

READING CALLED RADICAL CENTER

Eighty-Eight Recruiting Stations in Its District, Humes Says

Washington, March 13.—Reading, Pa., was a big recruiting center for the "bloody class revolution" through which, according to the memorandum submitted to the Senate committee investigating lawless propaganda, by Solicitor General, of the Postoffice Department, the I. W. W.'s anarchists and Socialists in the United States planned to overthrow the Government.

According to a list of general recruiting stations for the American Bolsheviks filed with the committee today by Major E. Lowrey Humes, attorney for the committee, Reading was the recruiting center of the "Reds" of Eastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey. The radicals maintained eighty-eight recruiting stations in the Reading district, according to the documents filed by Major Humes.

With the statement of the number of recruiting stations and a list of industrial unions of the I. W. W. which aided in the work of organizing the I. W. W.'s anarchists and Socialists for the proposed translations of more than fifty circulars and posters published since the signing of the armistice, and excerpts from books written by radical leaders, all of which, in the opinion of Major Humes, incited to sabotage and revolution.

The Senate committee in its report on the investigation will recommend drastic legislation against the "Reds," Senator Overman, chairman of the committee, said.

Hog Island Plans Were in Germany

Philadelphia, March 13.—Complete plans of the entire shipbuilding project at Hog Island, with valuable information of the work being accomplished and that to be undertaken, were found in Germany by agents of the army intelligence corps.

This was made known today after officials of the Fleet Corporation announced that 254 men, classed as dangerous spies, who succeeded in getting employment at Hog Island, were arrested and prosecuted during the war. The Hog Island guard and secret service engineered the arrests, with the help of agents of the Department of Justice and members of the intelligence corps of the army and navy.

The plans were obtained and forwarded to Germany despite the most efficient work by the guards and secret agents at the plant, but they did not get through in time to allow the "war lords" to plan measures that would hinder operations of the yard.

The plans were detailed, but showed by their errors that those who had drawn them up had evidently been forced to do their work away from the inspiration and actualities of the yard by the vigilance of the guards. As a matter of fact, a high official of the company said today, the plans served only the purpose of letting Germany know what was already suspected—that the United States was sparing no expense and no resource in its determination to overcome the Central Powers.

Philadelphia Teachers Form Labor Union

Philadelphia, March 13.—Women teachers of Philadelphia are getting ready to join the ranks of organized labor.

Within two weeks they expect to have a chartered teachers' union here. Its membership will include virtually every woman teacher in Philadelphia's public schools.

Through this new organization the teachers hope to gain the salary increase which they have been struggling unsuccessfully to get as individuals. It is said that the teachers in Philadelphia's primary schools are worse paid than those in any other big city in the United States.

Textile Owners to Share Their Profits

Philadelphia, March 13.—More than 150,000 textile workers in Philadelphia ultimately will be the beneficiaries of a profit-sharing plan which has been approved by the Men and Managements Textile Council, comprising a majority of the large textile mill owners in this city.

The plan already has been adopted by the Full-Fashioned Hosiery Manufacturers' Association, and will be submitted to the 8000 workers in that branch of the industry for approval.

Advice to the Lovelorn From a Real Man

DEAR MISS PARFAX: I have been reading your interesting little talks and "Advice to the Lovelorn" for some time and find some of the questions quite amusing, especially in Friday's paper: "What Makes Married Life Dull?" I want to say: "People make it dull themselves. I have been married for seventeen years. Since my wife died last fall leaving me with six children ranging in age from three to sixteen years, I have felt that those seventeen were the happiest years of my life. If two people ever lived happily together, we did. My idea of a dull married life is that there is too much selfishness on both sides; the husband not taking any interest in the house or home more than a boarder and the wife uninterested in the occupation of her husband. Many an evening husband comes home with worries either in labor or business, is met by a smiling, sympathizing wife and tidy house, no matter how humble, and by the time supper is ready there will be enough subjects to discuss to outlast the meal.

And, a home with children is happier than a home without them for they bind the husband and wife closer together in love and happiness. At the same time the man ought to help his wife in anything she is interested in and then her love for him will never grow cold and at the same time he is bringing happiness to himself. Some husbands do not appreciate the worth of a good wife until she is gone, and then it is too late. V. M. S.

