

WAR TAXES TOO HIGH IS CHARGE MADE IN HOUSE

Republicans Will Support the Measure, However, to Win the War

Washington, Sept. 10.—Criticism of the war revenue bill by the Republican spokesmen occupied the House yesterday in the general debate. Inequalities and inconsistencies in paying taxes, characterized as unnecessarily high, and charges of waste in government expenditures, were the principal complaints made in prepared speeches by Representatives Fordney, of Michigan, and Moore, of Pennsylvania, ranking Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee. Both, however, promised to support the bill in nonpartisan furtherance of American success in the war, despite their criticisms. Hearings by the Senate Finance Committee on the bill, resumed yesterday, were confined to objections of a minor provision. The House debate was attended by fewer than one-fourth of the members, but those present displayed close interest with questions and remarks. Excessive taxation and a failure to raise tariff rates were emphasized by Representative Fordney, who said the bill proposed to secure forty-five per cent. of this year's actual expenditures ($18,000,000,000 exclusive of allied loans) by taxation. As alleged extravagance in expenditures Mr. Fordney cited government contracts, some, he said, setting profits up to 1,000 per cent. There were touches of partisanship in the discussion. While partisanship did not enter into framing the bill, Representative Fordney charged that President Wilson alone has shown partisan politics, and Mr. Moore declared that the Republican minority was helpless in framing the bill and, if in control, would not have brought forth the measure as it stands.

Doylestown's Boys Faced Machine Guns in Wood; Held Gains

Doylestown, Sept. 10.—In a charge across an open field, Doylestown boys in Company G, 111th Infantry, faced German machine gun batteries hidden in a wood, and drove the enemy back with rifle and bayonet and held their gains against a determined counter-attack by the Hun. For four days these boys were under continuous fire from German snipers, machine gunners and artillery. They suffered heavily in casualties, but they held their ground against a regiment of Hunns until relief came. Details of the fighting, with mention of several wounded heroes whose names have not appeared in the official lists, are reaching here in letters from the soldiers who went through the hail of shell and shrapnel.

