"Why doesn't Jim come? Oh, why doesn't Jim come?" I thought in mental and physical exhaustion as I stood bracing myself against the door and tried to figure out a way to deal with the drug-crazed man who faced me.

Dick West's dark lips were twisted into an ugly smile of anticipated triumph. His eyes—seemingly intent on the watch he held in his unsteady hand—gave me the impression of being fixed on me at the same time. I couldn't think. I couldn't plan. My ankle hurt almost beyond endurance. The air in the little entry was heavy, unbearably.

"One minute!" whispered Dick West, and his voice seemed to hiss at me from far away. "Do you and I come to terms? Are we friends? Or do you want me to raise the most infernal dust ever in this select little town of ours? Forty seconds. Think quick, girlie."

For the past five minutes I had been hearing the sound of the telephone bell in our apartment. It pinged and rang uneasily. Now it had stopped and I could actually hear the silence.

"What can I do?" I asked feebly. "You ought to talk to Jim."

"Ten seconds," replied Dick West gloatingly. "Can't decide, can you, girlie? Here, let me help you."

He thrust his watch back into his pocket and lurched forward. I felt his clammy hand on my wrist, and lifting my arm furiously I struggled to shake it off. The hot little entryway seemed to be spinning around like a carousel.

Dick West caught my other hand and pulled me forward from the door. As I strove to pull away from him, my weight came down on my strained ankle—and blackness sprang up from the floor and enveloped me. But as I fell forward into it, I thought vaguely that the door from the fire-stairs swung open and that the reassuring bulk of Lane Cosby stepped into the entry. Then the whole place filled up so overwhelmingly that I couldn't breathe and I pitched forward into the darkness.

The next thing I knew I was lying on my own bed. Something sharp and aromatic was under my nose. I tried to wave it away and found myself clutching a woman's hand. Wearily I opened my eyes and behold Valerie Cosby. That was reassuring so I closed my eyes again and relaxed. Words floated across my consciousness. I tried to brush them away and go peacefully to sleep again. But I couldn't.

"She's all right now, isn't she, doctor?" asked a woman's voice earnestly. That couldn't be Val—it wasn't like her usual lazy tones.

"Yes, Mrs. Cosby," replied a man's voice. "But it has been a hard struggle bringing her around. For a little while I feared it was conia instead of merely a faint. If you could

"All" Walker, 1335 Reno street, Philadelphia, for many years a star acrobat in Barnum & Bailey's circus, tells of a recent discovery which brought him happiness.

"For some time," he began, "I had been feeling mighty miserable. Didn't have an ounce of energy. Even light foods upset my stomach. Gas would form after eating, causing pain and distress. I tried several so-called tonics, but continued to feel rocky until I hit upon Tanlac. Tanlac was just what my poor rundown system needed. My appetite has increased, the heaviest meal digests perfectly and I am gaining weight every day. Tanlac sure puts the old 'pep' back in a fellow. I'm mighty glad I found it. Tanlac is sold here by all leading druggists.

DUBLIN WATCHES PREMIER GEORGE

His Recent Statement on Home Rule Creates Discussion

Dublin, Aug. 25.—Appearance in various London papers of the announcement that Premier Lloyd George is considering an offer to Ireland of dominion home rule with county in political circles in Dublin. Sir Horace Plunkett's new Dominion League, while willing to arrange special terms of Ulster within an Irish Dominion, is strongly opposed to any arrangement by which any part of Ireland would be altogether outside the new Irish Parliament, and Sir Horace believes any such plan would be unworkable. Ulster Unionists on the other hand are violently opposed to county division or indeed to any agreement to the total exclusion from an Irish Parliament of the six northeastern counties without the preliminary of a plebiscite.

Middletown Airplane Is Smashed

Preparing For Trip

One of the large twelve-cylinder airplanes at the Ordinance Depot was demolished Saturday afternoon. Captain Dolson and one of the mechanics had been in the machine, getting ready to make a trip to New York to take part in a race. Captain Dolson had been testing the machine and in landing came down too suddenly, the machine striking the ground. It bounced up fully two feet, upsetting the machine with the two men in it. They soon stopped and did not fall out.

Harry Fishburn, of North Spring street, cuts by his fingers on the right hand with a butcher knife which he had grabbed from his wife, thinking it was a fly swatter. The owner is required several stitches.

William Malhorn, foreman on the No. 1 wreck train of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was badly bruised about the legs by being thrown from a car at Highspire on Saturday and required the services of a local physician.

