

STRIKES COST MANY THOUSANDS

State Bureau of Mediation Issues Review of a Year's Work

Industrial disputes in Pennsylvania during 1918 caused an estimated wage loss of $2,212,304 and a time loss of 507,937 man days according to the report of James A. Stoesse, chief of the bureau of mediation and arbitration of the Department of Labor and Industry submitted to-day by Acting Commissioner Walter Melchior.

The report indicates that a total of 317 strikes, involving 90,021 employees, occurred in thirty-eight counties of the state during last year and that representatives of the bureau of mediation and arbitration secured their services in 162 disputes, involving 44,734 employees in thirty-one counties. Of that number of strikes, the mediators effected a settlement in 143, involving 43,81 employees.

In addition to mediatorial work in the 162 strikes, mediators also acted in settling amicably 72 other industrial controversies which did not reach the strike stage, but were adjusted by mediation with no loss of time on the part of the workers.

During the past three years, the records of the bureau of mediation and arbitration show that 1,131 strikes, reported in Pennsylvania, involved 329,821 employees, and the bureau of mediation aided in settling 621 of these strikes, involving 1,088 employees.

The report shows that while the average duration of strikes in Pennsylvania was 49 days in 1916, this average was reduced in 1917 to 26 days and in 1918, to only 10 days, a approximate decrease in loss from strikes of approximately 50 per cent. per year.

The estimated wages lost through strikes in 1918 was $7,429,819; in 1917, estimated wages lost was $4,094,769, and in 1918, this was reduced to $2,212,304.

Of the 317 strikes occurring in Pennsylvania during 1918, there were 109 in the metal trades; 51 in building trades; 50 in mining; 31 in other trades and the remainder various other classifications.

"Scarce Cases."—While influenza taking the course expected of it by the medical men at the State Department of Health and communications which have hitherto escaped have been reporting some outbreaks, there has been an unusual crop of "scarce" reports coming to the Capitol. Most of them have come at night and have been of a character to cause prompt orders for inquiries.

These reports have come mainly from rural districts and quite a few have been of a most alarming nature. Physicians in the neighborhood have been sent to make investigations and county medical officers have also been detailed.

Some proceedings instituted in 1916 against trust companies for failing to exercise charter rights have also been listed with the new actions for hearing in the Dauphin county court on February 3.

War Board to Meet.—Members of the State Defense Commission have been called to meet in the office of Governor Sprout next Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock to launch the work of the Commission under the new administration. The most important matter to be considered will be the scope of the State Council of National Defense activities, some of which are due to be closed.

Care for returning soldiers and various food and milk problems, as well as the agricultural end of the committee's work, will be considered. Just what will be done about the War Service Bureau, created for Dr. Martin G. Brumbaugh, is not known. There are rumors that it will be abolished, which would take with it the $10,000 job. In view of the former Governor's statement that he had a foreign assignment in mind, the Commission may act promptly.

Schedule Approved.—The Public Service Commission to-day issued an order approving a graded "ready to serve" schedule of gas charges for the Penn Central Light and Power Company, in the complaint of the Lewistown Borough Council. The Commission had directed that such a schedule be filed when it dismissed the portion of the complaint relative to electric rates.

WEST SHORE PROMOTE PERRY SUPPLY OF QUAIL

County Citizens to Be Paid For Trapping Birds

Marysville, Pa., Jan. 25.—Further steps are being taken by officials to aid in replenishing the decimated supply of quail in Perry county. County Game Protector S. Maurice Shuler, of Liverpool, has just issued announcements that twenty-five cents will be paid for each quail trapped, fed and turned over to him for liberation in Perry county next spring.

The birds may be trapped any time in Perry county between now and February 15, he announces, providing the fact is reported to him within a week after they have been taken.

The birds will be liberated in the spring as near the locality in which they have been taken as possible, Mr. Shuler announces. However, he says, in the event that the supply in one section is much less than that in another, the section sparsely filled will receive the birds. Mr. Shuler himself is feeding 120 ring-necked pheasants from the State Game Commission, which will be liberated in the spring.

Rocks Rolled on Penns Tracks Near Marysville

Marysville, Pa., Jan. 25.—A near wreck which would have entailed serious results, occurred here following the rolling of some fair-sized rocks over the embankment of the road leading from this place to Duncannon, onto the passenger tracks of the Pennsylvania railroad, near town.

