Bowman's. Bell 1901—2356 United. Wednesday, June 4, 1919. Founded 1871. The explosion took place about 11:15 o'clock. I had been in the library on the first floor, and had just turned out the lights and gone upstairs to my room. I had reached the upper floor and undressed, but had not yet retired. "I heard a crash downstairs as if something had been thrown against the door. It was followed immediately by an explosion which blew in the front of the house. The door against which it was thrown led into the library in which we had been sitting, and the part of the house blown in was in front of the library. The police and other agents who hurried to the residence to make an investigation found in the street in front of the house the limbs of a man who had been blown to pieces by the bomb. No papers were found and no evidence has yet been uncovered to indicate his identity, and it is not yet known whether the limbs were those of the person who threw the bomb or of a passerby. I hope sincerely that they were not portions of the body of some innocent person passing the house. "No one inside the house was injured by the explosion. It cracked the upper part of the first story of the house, blew in the front of the lower floor, broke windows, and knocked pictures from the wall. The damage done was chiefly downstairs."

Johnson Directs Terrorists

Johnson, who the police say was the directing genius of the bomb plot in this city, was held in jail to-day with a score of other alleged anarchists arrested yesterday and last night. Bail was refused in each case. In a partial confession made to the police late yesterday afternoon Johnson is said to have named a Cleveland man as the maker of the bombs exploded here. This man, whose name the police withheld, is said to have operated under orders of the radical headquarters in New York and is believed to have gone to Chicago after the explosions here. A search for him was being made in that city to-day.

Among the important suspects arrested last night was Mike Eleista, also known as Zeleste, said by the police to be secretary of the Russian Soviet organization in Pittsburgh and a delegate from the Petrograd Council of Workmen and Peasants, sent to this country to spread Bolshevik propaganda. A large quantity of I. W. W. and anarchist literature was found on the suspects, which the police turned over to agents of the Department of Justice to aid in running down perpetrators of the nationwide bomb plot.

In his activities as Allen Property Custodian the present Attorney General of the United States, A. Mitchell Palmer came upon evidences that German merchants, even while the war was on, planned to recapture the trade lost through the struggle and to make this country their headquarters in the campaign. He traced this plot down to its source and last August gave out a statement in which he exposed the attempt of German chemists to tighten their grip on the market and shut out American and other competition after the war.

Speaking of the bomb explosion at his residence in Washington he said: "The explosion took place about 11:15 o'clock. I had been in the library on the first floor, and had just turned out the lights and gone upstairs to my room. I had reached the upper floor and undressed, but had not yet retired. "I heard a crash downstairs as if something had been thrown against the door. It was followed immediately by an explosion which blew in the front of the house. The door against which it was thrown led into the library in which we had been sitting, and the part of the house blown in was in front of the library. No papers were found and no evidence has yet been uncovered to indicate his identity, and it is not yet known whether the limbs were those of the person who threw the bomb or of a passerby. I hope sincerely that they were not portions of the body of some innocent person passing the house. "No one inside the house was injured by the explosion. It cracked the upper part of the first story of the house, blew in the front of the lower floor, broke windows, and knocked pictures from the wall. The damage done was chiefly downstairs."

VICTORY FETE HELD FLAG DAY

Camp Hill Community Carnival Promises to Be Largest and Finest of Them All. The date selected for the annual community carnival held by the Camp Hill Civic Club is June 14, and, most appropriately comes on Flag Day. This is a little later than usual, but Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Shaar, who are training the children for the dances have planned some novelties and needed the extra time. The carnival will take the form of a Victory Fete, both novel and beautiful. Mrs. George W. Kehr will have charge of a booth representing a Y. M. C. A. canteen, Mrs. J. C. Armstrong and her assistants will be Salvation Army lassies who will fry luscious doughnuts while you wait. Mrs. Carl K. Deen will have charge of the Emergency Aid restroom, while Mrs. William H. Dennison's table will contain all sorts of camping and pressing accessories. Mrs. H. W. Zook and Mrs. Harvard Zacharias will sell plants and flowers; Mrs. Dorsey Worley will have a wonderful display of aprons, garden hats and baskets and Mrs. E. S. Mills heads a committee serving a wonderfully fine supper. Amusements of all sorts, novelties and prizes will be introduced in Camp Hill will fill the day full of wholesome fun. The patrons can learn how to become rich and famous by following the advice of the fortune teller whose knowledge of the future will be at their disposal after crossing the pain with silver.

Mining Cost High

The price paid for labor, material, supplies and the other numerous conditions encountered in mining makes the cost per ton in cars at the breaker high. "In making a preliminary estimate of the coal lands Williams and Williams geologists by using the second geological survey as a basis for acreage and aggregate thickness of coal a large tonnage was obtained by T. E. Davies, mining engineer, but as a result of a careful examination of the properties with their present developments and having found considerable areas in very faulty condition in the coal beds I find that in Williams township 44,530,800 tons of coal remain unmined, and in Wiconisco township, 20,483,305 tons, or a total of 65,014,105 tons in the several tracts in the two townships of Dauphin county."
