Keep Up the War Gardens

The war garden of America has become an institution of world-wide importance. Last year's crop being estimated at $520,000,000. These figures and a lot of valuable data on home gardening are published in a pamphlet issued by the National War Garden Commission, entitled "Victory Edition of War Gardening and Home Storage of Vegetables."

This helped tremendously in putting the Allies "Over the Top" and the commission requests all who can possibly do so to keep up the good work this year. It means economy for the individual and contributes to the world's food supply. And the unsettled conditions of affairs in Europe the year following the war makes it necessary to supply food to those who have not settled to peaceful pursuits.
