Buy Now if Soldiers Over There Are to Get Christmas Presents

Why does Uncle Sam insist upon all presents being sent overseas before November 15th through Red Cross, or November 20th direct? Because there are a limited number of ships and other transportation facilities that make it impossible to handle the immense quantity any later.

So it is with retail stores. The War Board has requested that no extra labor be employed to care for Christmas rush and no increase of hours be made over normal. This makes it impossible to handle the usual Christmas rush within two or three weeks of Christmas with the average force of employes. So the stores, like Uncle Sam, are obliged to ask your co-operation—

A Sale Opportunity

Of Unusual
Significance In These
War Times

When we were advised to come to New York at once to take advantage of extraordinary buying opportunities, we felt sure that there was an unusual accumulation of fine suits, coats and dresses to be had at sacrifice prices from some of the best manufacturers. We were not disappointed, but agreeably surprised to find what unusual concessions they were willing to make for cash in order to move the stock of cancelled orders. To appreciate how remarkably low they have been marked for this three-day sale you must see the stylish make-up of garments and the quality of materials you can buy at these prices.
