Discontinue Camp Meade as Demobilization Center
Coming as a natural result of the decrease in the number of men returning from overseas, many camps at which demobilizing has been effected are to no longer demobilization centers. Colonel J. B. Kemper, the Army recruiting officer for this district says that it has been decided to discontinue the use of Camp Meade, Custer, Bowie, Funsong and Jackson, and Fort Oglethorpe, as demobilization centers. After July 10 no more troops will be sent to these camps for discharge.

The use of Camp Upton as a demobilization camp will be discontinued after July 15, and the use of Boston, Massachusetts, and Charleston, South Carolina, as ports of embarkation, will be discontinued after July 15.

Due to the discontinuance of the use of these camps, after July 10 men from overseas enroute for points in Northern Texas will be sent to Camp Pike for discharge; men for points in the northern and southern peninsula of Michigan will be sent to Camps Grant and Sherman; men for Kansas will be sent to Camp Dodge; men for Tennessee, South Carolina and Florida will be sent to Camp Gordon; men being sent to Newport News and bound for points in Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia, and men from New York for Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia and the District of Columbia will be sent to Camp Lee and Dix.

Famous Old Indian Is Honored by Y. M. C. A.

CHIEF SHIKELLIMY

Camp Shikellimy, the Y. M. C. A. camp for boys which opens its new site at Big Pond the 23d of July, is named after the Indian chief who figured so largely in early Pennsylvania history.

In 1739 a meeting was held at Lancaster between delegates from Pennsylvania, Virginia and Maryland with a large number of Indians to consider the signing of the Treaty of Lancaster, as it was called, which had to do with the payment of claims which the Indians had on some land. After several days of parleying, the Indians were urged to sign the treaty, which gave them a certain number of pounds in return for their land. Shikellimy, who had been a great friend to Conrad Weiser, the interpreter, refused to sign, as he felt that the consideration was not sufficiently large and that the Indians were too much under the influence of the liquor which had been given them to reason rightly. By Weiser's diplomatic skill, however, the Onondia chief was induced to sign.

The drinking fountain erected opposite the Dauphin County Historical Society in Front street, just below the Market street bridge, is dedicated to Conrad Weiser and Shikellimy and bears an inscription telling of their friendship.

Visiting the Shops With Adele

Of course one must spend money—it is the only logical thing to do. But the difficulty lies in mastering the art of spending wisely. Now that the war is past we are beginning to ponder over the matter of retouching our homes in the way of framed pictures, candlesticks and mirrors. And since houses must wear their costumes much more steadily than their owners, the matter is a serious one. But a visit to the Saltzger's, 223 North Second street, will help solve all questions that may arise. For instance, Mr. Saltzger just received a new lot of beautiful Maxfield Parish pictures including "Cleopatra," "Dinky Bird," and the "Garden of Allah" and "Arabian Night" series, any of which would prove a rare addition to a home.

An electric vacuum cleaner! What a thing of magic to the weary housewife! This new machine brings from the back-breaking method of sweeping with a broom far exceeds its value in mere dollars and cents, and the speed and thoroughness with which it cleans is truly remarkable. In a short time all dust has disappeared within its yawning mouth and the wife and mother is free to go about her other duties, fresh and untired as though she had not just completed what, in times gone by, had proved a most exhausting task. Don't be a slave to tyrant broom. Visit the Dauphin Electric Supply Co., 434 Market street, the home of everything electric, purchase one of their excellent cleaners, and enjoy life as you should.

Speaking of crowds, have you seen those that are constantly collecting before the Doutrich store? Ever since the opening of the mammoth silk shirt sale, on Saturday morning, recent breaking throughs have been pouring through the doorway of the establishment. Outside, passersby stop to gaze in amazement at the scene presented within, wondering whether it is real or just a dream conjured by a fevered imagination. Shirts, shirts everywhere, and all of finest silk. And the astounding rapidity with which they are disappearing is almost incredible. Every man grasping the full significance of the opportunity is eager to take advantage of it. As a result, Doutrich is on the march toward which hundreds of shopping pilgrims unceasingly wend their way.

What woman does not revel in filmy negligee and cool, silken nightgowns? How many feminine hearts can resist the temptation of the dainty apparel worn only in the seclusion of the boudoir? None, I dare say. And who can blame them when such confections are placed before her view as that on which my eyes so recently feasted at the Closs shop? It is a sleeping robe, a perfect dream of flesh colored georgette crepe, tiny rosebuds, ribbons of delicate blue and orchid hues, and finest of lace. Mere suggestions of sleeves lead one to believe that a second thought had cut them short. All in all, the effect is ravishing and the entire garment seems to say, "Pass me by—'t you can."