From letters to relatives of the soldiers here, it is known one member of the company from this town was killed in action and seventeen wounded or gassed. The battalion to which Company G belongs went into line in a wood, facing the Germans, who were in the same wood. Only an old railroad line separated them. For one night there was a heavy duel of snipers and machine gunners. In the morning the Doylestown boys advanced to clear the wood. They crossed the old railroad line in the face of spitting machine guns. For two hours the Germans struggled to hold their line. Then they broke and fled from the wood. Immediately the Germans dropped a heavy barrage over the advancing battalion, causing an order to the Pennsylvanians to retire. "Out of the shell it beside me," writes Corporal Frank McNealy, "killing three and wounding several others; I was knocked down, but only got a small piece of shrapnel in the leg. I must have been sort of stunned, because I didn't hear the order to retire and found myself and Paul Heisel alone in the open field. "We were about 100 yards from the woods and had to run back through the barrage to get there, and we had no sooner started than a German sniper opened on us and the bullets kicked dust all around us. The faster he fired the faster we ran. We got to the woods in safety and then took care of our wounded. "There was not much doing that night, except some sniping. The next morning we went forward again over the same ground and pushed the enemy back for nearly two miles. "The climax of the whole thing came when we came to the edge of the wood, we being in the wood. A whole nest of enemy machine guns was in another wood about 300 yards away, across an open field. "We were ordered to charge across the field into the wood. We couldn't see the enemy at all. They were so well hidden, it looked impossible to chase them out. "An Inspiring Sight "Well, we started, and it sure was an inspiring sight to see us going across the field, just like they do in the movies. We were in skirmish line and putting up our own barrage to try and keep the enemy fire down until we reached the woods. "We went across in a perfect line, bayonets fixed and firing, not rapid fire, but sniping at one another. We never put our rifles to our shoulders. Our automatic rifles were pouring out bullets, and our pistols barking everything at once. "A little second lieutenant was leading us, and he surely did fine. Right in the middle of the field was a mesh-wire fence higher than our heads, which we had to cut with our bayonets and rifle butts. "Well, we plunged into the woods, but it was useless. The hidden machine guns could just mow down our men. I found myself beside Sergeant Raymond Long. Slightly behind us was an Italian fellow shooting close to our heads. "I turned around and told him to get up on the line. He came up and just as he was about to fire his first shot, after getting up on the line, a bullet came and drilled him between the eyes. "At the same time two men on the other side of me went down wounded. The bullets sang all around me. One went through my shirt sleeve. "Again we had to retire, but in good order, to the flank and hastily dug trenches and established our defense. But they did not attack us. Only sniped us when we would stick our heads up between trees and had our hats on. "All that night we exchanged shots and all next day and the next night. We thought sure they were coming over. Our sentry observers reported them being reinforced by a regiment of infantry and they opened up a terrible fire on us—rifles, machine guns and everything else they had. "The shells had come up, but couldn't get in the line on account of the heavy firing. I spent a horrible night, being sick from gas and powder. "Got Through Hun Barrage "The last day was rather quiet, until dark. When we were finally relieved and started out, they opened up on us with everything from pistols to machine guns. They put a powerful searchlight on us, so they could see us after we got a mile or so away from them, and then threw a shrapnel barrage on this city. "We fooled them by a flank movement, yet they kept right on our tails until broad daylight. It certainly was a trying night and a hard session for the nerves. We caught up to our cooks shortly after daylight, but they had doctors' orders not to feed us very heavy at first. So all we got for breakfast was a little rice and a cup of coffee, and a big dinner and supper last night. "Corporal McNealy closes his letter: "Tell Pa that McNealy advanced with the rest of them. If every quiet night the Germans back two miles in four days, as Company G did, it won't be long before we get to Berlin and victory. "Sergeant Walter Trainer, of Doylestown, who led a platoon in the charge, was wounded in the shoulder and is in Base Hospital No. 28, made of Jefferson Hospital physicians and nurses of this city. "John Atkinson and George Atkinson, brothers, were wounded. John writes to his home: "I helped to carry the mess to-day, and of course, Fritz had to leave a few feet near us, and we spilled a little of the coffee, for we drop to the ground when a shell comes. "We were about 100 yards from the woods with the Rainbow division captured guns of the retreating Germans, turned them around and moved down the enemy with his own weapons, according to Sergeant H. E. Troop. "We have been fighting like old veterans," writes Troop, "defeating the Germans and driving them back. "We were shot nearly two miles and with very little rest and just enough food to keep us going. But now we are in a forest, what is left of us, resting up for another crack at the dirty Dutch. "We lost some of our good pals, but they died behind their guns and not with their hands up crying 'Kam-mat' and making terrible tricks of the Hun. In one instance we found a boy of 16 chained to a machine gun. When captured he told us he did not want to fight, but he used this method of making him fight and told him if he did not kill every American he would be taken and tortured to death. "In another instance we found a woman strapped to a tree with an automatic rifle, as a sniper. She was killed before they knew she was a woman. "Leon Musselein one of our boys, was severely wounded and Corporal Luther Moore was killed in action. Our company captured a lot of machine guns and threw them around and moved down the Dutch with their own weapons. "Additional casualties among machine gunners in the Iron division have been reported. Private Frank Ruth, of the 109th machine gun battalion, of Lancaster, was killed in action. Private Charles Reber, of Shillington, with Company B, 108th machine gun battalion, has been killed. "Announcement of Reber's death was made at a community singing at Shillington shortly after word had been received. A 12-year-old sister, Margaret, was in the crowd at the singing and was overcome when she heard the news, having been away from home when her parents were notified. "Two Allentown boys, brothers, with Company C, 108th machine gun battalion, have been wounded. They are Morris Nagle and Paul Nagle. They have another brother in the same company. "Russell Moore, Company K, Fourth Infantry, of Emmaus, has been killed in action. Normal Carl, of the same town, has been wounded. Corporal Harold Becker and Private Frank Reischel, of Allentown, have been wounded. Private Robert M. J. Ihm, of Catasauqua, has been killed. "Additional casualties in Company E, 112th Infantry, of Franklin, include Corporal Harry Johnson and Private Bird E. Nallo, killed in action; Private James S. Alexander, Jr., wounded. "Company C, 112th Infantry, U. S. A., formerly of the old Eighth Regiment, National Guard of Pennsylvania, has been reduced from 250 to 182 men, according to word received from Lieutenant William Owen Zacharias. On August 14 there was but one commissioned officer, Lieut. Zacharias and he was so busy fighting the Germans he had not had time to take a bath for three weeks and was a mighty busy man at the time of writing his father. First Lieutenant Roy R. Kreichbaum, senior officer of Company C, is in the hospital with a machine gun bullet through his right leg above the knee. He will not be able to return to service for two months. Lieutenant Noble is another officer who evidently was gassed. It is learned here that Captain Schoemaker, who had been assigned to command the company, had been detailed to other duties before crossing the Atlantic. Lieutenant Zacharias writes: "With becoming modesty, he writes also that often he had been in a shower of bullets and shells, but thus far had escaped injury of any character. During one of the engagements he carried a wounded German back to headquarters. He writes of this experience: "It is all a part of the game." The boys of Company C were in the thick of the fight at Plaines (Feems) and fought their way foot by foot through that French town, driving the enemy ahead of them. "Company C was recruited in Harrisburg and Chambersburg by Captain H. M. Stine.

