia, General Cadorna, according to reports from his headquarters, saved his other armies virtually intact and the third army, which guarded the Carso plateau, succeeded in getting away in its entirety with its guns and war material. The Italian retreat did not become a rout and it is apparent that General Cadorna's strategy was to withdraw his troops from the Isonzo and across the Friuli plains to a position from which to make a strong counterattack.

120,000 Prisoners

The invading forces are within four miles of the Tagliamento north-west of Udine after having captured 120,000 prisoners and more than 1,000 guns. This is the center of the advancing line and the southern districts probably are not as near the Tagliamento. Should General Cadorna have to retire from the Tagliamento because of the breaking of the Italian defenses west thereof, the Carnic Alps and before assistance arrives, he will have the Piave river, which runs southwest and south from Belluno, on which the Italians generally have their positions, as a barrier. Reinforcements are being hurried to Northern Italy not only by France and Great Britain, but also by Italy. The German advance apparently is not as strong as at first and Berlin

GREAT SCOTT! STEAM SHOVEL MAY STILL BE IN THE CELLAR

The Sons of Rest this morning, at what corresponds to third drink time in Hidalgo, Tex., adopted resolutions severely condemning the Harrisburg Telegraph for its recent failure to chronicle several sessions of the unofficial inspectors on the job at the new Penn-Harris Hotel. John Newton, well-known sage, brought the condemnations to this office. "The last time you mentioned our order," said Mr. Newton, making an effort to control his temper, "was when we were peeling through the knotholes in the fence. Now that we can take our ease on the opposite side of the street, you don't mention us."

A hot-footed reporter dispatched to the Penn-Harris corner reported all the old faces in evidence—not even forgetting Edmund James, of Camp Hill, who, tiring of knotholing in Harrisburg, spent a week in New York watching them build the new Pennsylvania Hotel, Seventh-and-something.

POOR BOARD BAD HUNTING GROUND FOR DEMOCRATS

Left Office in Frightful Condition When Voters Finally Threw Them Out

Republicans were amazed this morning that Democrats had started digging back into the long ago records of the Poor Board's office for campaign material in view of the deplorable state of affairs in which the only Democratic administration that office has had in many years left the almshouse and the poor directors' records.

When the Democrats were finally thrown out by an indignant public the incoming steward at the almshouse found conditions so bad that he was compelled to reorganize entirely along new lines, revise the wretched bill-of-fare provided for inmates and give the whole place a thorough house-cleaning and repainting. Those who took over the records of the office found them in a

COAL FAMINE IS NEAR WITH COLD WEATHER COMING

Quarter-Ton Lots Being Doled Out to Customers by Dealers

CONDITIONS GET WORSE

Schedules For Next Shipments Said to Be Uncertain

That the cold wave which has enveloped the city during the past few days finds the coal dealers altogether unable to cope with the situation, was conceded to-day by the men handling the city's retail supply.

Nowhere near the adequate supply is on hand in the city's coal bins, it was said. The amount on hand will not last long and that is being doled out in small lots.

One of the largest dealers in the city is selling anthracite in quarter-ton lots, while the majority refuse to deliver more than a ton at a time to a customer. When the retail supply gives out there is no telling when more can be procured.

All the coal dealers of the city are dealing their coal out in a way that will make it last to go around to as many customers as possible. It was reported yesterday that the United Ice and Coal Company was not selling coal in more than quarter-ton lots. Orders for future delivery are not accepted by the dealers, except at the consumers' hazard, as the procuring of coal in the future is so problematical.

What the dealers are trying to do, they say, is to eke out the present supply of coal on hand so that there will be no hardship until a new supply arrives.

Edward Fry, of the Federal Trade Commission, explained that Harrisburg's position close to the coal region makes the predicament worse rather than better, since the supply and shipment of coal from the mines is regulated by the Federal Trade Commission.

He stated that in his opinion the trade commission should apply the needs of the regions farther removed from

U. S. Transport Finland Torpedoed on Return Trip For More Troops

Washington, Nov. 1.—The transport Finland was recently torpedoed while returning to the United States, but was able to return to a foreign port under her own steam.

The Navy Department received report of the attack and Secretary Daniels authorized its publication. The Navy report does not say whether there was any loss of life or injury on the Finland.

The Navy Department has received dispatches stating that the transport Finland was torpedoed while returning from foreign waters. The damage to the ship was slight and she returned to port under her own steam.

The Finland is one of the largest steamers flying the American flag. Before going into the Army transport service she plied between New York and European ports in the International Mercantile Marine Company's service under the Red Star and White Star lines.

The Finland has a gross tonnage of 12,806 and a net tonnage of 7,711. She normally carries a crew of 257 men. She is owned by the United States and was built in Philadelphia in 1902. Her home port is New York.

One of two U-boats which took part in the attack shelled the open lifeboats and the prospects for survivors were dim.

RAIDERS GO INTO HEART OF LONDON

Flying in Seven Groups, German Airmen Bomb Way From Coast; Casualties and Damage Are Slight; Barrage Breaks Up Two Detachments; Enemy Declines Combat With Planes Which Go Up

By Associated Press

London, Nov. 1.—Eight persons were killed, twenty-one were injured in the German air raid last night, according to an official statement issued to-day by the British War Department.

London, Nov. 1.—About thirty airplanes in seven groups took part in last night's air raid. Three of them penetrated to the heart of London, says an official report to-day. The casualties and damage were slight.

A report from Lord French, commander of the home defenses, respecting last night's air raid, says the German aviators took advantage of the clouds to prevent any decisive engagements.

The first group of air raiders dropped bombs near the coast. Two more groups were broken up by a barrage on the southeastern outskirts of the metropolis. The fourth group was turned back up the Thames half way to London.

Disperse Another Group Of the 6th group one or more airplanes penetrated southeastern London. Some of the sixth group toward Fry, of the Federal Trade Commission, explained that Harrisburg's position close to the coal region makes the predicament worse rather than better, since the supply and shipment of coal from the mines is regulated by the Federal Trade Commission.

Determined and repeated attacks were made upon London last night by groups of hostile aircraft. The first group of raiders crossed the Kentish coast at about 10.40 p. m. and proceeded over Kent. They
