MEMBERS OF 1873 CONVENTION TO BE HONOR GUESTS

Constitutional Revision Commission to Honor Framers of Present Organic Law

Surviving members of the Pennsylvania Constitutional Convention of 1873 have been invited by Attorney General William I. Schaffer, chairman of the Constitutional Revision Commission, to be the guests of the Commission at the opening session here on Tuesday.

Inquiry made by the Attorney General has disclosed the fact that as far as known there are only four members of the convention of 1873 who are alive. They are Supreme Court Justice John Stewart, of Chambersburg; ex-Judge Harry White, of Indiana; Mortimer F. Elliott, of Wellsboro; and John McMurray, Brookville, editor.

Practically all of the heads of departments and members of important commissions of the State government have accepted the invitation of the Attorney General to be present at the opening session.

Private Detective Is Found With Three Shot Wounds in His Body

Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 5.—Philip Russo, said to be a private detective of Pittsburgh, was found dead near Wilmerding, Pa., to-day. He had been shot three times. His wrecked automobile was at the bottom of a ravine near far away. The police believe that Russo was shot by some one riding with him, the passenger then steering the car into the ravine. Russo was jumping to safety, and Russo's body being jolted from the seat as the car plunged over the steep bank.

No motive is known for the crime, but the county authorities advance the theory that Russo had made an arrest and was taking his prisoner to jail when he was killed.

Little Talks by Beatrice Fairfax

In a tiny pool You could jump over I saw reflected All of the sky. I wondered: How Should one rightly measure This lovely water? By the Earth that holds it? By the Heaven it holds? By the well I measure all that we see and hear, the experience by the Earth that holds it, by the Heaven it holds? There is always more than one interpretation of each least experience of every day. And we generally have our choice as to conclusions. We don't have to read good or evil out of a thing, because we are free to read what we like. It's all a matter of viewpoint.

Wait a minute before you start disagreeing with me, Jennie is engaged to Max and she is seen at a dance with a man no one of her crowd knows. Max is away on a trip. How can people help feeling that Jennie is a pretty lax and disloyal sweetheart?

That judgment on circumstantial evidence might be read this way instead: "Jennie is a loyal sweetheart. Max is away. If she comes to a dance and devotes herself to a stranger there has to be a good reason. Perhaps that man is a relative. Perhaps he is a friend of Max and she's been asked to be nice to him."

The first judgment is in terms of the earth that holds us all. The second is based on a belief in the heaven which flowers in our own hearts.

Our point of view tells more than we realize about our own selves. Cynicism comes more from what we know about ourselves than from what we know about life.

If you would never under any circumstances do a dishonest and disloyal thing, how can you be thinking so hard of dishonesty and disloyalty that everything you see anywhere else do looks to you like a manifestation of those ugly qualities?

When you look into a mirror, you see yourself. Life's big mirror. It reflects to you your own ideas, your own attitudes, your own self. You can't see out of eyes other than your own. You can't see except from the place where you happen to stand. The angle you get on things has to be your angle.

Nobody forces you to stand where you do, or to think as you do. That's your own to choose and make.

So when you begin interpreting things, it has to be from your viewpoint. Don't let your own knowledge and reactions to life and charity or malice are yours to choose.

BEARY URGING ENLISTMENTS

Issues Statement in Regard to Expiration of the One Year Period in January

Adjutant General Frank D. Beary, who returned to-day from Washington where he discussed National Guard matters with officials of the Militia Bureau, said that the period for voluntary enlistment of men who have been in the service and who desire to maintain continuity will expire on January 11. He strongly advised all men who have been honorably discharged and who desire to join the new Guard to enlist before January 11. Officers in commission from the State are authorized to administer oaths and supplements will be for a year from the date given whether the unit has been reorganized or not," said he. General Beary communicated with Major Gen. Penrose and the general will call attention of regimental commanders to the situation.

The Adjutant General announced that civilian physicians will be authorized to examine men for enlistment in the Guard in places where there are no army doctors.

Deputy Attorney General B. J. Myers to-day informed Banking Commissioner John S. Fisher in an opinion that banks incorporated under the act of 1916 and supplements "have no authority whatever to loan their funds on the security of second mortgages or any other liens on unnumbered real estate." He adds "a bank that loans money on such collateral note and accepts as additional collateral security to said note, at the time the loan is made, a mortgage which is a second lien on real estate, in this way does not endeavor to evade the clear and distinct provisions of the law and the fact that such banks are nowhere prohibited by act of assembly from loaning money in this way does not empower them to do so by implication."

Garfield Returns to Take Personal Charge of Coal Situation

Washington, Dec. 5.—Fuel Administrator Garfield returned to Washington to-day from Williamstown, Mass., to take personal charge of the coal situation. After a conference with Assistant Attorney General Ames, he went to the White House to attend the cabinet meeting. Director General Hines also met with the President's official family.

Mr. Garfield appeared to be optimistic. He said coal production was getting closer to the normal, and although the stringency in the midwest was acute.

Members of a general committee representing the coal operators who remained in Washington after the adjournment of the general conference of operators yesterday, denied in a statement to-day published reports that they were offering any amount to the miners considerably greater than the 14 cent per bushel advance suggested by Director Garfield.

[Special to the Telegraph] Pittsburgh, Pa., Dec. 5.—The Pittsburgh city council to-day elected Augustus K. Oliver, son of the late Senator George T. Oliver, to fill the vacancy in the city council caused by the death of Enoch Rauh. The election of Mr. Oliver is a clean knockout for the Babcock-Leslie forces, who endeavored to elect John D. Barbour, president of the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange. The election of Mr. Oliver is personally backed Mr. Barbour when the city council met to fill the vacancy.

The selection of Mr. Oliver gives control of the council of the second city in the State to the Republican forces led by George S. Oliver. The new councilman is vice-president of the newspaper Printing Co. which publishes the Gazette-Times and Chronicle-Telegraph. Throughout the war he was very active in various civilian works and was chairman of the Pittsburgh chapter of the Red Cross, which he still holds.

Mr. Oliver's wife is a relative of several Harrisburg families and has visited there.
