CONSERVATION OF FOOD TO CONTINUE AFTER THE WAR

Plans For Next Several Years Gone Into by Local Administrators

That the conservation of food will continue for the remainder of the war and for a period of at least a year after the war's close, was the word brought back from Philadelphia by John P. Guyer, representative of the county food administration, who conferred with Howard Heinz, state food administrator, and the representatives of other Pennsylvania county food administrators.

The restrictions on sugar, wheat and meats will continue as stringent as ever, with a possibility of more stringent regulations in the future, it was said by Mr. Guyer this morning. Food hoarding and illegal purchases of foodstuffs which are limited by the food administration, will receive the condemnation of the local food administration.

Laggards After Cards

The need for the regulations on foodstuffs will continue through the winter in spite of the apparent prosperity and abundance of the food harvest during the next couple months, was the message given Mr. Guyer, by the state food administrator, who will not be issued on Guyer on his return this morning that in spite of any increase in foodstuffs in this country due to the large harvests, the need among the allies abroad will continue so great that the conservation program in this country will have to continue unabated.

A resume of the food situation in the state and country, and the needs of the allies for food, were outlined at the conference. This phase of the day's proceedings was presided over by the state food administrator, but the general summary of the food situation is that food will be on hand in sufficient quantities to prevent a crisis by the state food administration plan is worked out.

At the local food administration, sugar statements continue to come into the office, but sugar purchases will not be issued on the statements which came in after Monday. Eight hundred and sixty-one certificates were issued to Dauphin county and Harrisburg consumers.

Bismarck Advice as to Hun Marriages Should Be Revived, Press Says

Amsterdam—Bismarck's injunction that German diplomatic representatives abroad should not marry any but German wives, ought to be revived, says the Koenigsberg Volkszeitung in an article which strongly disapproves of the union of Count von Bernstorff's son with Marguerite Vivienne Burton Thomas, of Burlington, N. Y., and even more so of the marriage of his father, the former Ambassador in Washington.

War Reduces Population of Belligerent Europe

London—The war has caused the belligerent countries of Europe the loss of not less than 12,500,000 potential lives, because of the decrease in United Kingdom, France, Italy and the Central Powers. Dealing with the decline in the birth rate here he said the births registered in England and Wales in 1913 numbered 881,800. In 1915 they fell to 814,614. In 1916 there was a further fall to 780,530, and in 1917, to 668,346; a decline of 24 per cent compared with 1913.

the number of births resulting from the war, says Sir Bernard Mallet, registrar general of Great Britain. He believes that other belligerent countries have suffered in this respect more than has Great Britain. Sir Bernard estimated that every day of the war means a loss of 7,000 potential lives of children to the
