Mourning Costumes
 At a time of bereavement how difficult it is to have to have to think about one's wearing apparel. How almost impossible to purchase with judgment.
 Under such circumstances it is a help to deal with a shop in which one has complete confidence and with someone who will accept the responsibility of filling one's needs and execute the assignment with conscientious fidelity.
 Ordinarily I never send goods on approval. It is a wasteful policy, the expense of which is ultimately borne by the public. But in cases of bereavement I am very glad to do this without charge. It is little enough to offer in an attempt to assuage the grief and mental suffering which are inevitable under such circumstances.
