

Red Cross Notes

Home Service
If you have a son or husband or brother in the Army, perhaps this committee has come to mean to you Red Cross at its best. It is, above all others, your department—the most direct link between you and your boy, and between you and the government.

Perhaps when John Smith goes to camp his wife is sick and his child is far from well. He can't keep his mind on his work—can't tell "squads right" from "platoon" because he is low in spirits, and hence a poor soldier. His captain finally discovers that he is worried about his family and writes to the Red Cross Chapter to ask them to make an investigation. Miss Leib calls on the wife—and continues to call—and the husband soon has reason to feel that his family has a real friend and helper in the Red Cross; and he writes a letter like this, received the other day by one of the chapters:

"I wish to extend my sincere thanks to you for going to aid my wife and child, whom I asked you to help last week. My wife wrote me that you came to see her. I highly appreciate this. I can soldier better now."

The question of insurance for all of Uncle Sam's new army was one that needed to be brought to the attention not only of the men themselves, but their families.

The insurance notices as published in some papers were dry and hard to understand, so that the families of many soldiers welcomed the opportunity to have the insurance idea explained in a clear and lucid manner. They showed their interest by coming to the Red Cross rooms in large numbers to get information. It is interesting to know that more than 90 per cent of the United States soldiers have taken out government insurance.

Therefore, Red Cross members of Harrisburg and Dauphin county, when you hear of the Red Cross Home Service remember that it is one of the most vital and necessary departments in your Chapter, and it is managed with all the clearness and business of vision that such a department requires.

A mother is comfortably provided for, if the government allotment comes promptly. But with the starting of this complex system there were many long delays that would have meant real hardship to many Harrisburg families if the Red Cross and its home service committee had not advanced leads to tide them over until the allotment began coming regularly. Thirty families have been helped in this way in the last three months.

The committee has also had the opportunity of befriending soldiers themselves who have for some reason or other found themselves in Harrisburg without money or acquaintances. One boy on his way from Texas to a Northern Pennsylvania town on a furlough fell asleep in the smoker, and when he awoke near Harrisburg, it was to find that he had been robbed of his money and transportation.

Miss Leib arranged for his accommodation at the Y. M. C. A. while she telegraphed his mother and in other ways verified his story. On the following day a telegram from his family arrived with his transportation and a welcome that carried him on a run to the station for the next train north.

NO CLUE TO JEWEL THIEF
Police have discovered no clue to the thieves who stole nearly $2,000 worth of rings and ornaments from the Caplan Jewelry store at 206 Market street some time Tuesday night.

A broken window in the appearance that the store had been broken into from the rear, but complications have arisen that puzzle the police, they say.

CANDIDATE FOR LEGISLATURE
Sunbury, Pa., March 28.—William J. Thomas, publisher of the Kulpmont News, to-day announced his candidacy for the Legislature on the Republican ticket, in Northumberland county.

BARLOW FIGHTS TO GET HEARING ON AIR TORPEDO

Inventor Will Make Efforts to Win Approval of Board

Washington, March 28.—Lester P. Barlow, inventor of an aerial torpedo for which he claims a range of 500 miles, is here in Washington to make an aggressive effort to burst the bonds of the red tape which he contends has blocked the application of an invention of prime importance in this war.

Mr. Barlow is not going into the fight this time without backing. Men influential in Government affairs and leading members of Congress have talked with him, and when the simplicity and power of his device have been explained the opinion without dissent has been that there should be immediate action. To the lay mind there appears to be no obstacle to the invention doing just what its inventor contends for—it can explode 1,500 pounds of high explosive with reasonable accuracy on a target 500 miles from its starting point. The thought is, of course, to direct the missiles of destruction to the strategic marks, such as munition plants and industrial centers.

Inventor Is Modest
Mr. Barlow does not call his idea an invention at all. It is merely an application of various mechanical and aerial devices which are already in commercial operation. The application, however, is in itself a big idea.

The power of this long-range aerial torpedo as a military weapon is obvious. A fleet of a thousand flying torpedoes, each carrying 1,500 pounds of T. N. T. and landing accurately anywhere within a range of 500 miles, extraordinary things could be done.

Mr. Barlow is a man of long and hard experience in the field of electricity, of mechanics, of high explosives and of aeronautics. He is a man who at any time commands a large salary as a consulting expert in these various fields.

His history has been the typical story of American adventure, audacity and romance. He has wandered about the world. He has built a wireless station at Guam, our island dependency in the Pacific. In his youth he served for three years as a gunner in the American Navy. He has been two years with Villa in Mexico, landing in camp with ten cents in his pocket and without a word of Spanish on his tongue, and emerging at the end of the two years as a major in the revolutionary army, in entire control of Villa's aircraft and explosive supply.

Being short of materials for bomb construction in Mexico, he used car wheels obtained from the railroad shops that Villa had captured, and the wheels themselves supplying the steel and the journal bearings the copper.

Army Uses His Bombs
Over and above all that, Barlow is the inventor of the only two aerial bombs which are now being produced for the American flying forces—the Greener's Quality bomb and the Barlow contact bomb. The former of these, the heavy-drop bomb, for use against enemy personnel, is the only shell successfully devised to explode above the surface of the earth at a predetermined height, although every ordnance department in the world has been trying to perfect such a device since the beginning of the war.

Poultrymen to Rally at Penbrook Tonight

Penbrook, one of the rallying spots for poultrymen in the state, will entertain to-night members of the Pennsylvania War Poultry Commission and of the Central Pennsylvania Poultry Association, the important chicken activities which recently held a convention at the Capitol. To-night's session is the starter for a series which is to be steadily continued until Pennsylvania gets awake to the necessity of producing poultry in vast quantities.

Penbrook has many a chicken farmer and is making itself famous for the industry. This will insure an enthusiastic meeting and besides two of the real undisciplined poultry boosters will be present, F. W. DeLancey, chairman of the war commission, and E. B. Mitchell, commissioner for Dauphin county. Postmaster Hoover, of Penbrook, who has a fine flock himself, will preside.

Mr. Mitchell was very active at the recent state conference and he will set forth the needs of this vital industry. It appears that there are 2,000,000 less hens in Pennsylvania this year than last, so it is absolutely essential that every one should have a chicken munition factory in his backyard.

Keystone Division May Be Next to Go to France

Troops of the Keystone Division at Camp Hancock are jubilant over the prospect of an early departure for France, visitors to the camp report. A "final" review was held Saturday with 25,000 men participating. Visitors say that the men have received instructions to dispose of their suitcases and to pack their rifles, bags and Enfield rifles have been issued.

The Keystone Division is the highest of all military units, according to the latest ratings. The One Hundred and Twelfth Infantry, formerly the old Pennsylvania Eighth, stands fourth.

Captain J. T. Bretz, who was reported some time ago as being honorably discharged because of physical disability, is making efforts to regain his place through hospital treatment. Lieutenant Kline is in the camp directing work on the rifle range.

The Two Chief War-Time Foods

Mother's Oats At 1/3 the Cost of Meat

Mother's Oats, measured by food units, is twice as nutritious as round steak. It supplies nutrition at a cost of five cents per 1000 calories. Meats, on the average, cost eight times as much for the same food value. Eggs cost ten times as much. You can serve six dishes of Mother's Oats for the cost of a single egg.

The oat stands supreme among grain foods, in nutrition and in flavor. It far exceeds wheat in food units. It is the energy food and the food for growth. It supplies every needed element in just the right proportion. It should be your basic food.