Many Sinn Feiners declare that, if county option were extended to all Ireland and a plebiscite taken on home rule, many of the counties would adhere to the demand for a republic or nothing and vote against it.

Declares Germany Will Dominate in Mexico in 6 Months

Washington, Aug. 25.—"Within six months after the United States ratifies the Treaty of Peace Germany will have complete economic control of Mexico. Within a very few years if they are permitted to carry out the plans they have formulated and are now executing as rapidly as they can, the Germans will have absolute economic, political and military control of Latin America with headquarters in Mexico. Then they will be ready to attempt once more the realization of their dream of world conquest," said Dr. P. B. Altendorf, late of the United States Military Intelligence Department, who operated in Mexico from July, 1917, to April 1, 1918. His experiences constitute the most interesting spy story of the world war yet made public.

Dr. Altendorf is accompanied by ex-Lieutenant John E. Daugherty, who had charge of the Mexican division of the Military Intelligence Department at Fort Sam Houston, near San Antonio, Texas. Through Lieutenant Daugherty instructions were issued to the more than two score agents of the department operating in Mexico. It was his task to read their reports and also volunteer reports from others and collate and compile the information they contained for the use of his superiors. In civil life Lieutenant Daugherty is a member of the law firm of Cobbs, Cobbs & Daugherty, of San Antonio, Texas.

Technical Experts Registered For Jobs
Washington, Aug. 25.—"To date 1,700 officers and ex-officers of the American Army, the greater portion of them men who have seen service with the Expeditionary Forces in France and elsewhere, have registered with the War Department in Washington as applicants for positions," it is today announced by Colonel Arthur Woods, assistant to the Secretary of War, who is at present conducting a Nation-wide drive for the re-employment of these men.

The salaries which are expected by these men vary between $750 and $8,000 per year. A number of the applicants desire to continue in the work in which they have had experience before the beginning of the war. Others, on the basis of their military training, desire to enter into new fields and are willing to accept correspondingly low salaries until they have proved their worth. The list includes business men, professional men of all sorts, technical men and members of a variety of other lines of activity.

POSTMASTER RESIGNS

Prince Whose Attempt to Smuggle Jewels by Airplane Was a Failure

Smuggling by airplane sounds easy, but seemingly it isn't.

PRINCE OF WIED

Smuggling by airplane sounds easy, but seemingly it isn't. The Prince of Wied, according to cable reports, decided that jewels and other valuables belonging to the royal house of Saxony would be safer in Sweden than in Germany. Thousands of dollars' worth of gems and securities were dropped from a plane near Malmoe, on the south coast of Sweden, but customs officials caught the prince's confederates just after they had picked up the precious packages.

Declares American Colleges Must Give Brains For Europe
New York, Aug. 25.—"America's universities must supply the educated men with which Europe is to achieve its progress for the next two decades," declared Eliot Wadsworth of New York, who is jointly associated with Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Co., in heading the organization of Harvard Alumni, now campaigning for an additional endowment of $11,000,000 for the university.

"I wish every one could carry in their mind a picture of the destruction that has been wrought in Europe by the war. By destruction, I mean not only the ruining of houses, factories, schools and libraries, but the wiping out of the broader and greater mental fabric which makes civilization. Conditions of international trade, finance and transportation are so disjoined that even the wisest of men hesitate to predict when we may expect a return to what used to be considered normal conditions."

Scores U. S. For Its Failure to Assist Germany Financially
By Associated Press.
Berlin, Sunday, Aug. 24.—George Muech, financial writer of the Tageblatt scores the United States for failing to assist Germany financially and asserts that Americans are even guilty of machination to depress the value of the mark artificially.

"Americans are exploiting Germany's needy situation most selfishly," he declares, "by delaying a grant credit which Germany needs, depressing the value of the mark with the intention of obtaining such German products as dyes, chemicals and brushes at low prices. On the other hand they offer American products to German buyers at high price. It's poor comfort for us to know that the Americans are playing the same game as their former allies."

He says the American government now could show whether it "really wishes to help Germans in their work of reconstruction by allowing Germany to enter the American money market."

Road Viewers in Conewago Recalled
Viewers appointed to report road conditions between Deodote and Van in Conewago township, together with recommendations for any highway improvements, were relieved from further duty in the proceedings by a court order today.

The board was appointed by the court on June 12, and eight days later the Legislature passed a law repealing the one under which the viewers were proceeding. The new measure now providing that any views then uncompleted should be valid. As a result property owners in the township may petition the court to appoint another board under the new act.
