CHAPTER CXLVIII

"So you've never been matron of honor at a wedding?" cried Betty, in high good humor at her own joke. "Well, do you think, as a special favor to every one, you could manage to be—"

"To-morrow!" interrupted Terry in a tone that sounded like a chant of victory and a hymn of praise in one.

"To-morrow?" I gasped.

"Here, here, sister Anne; I'll disfranchise you as a sister if you spoil my work for me! It's taken me a deuce of a while to make Betty see the light. Now don't reopen the argument. It's closed!"

Terry's voice was jolly and friendly, but there was the light of command in his eyes. It was Betty who explained with sweet womanliness:

"He wants to take care of me, Anne. And I'm proud to let him. I guess I've always wanted to be taken care of anyway. . . . And I never have before."

Betty whispered that last sentence so gently that I knew it was just to Terry she spoke—not to me, and I began to think I had better run off for another walk with Miss

Moss. But Terry was mangling things now, and he thought otherwise.

"Now, here's the plan, sister," said he. "I'm going back to the city at once to attend to a few details. To-morrow I'll be down again with Jim and Virginia and Tony—our wedding guests. A minister, a license—and there you are. The bride has no trouble at all, not even the trousseau to buy. That'll be Virginia's job."

"Where do I come in?" I asked, divided between delight at Terry's efficient planning and the longing to do my bit toward Betty's wedding.

"You stay and keep Betty from running away and deserting me at the altar," ordered Terry.

Just then Miss Moss came back, bringing the doctor and assistant nurse to dress Betty's arm. Terry and I sat in the waiting room while that went on, and the dear old groaned and fumed as I'm sure he never would have dreamed of doing under the impersonal mold of the nurse. "You mustn't go in now. They've given her a sedative and she'll sleep. Perhaps she's had too much excitement for one day."

"Well, she ought to get a good rest," I agreed, "for she's going to be married to-morrow."

"What?" gasped Miss Moss in a thin, shaking voice.

"They're going to be married—to be married to-morrow!" I carolled joyously, though I didn't forget to lower my voice to a mere thread of sound.

Miss Moss' little figure grew tense, and then she turned and fitted wrath-like down the corridor before me. I had to follow where she led.

At the door of the waiting room she stopped and started to speak. Her indecisive little chin quivered, her light eyes grew payer than ever and all of a sudden she sped away, with a half-sob, "Wait, I'll send the doctor."

She hadn't said a word of rejoicing over Betty's coming marriage.

Then, lightheartedly and joyously, I wandered back to the pavilion where Betty lay and to the very door of her room. At the first touch of my hand to the knob the door opened and out came Miss Moss looking very gray and old.

"They've hurt her so, the brave darling," she said, leaning up against me for a moment in the relaxation of being all-woman; then, in a second, she had stiffened back into the impersonal mold of the nurse. "You mustn't go in now. They've given her a sedative and she'll sleep. Perhaps she's had too much excitement for one day."

"Well, she ought to get a good rest," I agreed, "for she's going to be married to-morrow."

"What?" gasped Miss Moss in a thin, shaking voice.

LODGE WOULD FAVOR LEAGUE IF AMENDED

Must Be Changed So as to Promote Peace, He Tells Audience

By Associated Press

London, March 20.—"If the league shall be put in such shape that it will promote peace instead of breeding disorder and will work no injustice to these United States, I will support it," said Senator Henry Cabot Lodge in replying to a question of President A. Lawrence Lowell, of Harvard, during their debate on the League of Nations covenant last night.

"I hope from my heart it will be amended," he added. "I hope that such a league will be framed somewhere. In my belief it will not be done in Paris."

A demand from Dr. Lowell that Mr. Lodge say whether he would vote for the covenant if it were amended according to his wishes, led to the Senator's declaration.

Addressing an audience of 2,000 persons in Symphony Hall, the distinguished speaker was applauded liberally, frequently and apparently impartially.

"There was no heckling, though cries of 'good' and 'that's right,' followed telling points in the arguments."

Senator Lodge outlined his attitude briefly, as in favor of a League of Nations, but not of the covenant as presented.

