352 REQUESTS FOR LICENSES

Northumberland County Will Have Five Less Liquor-Selling Places

Sunbury, Pa., Jan. 8. — Northumberland county will have five less liquor licenses this year than last, according to the records in the office of Edgar Summers, prothonotary and clerk of courts. Last year a total of 357 were granted. Of these, one, W. D. Packard, of Sunbury, sold out to M. H. Markley, and he discontinued the stand. Another, J. E. Kehler, of Washington township, quit, saying: "There are many other ways in which to go to hell besides selling rum." This year two were refused, the Daniel Green Hotel, in Kulpmont, and the Windsor Hotel, at Sunbury. A third, the Opera House Cafe, at Shamokin, was not lifted. This makes 352 licenses, including three breweries, that will operate in the county this year. When the judges went on the bench, six years ago, there were 413 liquor-selling stands in Northumberland.

Revenue from liquor licenses will net $63,000. The districts are returned 60 per cent of this money, while the state gets 25 per cent, and the county 15 per cent.

ALIEN LIVES 63 YEARS IN COUNTRY

York Minister, Born in Germany, Never Took Out Naturalization Papers

York, Pa., Feb. 8. — Although he has been a resident of this country for the past sixty-three years, and the pastor of Christ Lutheran Church, this city, for thirty-three years, the Rev. Dr. G. W. Enders, has been compelled to register as an alien enemy because he failed to take out naturalization papers. This announcement came as a surprise to the people of the city, and county, as well, as it was generally thought that Dr. Enders was a naturalized citizen, because he always took an active interest in politics and civic affairs. He came to York from Richmond, Ind., in 1882, and as he had been served a number of other churches in New Jersey and was at one time the pastor of St. James' Church, at Gettysburg, it was generally thought that he was a citizen and no questions asked.

Dr. Enders was born in Noronmamm Nahe, near Bingen-on-the-Rhine, in this city when forty-one years old. There are two sons, one of whom is also in the ministry, Christ Lutheran Church has the largest number of communicants in the city and was established in 1744.

GAME SUFFERS FROM WEATHER

Quail and Rabbits Frozen to Death; Deer Standing the Winter Very Well

Lewistown, Pa., Feb. 8. — With deep snow covering the woodlands of Mifflin county, the season ranging from zero to twenty below, for at least a month, wild game in the county has suffered severely this winter. It is reported by Game Warden Slaughterback that quail are almost wiped out and that all other small game has been killed or starved in large numbers. Mr. Slaughterback has completed a tour of the game preserves at Licking Creek and other sections of the county. The only small game of any account that will survive this winter will be that which finds food distributed to feed them. The warden is working hard to reach the remote parts of the woods and mountain regions and is being aided by a number of sportsmen and scouts. Rabbits are dying from hunger and many are being devoured by foxes.

Above the junction at the David Hough farm twenty-eight wild turkeys are getting rations of corn daily, the grain being provided by the state. These turkeys are survivors of the flock placed on the mountain section on the west side of the river last fall.

Deer are said to be faring well; many tracks are found in the woods of the county, and places show where they have been living on shrubs, bark, etc.
