Bring the Kiddies to Toyland

A toy means more to the younger folks than they are able to express. We all know they want to be taken where the toys are kept. Nothing will prevail against the "play instincts" of a child's heart, like the wanted toy will.

Just a bit of advice to you parents:—the next time a child pulls your hand in going through Bowman's and begs to see the toys in Toyland, don't disappoint them by not taking them to the Basement. Let them have their wish, especially now at Christmas time.

And let them meet Santa on the second floor. There are so many toys in the basement that we really did not have room to have him in Toyland. But it would do your heart good if you could hear the many wishes that the kiddies tell to Santa Claus.
