Leading Men of Medical Profession to Take Part in Dedication of New Auditorium.

GENS. GORGAS AND BLUE

Over Hundred Surgeons Representing Army and Navy to Be Here Monday.

Surgeon-General Rupert Blue, of the United States public health service, is among the distinguished visitors who will be in Chattanooga Monday, March 11, for the dedication of Warden McLean auditorium at Camp Greenleaf.

With the completion of the large new medical auditorium, this is one of the foremost steps in making Camp Greenleaf a West Point of the south, where doctors from all parts of the country will be trained for the handling of troops under them, the service in field hospitals and the regular army life, which they knew nothing of when first entering Camp Greenleaf.

While it is true that the specialists in all lines connected with the medical profession probably do not get a chance at Camp Forrest to practice their professions the same as they would before entering the army, the training they receive is of an entirely new branch, which they had only a vague idea of.

It was for the purpose of giving lectures, holding classes and moving picture demonstrations that the medical auditorium was erected. It is situated directly in the center of Camp Greenleaf and stands over all other buildings surrounding it.

Description of Building.

The eastern section of the building has two rooms, somewhat smaller than the main auditorium, which will be used for the museum and reference rooms. There are also two section rooms in the western part of the building.

The main auditorium is equipped with all up-to-date conveniences, including handsome electric fixtures, a large stage supplied with footlights and everything that goes with a theater stage.

Present Faculty.

At the present time there is a faculty of about 250 officers alone at Camp Greenleaf, besides an enrollment of 2,000 student officers and 10,000 enlisted men in training.

Upon the medical camp he undergoes the following examinations: First, a physical examination, and then a psychological and neurological examination to ascertain his mental capacity.

The medical camp, under the command of Col. Henry Page, was first opened in June, 1917, and it has been opened by many that it is the intention of the war department to convert the entire fort, including all of Camp Forrest, into a medical camp, where, after the war, large numbers of the United States will come to train.

The architect of the auditorium was First Lieutenant Outwater, of the sanitary corps of the national army, who was formerly vice-president, incorporated, with Outwater company, incorporated, of New York City. The draughtsman was First Lieutenant Dobson, sanitary corps, national army, formerly with McKim, Meade & White, of New York City.

