HIGHLY HONORED IN WILLIAMSPORT

Miss Lois Booker, Founder of Local Story Tellers, Speaks Before Many Women

Many Harrisburgers will be interested in a resume of articles appearing in the Williamsport papers concerning a story given in that city by Miss Lois K. Booker, whom every one knows for her clever verse and interest in the Story Tellers League, the local branch of which she organizes here.

The program, while delightfully varied in selection, gave dominant expression to the two qualities that are inherent in the stories of finest appeal—ethic and artistic beauty. Humor and surprise also made their ever welcome appearance in timely sequence.
