

Police Hold Soldiers Charged as Deserters

Police are waiting word from Watertown, Mass., regarding the status of John MacDonald and F. E. Hurlburt, who were picked up here last night wearing the uniform of the Army and held by the police as possible deserters. When confronted by Lieutenant Leshner, commanding the recruiting party here, the men told conflicting stories which did not agree with what they told the police. MacDonald claimed he deserted the coast artillery where he was stationed guarding the armory at Watertown. Hurlburt said that he is not a soldier, but a soldier stole his civilian clothes at Bridgeport, Conn., and he had to wear the soldier's clothes. These stories differed from those they told last night, when both men claimed that they were on army assignments and were stationed at Maine.

Spinster, 80, Thought Poor, Had $140,000

Pittsburgh.—Relatives of Eliza Jane Maffett, octogenarian spinster, who had lived in seclusion in an old house near the center of the downtown for years, to-day found a for-ture in gold and silver hidden in the aged woman's home after she had been taken to a hospital. Forty thousand dollars was discovered in various parts of the house, along with bank books showing she has nearly $100,000 on deposit in local banks. The old woman was very eccentric and refused to accept aid from relatives here.

though she was thought to be poor. She was found unconscious in the house from fumes of a gas stove. KNITS AFGHAN An afghan was received yesterday at Red Cross headquarters from Mrs. E. A. Heffelfinger, 120 South Thirteenth street.