The engineer saw the obstructions in time to slow down his engine and prevent any serious wreck, but not before one of the rocks was wedged so tightly beneath the engine that trackmen had to be called out to remove it.

PRaises WORK OF THE Y. M. C. A.

Returned Lieutenant Tells How the Soldiers Were Served Overseas

"Don't believe all this criticism of the Y. M. C. A. overseas. Some of it is just, but there is a great deal that is unjust," said Lieutenant Harold D. Saylor, recently returned from service overseas, speaking before the businessmen's gymnasium class in the Central Y. M. C. A. last night, when the members gathered for a sauerkraut and roast pork supper.

Lieutenant Saylor praised the work of the "Y" overseas in glowing terms. "The Y has huts where the lumbermen cut wood; they have secretaries on the front line and in the seaports and everywhere they can possibly put them when there are men enough to act. We had a secretary in our regiment who marched with us everywhere we went. He was one of the bravest men in our organization and everybody loved him. The lieutenant told how his men hadn't eaten from 4 o'clock on the afternoon of July 17 until the next afternoon, when a big Y. M. C. A. truck drove up and secretaries began handing out cookies, sardines and other things to eat. They didn't charge a cent. "We couldn't get along without the Y," continued Lieutenant Saylor. "There were cases where there was a breakdown of course, but these were rare. Don't let them criticize the Y men. It's been a big help to us."

The sauerkraut feast last night was a novel feature of the evening in the history of the Y. M. C. A. of Harrisburg, where novelties are a daily feature. With prominent businessmen such as Willard S. Young and P. Barker of waters, enjoying sauerkraut and mashed potatoes to the hungry hordes, it was pronounced "the best stunt yet."

The businessmen's gymnasium class is made up of many prominent businessmen of the city, and these were present last night. C. W. Burtnett threw a bomb into the assemblage when he announced that a membership campaign will be conducted on Tuesday. He singled out B. F. Barker, of the Miller Auto Company, and Frank F. Davenport, the architect of appetites, as captains from the businessmen's gym class and called on them for speeches. Davenport made a modest little talk and called on Barker, who briefly sketched his sincere appreciation of the benefit the "Y" had been to him. "Dr. Becht's public speaking class helped me more than a year at college," he declared. "Same here!" chimed in a score of "Y" enthusiasts, looking up from the feast. Just at this moment, Samuel Klompus, enterprising newsboy who holds down the corner of Second and Walnut streets, rushed madly into the room, crying "Extra! Extra! All about the great Y. M. C. A. scandal! Every one perked up and "Sammy" reaped a harvest of nickels, dimes and quarters as he tossed out copies of the latest extra edition of the Harrisburg Telegraph containing a tale about the supper. "Great Scott! Those fellows sure are up-to-date," shouted Ross Swope, whose name was mentioned in the story. Casting a belligerent look at Gus M. Steinmetz, managing editor, he accused him of the crime and some one pointed out Allen Sangree, busily picking out pork and sauerkraut at the next table. "Ah, it was you, was it?" said Swope. But Sangree declined the honor and Swope is still mystified. P. T. Barnes, chairman of the social work committee, sketched briefly some plans for the coming activities. Secretary Robert B. Reeves made a short address and others spoke. A vote of thanks was given to Frank G. Roth, who supplied the sauerkraut, and to C. A. Harrisburg Telegraph

Some foods we eat, if hermetically sealed in a thin glass retort, as pictured here, would literally explode! No wonder we're half sick or only half efficient most of the time!

FOODS THAT EXPLODE

There are many foods, harmless in themselves, which when eaten in combination with other harmless foods produce a chemical reaction in the stomach and literally explode. If you could look into your stomach right after breakfast, lunch or dinner any day, you would understand the cause of over 90% of all sickness, why most men are less than 50% efficient and why the average life of man is only 39 years.

Food is the fuel of the human system—it furnishes the motive power for the day's work. Yet not one in a hundred knows the chemistry of food or the effects of different foods in combinations. Some of the meals we are constantly eating have the same effect on our system as dynamite, soggy wood, mud and a little coal would have on a furnace. No wonder we often lack the vital energy necessary to overcome every obstacle in our fight for success! No wonder so many of us are constantly being held back when we should be forging ahead! The trouble is that we're trying to run on fuel our system simply can't get any power out of.
