The resolutions drawn by the labor, public and the employers' group, respectively, were sent to the committee yesterday for further consideration. The labor representatives pointed out that the resolutions already had been debated for two days and that nothing was to be gained by further postponement of a decision.

Advertisement for Bacon or Tobacco? featuring a cartoon of a pig and a man, with text: 'Don't say Bacon & Tobacco! The bird that used to cook for our outfit over in France is the meanest guy in the world. I bumped into him just yesterday and I tries to be sociable, like buddies will, and I asks him if he remembers the last time I was in K. P. for him, up near St. Mihiel. "Yeah," he says, "and do you remember how you got me in bad with the outfit that time when you hung that side o' bacon up on a tree near the kitchen and forgot it 'til it hung there in the sun for four days? Made it so dog-gone strong an' rank the outfit couldn't eat it.'" Bacon or Tobacco? There isn't a whole lot of difference between tobacco and bacon and it comes to making it fit for use. Both have to be subjected to a curing process before they're tasty. Only, tobacco takes a heap more attention. It's got to age, and sweat, and a lot of other things, and that takes time—if you let Nature do it. Some folks try to beat Nature to it in time by "special" processes, but they never catch up to her on mellowness. We don't want any of this "special process" tobacco. Only Nature can produce quality good enough for K. O. So, tobacco that was gathered way back in 1918 is just beginning to pass inspection for admission into K. O. And we've got a good big lot of it that'll keep right on maturing in our warehouses, insuring K. O. smokers of the 29-year-old-mellowness for many a moon. John C. Herman & Co.
