

OFFICIAL BOARD REORGANIZED AT GRACE CHURCH

E. B. Mitchell and J. R. Stoeck Resign After Many Years of Active Service

After records of service of unprecedented length in Harrisburg church circles, E. B. Mitchell and J. R. Stoeck have been retired, at their request, from the board of trustees of Grace Methodist Church. Mr. Mitchell has been a member of the body for forty-six years and Mr. Stoeck for thirty-eight. At a meeting Tuesday evening, Charles H. Kinter and Edwin S. Herman were elected as their successors.

Both Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Stoeck were members of the board of trustees before the church enjoyed the position it now possesses. They have been among the most active in advancing the interests of Methodist churches which have been instituted by Grace Church and which regard it as a mother church. Mr. Mitchell and Mr. Stoeck, in advancing reasons for their refusal to stand for reelection, explained that advancing years made it impossible for them to attend to the duties incident to the office as they should be.

Other members of the board of trustees, all re-elected at the Tuesday meeting, are: Z. Wallower, A. D. Bacon, Harry C. Ross, W. S. Snyder, John P. Melick, J. Harvey Patton and W. P. Starkey.

The board of stewards was reorganized last evening, following the fourth quarterly conference meeting. S. V. Larkin and C. M. McNaughton were elected new members of the board. Eighteen members were re-elected. They are: S. D. Sansom, C. W. Burnett, J. H. Sebour, M. A. Shetter, J. S. Sible, S. G. Stauffer, Edwin O. Shaffner, William R. Denehy, Willard S. Young, Frederick E. Downs, E. Fred Rowe, George L. Reed, E. E. Lawton, E. Bruce Taylor, J. Horace McFarland, J. W. Ellenberger, John C. Herman and Ehrman B. Mitchell.

These two boards, together with the Sunday school superintendent, the president of the Epworth League and the presidents of several women's societies of the church, make up the official board.

HEALING THE HEARTS OF DISABLED MEN

More Than 200,000 Are Under Treatment Here and Overseas—Provision Made for Compensation and Insurance

President Wilson, in a letter to the Federal Board for Vocational Education, has called attention to the fact that the government stands squarely behind the disabled fighting men. His letter follows:

This nation has no more solemn obligation than to heal the hearts of wounded and maimed men, to give them to civil life and opportunity. The medical department recognizes this, and the fulfillment of this obligation is going forward fully and generously. The medical divisions of the war and navy departments are rendering aid that skill and science make possible. Education is commanded by law to develop and adapt the remaining capabilities of each man so that he may again take his rightful place in the ranks of our great civilian army. The co-operation and interest of our citizens is essential to the success of our efforts for justice, and humanity. It is not a charity. It is merely the payment of a debt or loss which the United States of America accepted when it selected these men, and took them in their health and strength to fight the battles of the nation. They have fought the good fight; they have kept their faith; they have done their duty. We keep faith with them, and now we keep faith with their dependents. We are indorsement on the general obligation.

Under authority and direction of the Congress, complete arrangements have been made by the Federal Board for Vocational Education. The announcement estimates made since the last meeting of the board, show that 200,000 disabled men under treatment in the hospital in this country and overseas. Of this number more than one-fourth have been discharged from the hospital and are in the general idea of the casualty list, only a very small percentage of the total have suffered the effects of shell shock, gas, shrapnel, and gunshot wounds which have resulted in the amputation of limbs.

It is not merely the men who have lost limbs or lost eyes, but the government is offering to retrain and restore to self-supporting activity, but the Federal Board for Vocational Education, regardless of his disability, who is entitled to government compensation. The board realizes that the many thousands of men who are suffering from the effects of shell shock, gas, shrapnel, and gunshot wounds which have resulted in nervous diseases, all may be unable to perform their former occupations. To all these men, as to those with more evident handicaps, the Federal Board is extending opportunity.

Within the next few months several thousand disabled men will be training under jurisdiction of the Federal Board and at the expense of the government. Contrary to what is actually placed in training were taking courses in a wide range of trades and occupations, including twenty-seven different occupations in industrial schools, colleges, offices and shops throughout the country are being utilized. The men are being trained close to their own homes. Thirty-one per cent of the total are taking courses in agriculture, raising, dairying, etc. Others are learning the various phases of agriculture, including the raising of poultry, telegraph, tailoring, window trimming and designing, accounting, bookkeeping, and other shop practices, meat inspection and retail management.

THE VERY IDEA

"In Old Kentucky" Is a Drama of Life in Mountains and Blue Grass

Life in the Kentucky mountains and then in the bluegrass of the valleys below—hints of whisky stills concealed in caves, a feud and horse racing—all are combined to furnish thrills in the drama, "In Old Kentucky," presented at the Orpheum last night and to-day.

The play is presented in four acts and eight scenes, portraying the adventures of Frank Layson, son of Old Kentucky. Madge, a flower of the mountains, living alone far above the bluegrass; Horace Holton, the "willow" of the story, and Barbara Holton, his daughter, who is anxious to marry Frank. Then there are Colonel Sandusky Doolittle, speculator and horseman; and Aletha Layson, the Colonel's sweetheart. In the play, a mountaineer in love with Madge, Holton causes most of the suspense in the play—first by trying to start trouble between Layson and Madge, and then by trying to get Lorey out of the way. Later it develops that he was the man who killed Lorey's and Madge's fathers, and Joe settles accounts as a climax in the last act.

Lester Mitchell appears as Layson; Dorothy LaRue, as Madge; the Flying Ketchers, Holmes and Holliston in the comedy skit, "Miss Kiddy"; Lowry and Prince, variety entertainers; Melermott and Heazey in a singing and piano offering. Also the sixth episode of "The Lure of the Circus."

"I remember that all the time he was serving her, although he was a physician, he was practicing medicine. There is no doubt in my mind that the major mentioned in Major Packwood's letter, which made the name of Packwood's wife moved from here. I did not even have her address."

Other stories confirm her's. Mrs. Packwood before she committed suicide, was in the city of Tampa, Fla., where she was in the employ of the Red Cross Motor Corps, that "her husband" had died in France in October of 1918, and she was a major, but she did not mention his name.
