SOLDIER FINDS NAME ON TABLET

Young Man of Sharpsburg, Md., Wounded and Reported Dead, Returns

Waynesboro, Pa., March 4.—To see his own name engraved in golden letters upon the Roll of Honor for Washington county, Md., which was placed in front of the courthouse at Hagerstown, several days ago, was the experience of private Leonard Highbarger, of Sharpsburg, son of Mrs. Florence Hines, who arrived in Hagerstown, on Saturday, after having been discharged at Camp Meade, Admiral, Md. Private Highbarger returned to the states two weeks ago with a casualty company on board of the Japanese ship Matokia, which docked at Newport News, February 11. He left Hagerstown April 30, 1918, for Camp Meade, where he received his preliminary training as a member of Company H, Three Hundred and Thirtieth Infantry. He went overseas in the middle of July, and was wounded in the foot on September 19, while in the Montaucon drive, and was moved to an emergency hospital and later taken to a base hospital where all trace of him was lost.

Word was sent to relatives in Sharpsburg by members of Company H, stating that Highbarger had been killed in action, and a message to this effect was also sent by the War Department to his mother. To further confirm his death, the Bureau of War Risk Insurance sent his beneficiary a compensation claim form, stating that Private Highbarger had been killed. Private Highbarger was surprised to find his name in gold in the list of nearly two hundred Washington county soldiers who made the supreme sacrifice during the war. Another instance of this kind happened right here in Franklin county. The name of Keller Benedict, son of Mrs. Mary Benedict, this city, who was fighting in France, and was wounded, was reported as having been killed. The tablet bearing the names of soldiers making the supreme sacrifice, placed in front of the courthouse, Chambersburg, bore the name of Keller Benedict. This young man, too, was surprised to see his own name thereon.

TOP NOTCH PRICES

Waynesboro, Pa., March 4.—Spring farm sales in this section have been uniformly good, thanks to $2.20 wheat, $2 corn, $2 potatoes and sixty cent butter, which makes everybody want to rush into farming. But the topnotch in prices was hit last week in the sale on the Charles B. Nigh farm, on the Leitersburg pike, when two horses sold for $850, and eleven brought $2,619; cows sold as high as $190, eighteen of them bringing $2,433, and sheep selling for $18, with hogs in like proportion. The sale amounted in the aggregate to $11,000.

$300 Bequeathed to Greencastle Library

Greencastle, Pa., March 4.—Officers of the Greencastle Circulating Library have been notified that by the will of Mrs. Annie Kremer Shook, late of Greencastle, the library is bequeathed $300. The gift came as a great surprise to the members of the library and is but another evidence of the great interest Mrs. Shook had in the organization and in anything connected with Greencastle. She was one of the charter members of the library, investigator of the juvenile department, and at the time of her death president of the Library Association, a position that she frequently had held. Mrs. Shook's husband, who died a year before his wife, left an estate of $135,000 to found a home for the aged in Chambersburg.

Real Value in Clothes

—Many a man is in doubt as to what he should do about his spring suit.

—Once in a while you meet a man who says, "Prices will come down." That man is right. They will come down—but not yet.

—The finer materials are hard to get. The merchant who has not supplied himself with stocks will find that he will not be able to supply his trade.

—We have done two or three things that are of great benefit to our patrons. Firstly, we buy from manufacturers who are thoroughly well acquainted with conditions. Secondly, our clothes are of finest quality materials, more standard in value than the cheaper fabrics which fluctuate with every little tremble of the market.

—And thirdly, our prices are very low, considering the fact for the price you get the quality, the tailoring and the fashion that mean long service and true satisfaction.

—See these new spring suits and top coats. They are splendid values at $30 to $60.

Dignified Modes Characterize The Suits
For Women and Misses
Shown at This Establishment

ONE of the principal features of our business is the especial attention we give to the types of models. It is true that every effort is put forth to give our clientele the very last word of fashion from the foremost designers of women's garments in America—concerns whose chief aim is to meet the demands of the American woman's attire—but we would not accept from any maker garments which do not in every particular measure up to the critical standard set by our policy.

In short, a style might be considered by many stores to be a new creation, yet it would not be really fashionable, perhaps, because of its freakishness. Such fads are not to be found in the Schleisner stocks.

The well-dressed woman does not look for momentary style-spurts; rather she seeks the truly fashionable in refined dignity of mode. And so we are equipped to please her and to meet her individual taste with garments that have a permanent value to her both as to style and quality.

You can tell a Schleisner garment by its distinctive lines and fine tailoring; never by its "bombast."