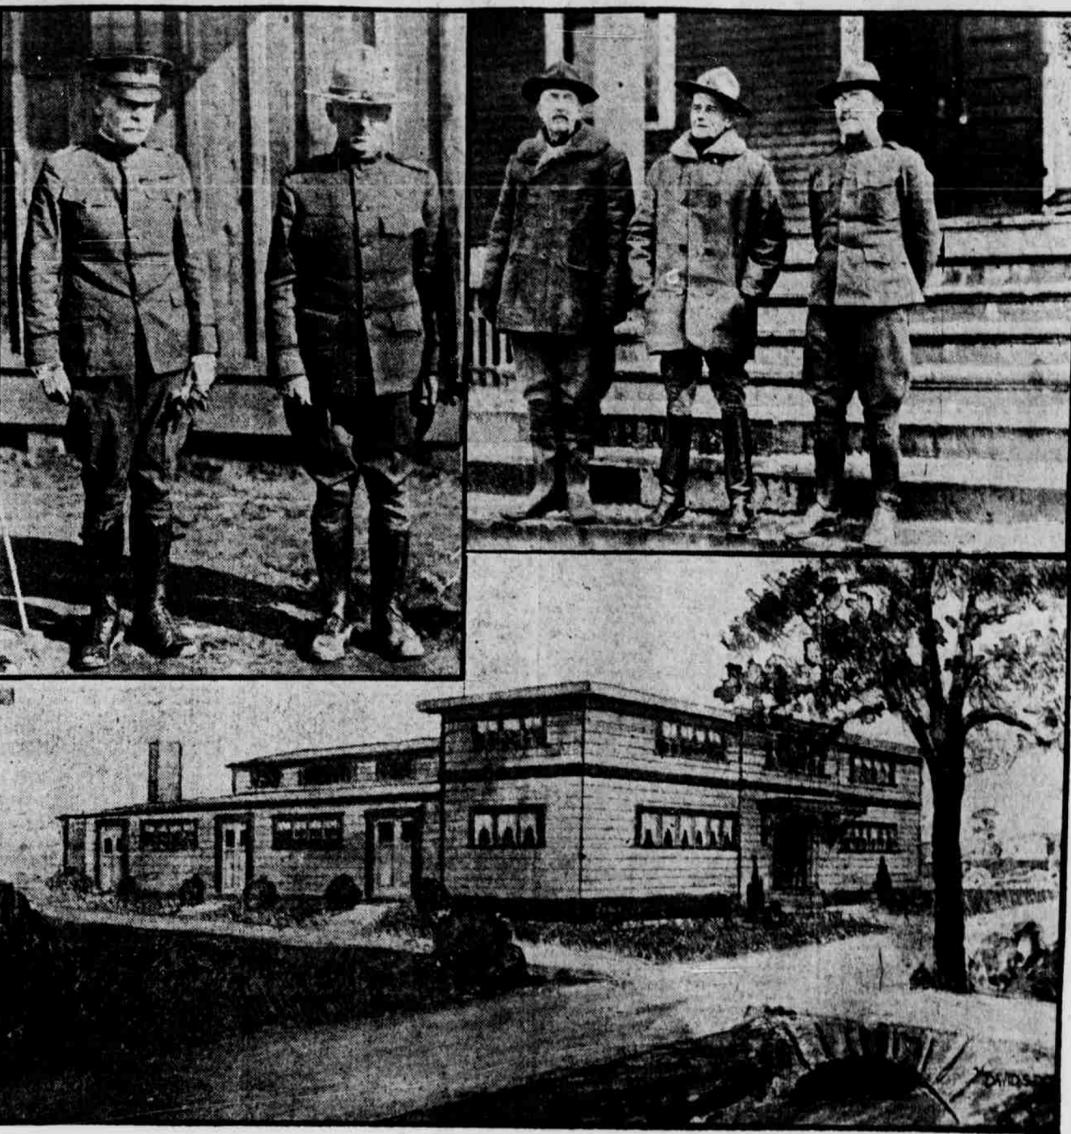

The architecture is a type developed in America by Frank Lloyd White, and is a compromise hungalow effect adapted to public buildings. Seating capacity is 1,000. It has various sectional rooms, a library and an office, conducted by Lieut.-Col. Brooke, senior instructor of Camp Greenleaf. The school rooms are occupied by the school of orthopedics, under Maj. Gulliver, and the school of applied surgical mechanics, under Maj. Allen.

WHISKEY SELLER AND ALLEGED SLACKER HELD

W. H. Johnson, charged with selling whiskey to soldiers, and C. H. Rider, who failed to register June 5, 1917, and charged with being a slacker, were tried before United States Commissioner Sam J. McAlister Saturday and were bound over to wait the action of the federal grand jury. The defendants were represented by Will Chamlee, Capt. Kern prosecuting in both cases.

SUSPENSION OF SHERIFF ASKED

Ouster Bill Amended With More Specific and Additional Charges Incorporated.

An amended bill to the original bill filed against Sheriff Bush seeking to oust him from office was filed at 4 o'clock Friday afternoon. The amended bill charges the sheriff with unfitness and incompetency, and seeks to have him suspended and disqualified for willful misconduct in office. The bill deals at length but without specification of charges in the original bill and also the supplemental bill filed on Thursday against the sheriff. The style of the bill is the State of Tennessee et al. and J. H. Wilson et al. against Nick P. Bush, sheriff of Hamilton county. The bill is signed by W. B. Miller and W. G. M. Thomas and is sworn to by Gaston C. Raoul.

The bill states that an original bill was filed against Sheriff Bush March 6, 1918, and the defendant has not as yet made answer. An amended bill is now added with the following charges: "By a uniform course of conduct throughout his administration to demand and receive full turnkey fees and full per diem fees without at all regard to the fact that he did not have the person lawfully in his custody at the jail."

The bill further charges that the persons who were so alleged to have been in jail were not there as the law requires, and were not furnished with wholesome food, pure water and healthy bedding. The bill alleges that the sheriff paid no attention to a part of a day and alleges incidents when he has only given a man two meals or one meal or no meals and has charged full fees.