"The whole treaty should be re-drafted," he asserted. "That is my first constructive criticism."

Referring to the charge that the criticisms of the covenant were not constructive, Senator Lodge pointed out a number of things which he would amend the treaty, laying especial stress on the need of protection of the Monroe doctrine.

"The hour is rapidly approaching," said Dr. Lowell, in summing up his plea for the covenant, "when we must decide whether our country shall take its place as a great and generous nation side by side with others as guardians of law, order and justice in the world, or whether it shall turn its face away from a world in agony."

He prefaced his argument with the statement that although he had always been "an inconsistent Republican" and frequently had been in agreement with Senator Lodge, he could not agree with his utterances on the League of Nations covenant, and still less with those of his Senatorial colleagues.

Dr. Lowell maintained the correctness of the sentiment in principle, arguing that while "very defective in its drafting" and "easily misunderstood" it should be "accepted and improved."

He described it as an experiment in open diplomacy.

To meet certain objections raised, Dr. Lowell advocated the insertion of clauses in the covenant permitting withdrawals from the league on reasonable notice, stipulating that no foreign powers shall acquire any possessions on the American continents and making it perfectly clear that immigration and tariff problems are to be regarded as purely internal affairs.

ANNUITY FUND OF M. E. CHURCH TO GET $40,000

Other Important Appropriations Made by Conference at Sunbury

Sunbury, Pa., March 20.—"Home Interests" was the subject given attention at to-day's meeting of the fifty-first yearly meeting of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, in session at St. John's Church.

Decision to appropriate $40,000 to the annuity fund for retired ministers of the church was made. This will be raised among the churches of the conference. The sum of $5,000 will be raised for conference administration purposes and $10,000 for home mission work was decided upon. For a children's home $15,000 will be raised during the conference year, as will $15,000 for a home for aged members of the conference.

The following reports were made: Dickinson Seminary, by the Rev. B. C. Conner, president, Williamsport; Annuity Fund, the Rev. Charles W. Carns, Carlisle; Conference Mutual Benefit Association, T. S. Wilcox, Williamsport; secretary of the Educational Endowment Fund; the Rural Preachers' Association, the Rev. W. W. Willard, Warriors' Mark; The Conference Home Missionary Society, the Rev. A. S. The appointment was made by the Dauphin County Court, when no objections were made by directors of the bank. The officials of the Park Bank are: E. C. Chalfont, president; E. M. Diebold, vice-president, and J. S. Swartz, cashier.

SUES TRACTION COMPANY

Suit has been brought against the Harrisburg Railways Company for $5,000 damages by Ida C. Wein, who, in a statement filed today, alleges she was severely injured when a street car suddenly started at Second and Foster streets, on the evening of January 25, as she was stepping from the rear platform.

PERMITS ISSUED

Building permits were issued to John Stant, contractor for John Glaser, for the erection of an addition to the rear of 415 Harris street, at a cost of $600, and to H. W. Black, contractor for David Rineard, to erect a one-story brick garage at the rear of 2111 North Second street, for $500.

KEEP LOOKING YOUNG

It's Easy—If You Know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound mixed with olive oil to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the substitute for calomel, are gentle in their action yet always effective. They bring about that exuberance of spirit, that natural buoyancy which should be enjoyed by everyone, by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

You will know Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets by their olive color. 10c and 25c per box. All druggists.

RHEUMATIC PAINS DISAPPEAR
BLISS NATIVE HERB TABLETS
PRAISED BY MANY

"Twenty years ago I was bothered with rheumatic pains through my shoulders and lungs to such an extent that my head was drawn down on my chest causing great suffering. After trying different medicines, I was finally persuaded to try Bliss Native Herb Tablets. After taking this remedy for a week I could move my head, and after continuing treatment for a short time was able to work."

Mrs. S. Crump, Bridgeport, Ill.

"I can cheerfully say that Bliss Native Herb Tablets have done me a world of good, and I would not be without them. I have not had rheumatism for the past four years. I can also say they are fine for a gripe."

