

INVALID FOUND DEAD IN SPRING

Bachelor Missing From Home, Is Discovered Corpse in Water

Sunbury, Aug. 8.—Eugene Barnhart, of Rush township, Northumberland county, met death Wednesday under peculiarly tragic circumstances. For some time he had been an invalid. Early Wednesday morning he was missing from his room. A search was instituted and his body was found in a spring with head and shoulders immersed. Whether it was a deliberately planned suicide or the man accidentally fell into the spring and was drowned has not been established. Barnhart was a bachelor about sixty-two years of age and for a number of years lived alone. He was especially unfortunate in his time. Twelve or fifteen years ago while working on a possible saw mill he lost his left hand in the saw. Relying upon his right hand he managed to get along, however, until last January, when he sustained a stroke of apoplexy, which disabled his right side affecting the use of his right arm. Following this he had been more or less despondent.

William H. Keller Is Without Opponent For Superior Judgeship

William H. Keller, for years first Deputy Attorney General, will be the only candidate at the fall elections for Superior Court Judge. The last day for filing nomination petitions has passed and no other candidate has appeared to contest the place. The office is one of the highest in the State and Mr. Keller's friends say the decision of other lawyers not to get into the race is a compliment to him. Mr. Keller is a resident of Lancaster where for many years he has been a leading member of the bar.

Only two judicial districts of those to elect this fall will escape contests, while in the Warren district there is no aspirant for the place of Associate Judge. No new petitions were filed on the last day. Judgeship candidates have been notified to appear at the State Department next Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock to draw for positions on the primary ballot, under a recently-passed law requiring that when there are contests the candidates must cast lots for the order in which their names are to appear on the ticket. The old law required the names to appear in alphabetical order.

ARRIVES IN TOWN FROM BOGOTA

Howard Kitchen Coming Here Tells of Conditions in Central America

HOWARD KITCHEN

Howard Kitchen, whose interesting story on the treaty pending between Colombia and the United States, appeared some time ago in the Telegraph, is at his home, Seventeenth and Walnut streets, on a visit of indefinite length. For the past three years he has been a resident of Bogota, Colombia, where he represents the Rudolph Wurlitzer Co., piano manufacturers.

Mr. Kitchen arrived here yesterday after an interesting homeward journey, leaving Bogota, July 1, he has been on the way ever since, due to the influence of the seamen's strike. He experienced great difficulty in getting down the Magdalena river, which is known as one of the fiercest that flows northward. The railroad companies, with their wood-burning engines, were at odds with the steamboat companies and the result was a series of delays.

On reaching Colon another delay occurred in the form of a port quarantine. This quarantine is always placed on travelers passing from Colombia to Colon, despite the fact that it is little more than a waste of time, as yet, not a single one of the persons thus held has developed a case of tropical sickness during his enforced stay.

At the end of the five days of confinement, Mr. Kitchen discovered that once more he was up against a difficult problem. There were no boats running to Havana. Eventually, however, he managed to procure a small one that undertook the trip, but on arriving there found he was once more in what was now becoming a familiar predicament. As a result, he went to Key West and made the remaining part of the journey by rail.

Mr. Kitchen, in speaking of Bogota said that it is not a hot country. Lying 10,000 feet above sea level, its climate is such as to necessitate the wearing of overcoats.

Go South, Young Man He stated that Colombia presents wonderful opportunities for young men and that it is a most interesting place in which to live, due to the great difference in language and customs. All the newspapers are printed in the popular language, Spanish, and the only news reaching them from the outside world is that of international importance. As a rule, it arrives at Bogota several days late. In the case of the signing of the armistice, word was received exactly two days after the event occurred.

Incidentally Bogota has its share of Ford's, but they sell for $1,800. It boasts of "movies," too, showing films from three to four years old either in Detroit, Mich., and are musical comedies are absolutely unknown, although Cuban and Mexican opera troupes make occasional visits to the country.

Visiting the Shops With Adele

BY ADELE

I KNOW it's perfectly amazing, but it's true just the same! And though it may seem ridiculous, it really isn't! What am I talking about? Why, simply this: Beginning to-morrow and continuing until Monday evening, the Paul Shoe Store is offering remarkable reductions on pumps. When I say "remarkable," that's exactly what I mean. Mr. Paul has placed every remaining pair of his rapidly disappearing stock in one or two lots, and will sell them for $4.40 and $2.50. In other words, all pumps will be disposed of at these prices regardless of the actual value, and you will be able to procure those worth as much as $10.00 for just $4.40. Can you afford to miss the opportunity? Hardly!

THIS time we give a vote of thanks to both China and Bernard. And any one who has seen the little imported model of tricotine and satin, being shown at the Closs Shop, realizes just how much we have to be thankful for. A one-piece frock—disguised to present a three-piece effect—immediately captivates the fancy. Wonderful Chenille and floss embroidery, every bit done by hand, covers the heavy Duchess satin of the sleeves and peplum, and a collar of point Irish lace adds the finishing touch to the frock. Designed by a master, it does full credit to his art, and loudly proclaims that Harrisburg, through the Closs Shop, shall benefit by the best suggestions that Paris has to offer.

THEY said it was going to be and—it is! In fact there's no let-up. All through the entire day the brisk buying continues. Indeed, you'd think that some of the salespeople would be weary after passing through such a rush as Doutrichs have experienced at their marked-down sale. It seems that the logical thing to expect would be depressed looking, tired-out individuals who would give you half-hearted service. But the contrary is true. A more lively, cheerful group of people you never saw, and all because it is part of their daily program to serve and smile. They delight in seeing their friends save money and enjoy assisting the throngs of enthusiastic buyers who are spending it, save.

THERE is such a difference in pictures! Again and again we visit homes where the walls are covered with meaningless copies of still more meaningless blossoms. And while they may be prettily enough, utterly fail to convey any absolutely worth-while idea. In other words, they lack individuality and as a result detract from the room in which they hang. Now, isn't it foolish for us to purchase anything so insipid? Of course it is. Particularly when J. Saltzger, 223 North Second street, offers us an unusual assortment of framed pictures, all of marked character and individuality, each bearing a genuine message or telling an interesting story.

DID anyone ever tell you why you should always buy a genuine Thermos bottle rather than an imitation? I, myself, just learned the reason last evening while talking to Dr. George C. Feltz at his drug store, Third and Herr streets, and it interested me to such an extent that I'm passing it on to you. We were looking at a number of practical Thermos lunch kits. Naturally, the conversation drifted to Thermos bottles. To my surprise, I discovered that if the glass bottle within the case is broken it can only be replaced when belonging to a genuine Thermos. For that reason alone, imitations should be carefully avoided. Always protect yourself by looking on the bottom for the word "Thermos." And, if it's not there, remember this warning.

Tomorrow--- The Last Day

Tomorrow winds it up. It's the last day of my Twice-a-Twelve-month Sale. The women of Harrisburg have been buying my stock at prices which in many cases were but a third the original figures. This meant that I was selling far below what the goods cost me. But it enabled me to clear my racks and start next season with absolutely up-to-date seasonable apparel. And though I sacrificed a great deal of money it is a good policy in the long run.

Tomorrow everything left from the first five days' selling will go. The prices quoted will ensure that. Call early. Store closes tomorrow at one o'clock. I refuse to carry any items over. If they don't go tomorrow I'll have to sell them to some speculator at a few cents on the dollar.