Looks For Rapid Growth Here in Next Few Years; Hat Off to the New Hotel

A solitary figure stood looking from the lobby windows of the Penn-Harris hotel, studying the outlines of the Capitol. He remained there for quite a time, intent upon nothing but what went on in the street and the park beyond. Turning the man approached George M. Harry, at the cigar and news stand, and began a discussion of Harrisburg, its growth and its possibilities as a city. Harrisburg has a great future he said. It has so many natural advantages and steps for its improvement along metropolitan lines will result in rapid development, he predicted. "I expect great things for your city in the next few years," he said to Mr. Harry. "I take off my hat to the architect of this hotel," he continued. "It is beautiful. It is so easy of access from the grill to the main dining room that it is not necessary to use the elevator. It is altogether fine."

The speaker was Joseph M. Huston, designer of the Capitol, and from his pleasant frame of mind and youthful appearance events have not dealt harshly with him.

From Watchmaker to Successful Farmer

Cochran, Ont., March 13.—John Gydin was a watchmaker in Montreal five years ago. Today he is rated as one of the most successful farmers in the Great Clay belt of northern Ontario. He made $30 a week at his trade as a watchmaker. He was barely able to support his family. He decided to take a chance as a farmer. Today he owns 640 acres of land, a fine home, a large dairy herd, horses, sheep and hogs. His wheat crop last year at war prices netted him more than he made all his life as a watchmaker.

PRICES RETARD BUILDING. Washington, March 13.—High prices of materials and high wages remain the most moderate factors in preventing increased building activities, the Department of Labor announced yesterday after compiling answers to questionnaires from seventy-four cities.

Vassar Women Take Charge of Verdun Relief

New York, March 13.—Seven young women sent to France as a Red Cross unit organized by Vassar College, have been designated by the French Government to take charge of relief work at Verdun, it was announced here tonight. They will begin Saturday the relief of refugees who have been forbidden until now to return to the desolate district which was the scene of such desperate fighting.

This Vassar unit was one of two groups sent to France by the college last fall. When they reached France the military situation was so urgent that they were temporarily put into the military branch of the Red Cross service and have been working at Savenay, organizing recreation, libraries and canteens and acting as searchers in connection with the lists of missing.

Will Put Buffalo Meat on the Market

Wainwright, Alta., March 13.—The herd of buffalo or American bison in the Wainwright Buffalo park has become so large and is increasing so rapidly that the Dominion government is planning to kill a limited number of the animals yearly and sell the meat in the public market. Three animals were killed this winter. When the meat was placed on sale in Toronto, the public rushed to buy it. Buffalo steaks and roasts of buffalo hump, according to Toronto to citizens, lived up to the reputation for juiciness and tenderness given by old frontiersmen.

KAUFMAN'S MARKET SQUARE UNDERSELLING STORE. 1200 Fine Cotton Waists, 500 Jap Silk Waists, 1500 Crepe de Chine Waists, 1000 Georgette Waists.

Now For The Greatest Waist Sale Harrisburg Has Ever Had! Just as we told you in the story yesterday there are 5000 charming stylish waists to start this big event. The result of a huge special purchase from twenty different waist manufacturers. Sale starts tomorrow morning at 8.30 o'clock.

This Sale is entirely different from any Waist Sale we have ever held. It is so different from the usual run of waist sales that we hardly know where to begin to describe them. The unique feature of this sale is that the waists are all the very latest models which were made for good concerns all over the country. The big waist makers' strike in New York caused the manufacturers a great deal of concern. Many of them had orders which would have been shipped had it not been for the waist strike. The manufacturers wanted to complete their orders before shipping them. When the trouble fell upon them they had to give the matter their serious attention and while they did not like the idea of selling such good waists for such little money they did accept our offer to buy what they had on hand for spot cash.

Our buyer accompanied by our New York Representative, scoured the market for these waists. We had planned this sale weeks ago and were going to have it if it possibly could be accomplished. The strike conditions in New York made things look dark momentarily but with the usual grit of this big store our buyer hunted for the waists and found them. The result of his efforts are shown in the big assortment which will be offered in the sale. You simply cannot afford to miss this sale. The prices are extremely low, but you do not need to consider prices for the style and qualities are so attractive you will marvel at the values. Better come early and buy plenty to last you the summer through.