WARBLERS MUST NOT BE HUNTED

Secretary Kalbfus Orders Arrests of Young Men For Violating Game Code

State Commission officers have been ordered to arrest immediately the shooting of warblers by boys with small shotguns. The boys have been practicing shooting such birds within a few yards. Arrests have been made in this city of boys who did not know they were killing protected birds and who had shot hundreds. "There are forty kinds of warblers in this state and they are valuable insect destroying birds. The birds which boys have been shooting are the olive backed warblers which are useful birds and protected by law," said Dr. Joseph Kalbfus. "We are trying to protect such birds as much as possible and if people want to shoot they should try their hand on sparrows, Field Sparrows, and birds are in season now and are very abundant."

The Harrisburg boys were fined $10 each as follows: Leo and Marvin Eshelman and Frank Marks. In other words, the visitors to these exhibits made up and carried literature home with them for the purpose of reading it and studying it. GARFIELD AIMS AT LOWER COST FOR AUTO FUEL

Administrator Awaiting Report on Conditions Before Taking Definite Action

Washington, Sept. 10.—Fuel Administrator Garfield announced yesterday that he expects soon to fix a price for gasoline for domestic consumers as well as the government and Allies at a figure lower than the present market price. He is awaiting further reports of the situation before taking definite action. No intimation was made as to what the price will be. Dr. Garfield's announcement disclosed that for some time consideration had been given the problem of bringing the price of gasoline to a lower level. Several reports already have been made to Mark L. Regan, director of the oil division of the fuel administration, and it was intimated that upon completion of the investigation now being conducted, immediate action would be taken. The disclosure of Dr. Garfield's purpose came during an informal talk with newspaper correspondents in which were discussed the stocks of gasoline in the country, and the stated shortage east of the Mississippi river, which caused the administration to request that no passenger automobiles be operated on Sundays in that section. The Senate yesterday displayed its interest in the autoleas Sunday request by adopting a resolution offered by Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, asking the administration for information as to the country's production, consumption and exportation of gasoline, with separate figures on the amount used by passenger cars.

large audience was present at Baughman Memorial Methodist Church Sunday night to hear the second of a series of sermons to men by the pastor, the Rev. V. C. Rue. Special music was rendered by the choir under the direction of Paul Bishop.

How Old Are You By Your Hair?

You may be thirty in years, but if you are bald-headed, gray, or your hair is dry, brittle, scraggy and ugly-looking, people will surely take you to be many years older. When your hair becomes faded, dry, streaked and scraggy, when it falls out badly and new hair cannot grow, the roots should be immediately vitalized and properly nourished. To do this quickly, safely and at little expense, there is nothing so effective as Parisian Sage (liquid form) which you can get at Kennedy's Drug Store and all good drug and toilet counters. It's guaranteed to abolish dandruff—stop scalp itch and falling hair and promote a new growth of healthy hair. It's in great demand by discriminating women because it makes the hair soft, lustrous, easy to arrange attractively and appear heavier than it really is. A massage with Parisian Sage is a real delight—easy to use, not sticky or greasy, and delicately perfumed—an aseptic liquid free from dangerous ingredients and guaranteed not to color the hair or scalp. If you want good looking hair and plenty of it, by all means use Parisian Sage—a little attention now insures beautiful hair for years to come.—Adv.

Newspaper "Ads" to Boost Liberty Loan

Washington, Sept. 10.—Newspaper display advertising will be relied on more than ever to sell bonds during the fourth Liberty Loan campaign which opens September 23. In full page and part page advertisements designed by trained advertising men, the campaign will be one to advertise the way as much as to sell bonds. Frank R. Wilson, public director for the loan, announced his plans for newspaper advertising. Designs and copy for the ads already have been prepared and will be supplied free in the form of newspaper mats to daily or weekly publications. The government will not pay newspapers for the publications, but local committees will canvass merchants and business interests in each community to pay for the space. The Store Everybody Is Talking About

Boys' Clothing

"Good clothes" is the crying need these days, especially when it comes to "Boys' Clothes." They must be made of durable fabrics, that will stand the "wear and tear" for boys don't sit around on cushion chairs very often, they keep very active trying to develop their muscles and if you buy poorly made clothes they won't stand the rigid test they are put to buy the boys.

It's no problem "to know" where to get the kind of clothes that will give you the satisfaction you should have—This "Live Store" enjoys a reputation of carrying only the best and it's the verdict of most men throughout Central Pennsylvania that DOUTRICH'S is the favored store for all kinds of good wearing apparel — We've prepared an unusual line of very attractive "Boys' Suits" for this season at prices that will seem reasonable to you when compared with what you will be asked elsewhere for the same quality goods.

Sweaters

Don't forget that all important garment, "a sweater" — There's nothing to take the place of a sweater for service and warmth — This will be a wonderful season for Sweaters and we certainly would be sorry if it were not for our storage room being crowded to the limit with Sweaters — Our orders were placed before manufacturers were able to quote prices on them — We wanted to be "in early" knowing they would steadily advance — The careful judgment we displayed so many months ago—saves you money now.