"MRS. LILLIE T. VAN VILPIT, Strasburg, Pa.

A rheumatic condition is one of the results of constipation, which is also a forerunner of biliousness, sick headache, and indigestion. Unless attended to promptly, a system becomes so clogged up that serious consequences are sure to follow.

Bliss Native Herb Tablets are a most effective remedy for the relief of this condition. They act gently but firmly on the liver and bowels, drive out impurities, tone up the system, and restore good health. One tablet at night will make the next day bright. Old and young find them indispensable.

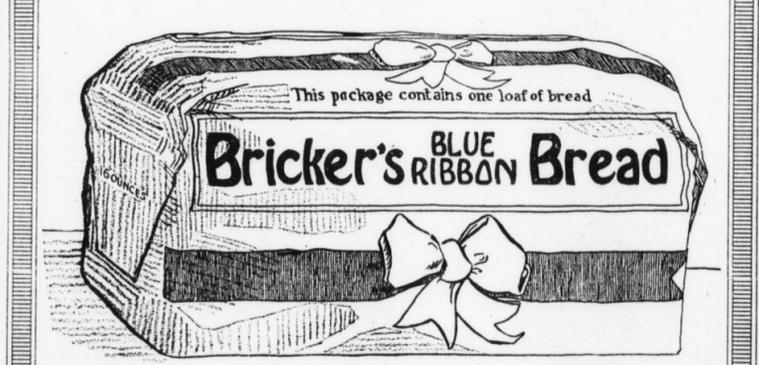

Bliss Native Herb Tablets are put up in a yellow box of 500 tablets. The portrait of Alonzo O. Bliss is on every box. Each tablet is stamped with our trade mark. Price $1 per box. Look for our money-back guarantee on every box. Sold by leading druggists and local agents everywhere.

Tall Cedars of Lebanon to Be Organized Here

Through the interest of C. M. Poet, past grand tall cedar of Lancaster Forest, No. 27, Tall Cedars of Lebanon, all the preliminary arrangements have been completed and Lancaster Forest, No. 27, Lebanon, their office at March 22, but it numbering 150 together with their band of twenty-five pieces will institute Harrisburg Forest, No. 43, Tall Cedars, in Chestnut Street Hall, next Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock.

The committee cannot state definitely how many candidates will be in the class as applications will be received as late as March 22, but it will probably exceed 300. This organization is said to be of great interest to the members of the Masonic fraternity as it is of a purely social nature and has met with great success in Philadelphia, Reading, Lancaster, and neighboring cities.

The officers of this infant forest are as follows: Francis C. Neely, grand tall cedar; John H. Nixon, senior deputy grand tall cedar; John W. Dennis, junior deputy grand tall cedar; Cloyd C. Holland, scribe, and and Robert D. Frazer, treasurer.

What Kind of a Furnace Do You Have in Your Home?

Does your furnace heat your entire home?
Does it heat uniformly?
Do you have to fire up often?
Do you have much trouble starting a fire?
Do you waste a lot of coal?
Do you burn much coal?
Are you satisfied with the furnace you now use?
If you use the CALORIC, we know that you are satisfied; if you use some other kind, you perhaps are not satisfied.
The CALORIC saves you 35 to 50 per cent. of your coal. Is not that worth a lot to you?

Caloric Furnace Co.,
22 N. Court St.,
Harrisburg, Pa.:—Your letter of the 13th at hand, and I am more than glad to be writing you a letter. I was just thinking today as for the Caloric Furnace, there is none better. I don't care where they come from or who makes them. I don't care how they are made, as long as they are good. My whole family is in the kitchen, only when I never had so much satisfaction in my home as I have had this winter, and I have burned just half the fuel as in my heater.

I don't need any fire in the kitchen, only when I had this winter. Nothing but a Caloric for me. It is just a dream. I don't need any fire in the kitchen, only when I had this winter. Nothing but a Caloric for me. It is just a dream. I don't need any fire in the kitchen, only when I had this winter. Nothing but a Caloric for me. It is just a dream.

Yours respectfully,
W. W. COLE,