Neglect of Duty. It is charged that the sheriff has wholly and totally neglected to keep the jail in a healthy condition and this point has been the subject of some bitter criticism by the several grand juries; that the sheriff has not furnished wholesome food as the law specifically sets out he must do, and this conduct shows him to be wholly unfit for the office of sheriff. It is further set out that the sheriff has allowed prisoners to and from the jail when said prisoners were not guarded and that this is specifically against the law. On April 5, 1917, the bill states, the sheriff's attention was called by the general assembly to the fact that he must not collect turnkey fees or per diem fees when the services were not rendered by him. The law, the bill alleges, says that no sheriff in Tennessee shall accept a full day's per diem unless the prisoner has been given three wholesome meals and pure water and clean bedding. In conclusion the bill charges the injury and injustice that the sheriff's conduct in office has caused individuals, the county and state treasury are irreparable and punished from office is asked pending final hearing and determination of suit.

UNION LABOR JOINS IN THRIFT CAMPAIGN

Big Meeting Called for Sunday Afternoon to Give Movement Boost.

The latest development in labor unions is the organization of the Thrift Stamp union, which has been fully perfected. The purpose of this union is the sale of War Savings Certificates and Thrift Stamps. The Thrift Stamp union was the result of the postal employees' meeting held last Sunday afternoon. Another rousing meeting will be held Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Central Labor hall, to which an invitation is extended the public and especially trades unionists. Letters have been sent to every local union in the city asking them to designate men in shops to co-operate in the sale of Thrift Stamps. The Thrift Stamp union will have a red-letter day in the near future, as they are planning to have a mass meeting, with noted speakers on over the state to make address on thrift. Richard Hardy and T. H. Preston have promised to co-operate with this union and to book some of the very best speakers for the future mass meeting, including themselves.

DEAF MEN HEAR AND BLIND SEE WHEN ARMY SURGEONS GET AT MALINGERERS

No Fake Troubles Get By—Doctors Have Many Novel Ways to Detect Fraud—Some Amusing Instances at Chickamauga.

No fake sickness goes with the medical experts at Fort Oglethorpe. Malingerers are almost invariably spotted, and the pent excited recalls a small boy's tribulation with his grandmother—a dose of castor oil. Medical officers state that among the soldiers at the post there are few cases of malingering. Those few are quickly picked out, because the men don't know what symptoms to report. They get mixed up in their diseases. Deafness is a favorite ruse. One man who came to be examined could scarcely hear the surgeon shout at him, so the examiner walked to the other end of the room and said in an ordinary voice, "All right, you may go on up to the base hospital." The fellow started, but he didn't go. In another case of deafness the physician prescribed in a low tone that the patient should be given a glass of wine with every meal until his hearing was restored. When the malingering came to eat his next meal the wine was not there. He complained about it. A man who pretended color blindness could not tell green from black or blue from yellow. The surgeon said: "My poor man, your eyes are in a bad way, I'll have to discharge you from the army. Hand me one of those pink cards on the table and I'll write it." Out of several colors the man chose a pink card. When it comes to simulating graver diseases such as insanity, the ordinary man has no chances at all. Each sort of insanity brings in its train a long series of co-ordinated symptoms, and unless the malingering were an expert alienist, he would never get them right. In fact, with an array of America's finest medical talent opposed to him, checking up every nerve end and motor connection, the ordinary man who wants to put across a fake disease stands a very poor show indeed.

MEN UNDERGOING ANOTHER TEST

Board of Lieutenants Conducts Qualification Examination at Fort Oglethorpe.

What isummy good for? A board of six lieutenants, now stationed at Camp Oglethorpe, is giving what is known as a qualification examination to every soldier in the post. The object of the examination is to find out the exact labor qualifications of each man and have him ready in case of emergency.

The work has been under way for two weeks, and is concluding Saturday with the eleventh cavalry. Not only Camp Oglethorpe, but every military organization in America, is undergoing this examination, and when the result is completed it will form the greatest ready reference index of laborers in existence. The examining board is composed of Lieuts. D. C. Dusenberry, W. P. Cleason, M. Garby, who came from Camp Greenleaf, where they held a similar exam., and Lieuts. R. E. Shaffer, W. Z. Fuller and Oscar Bullock, who came from similar work in Camp Jackson.

These men have already classified the men in Camps Sheridan, Gordon, Sevier and Jackson. The last of the present examinations is being held in the post gymnasium. A force of sixty officers all at tables. The men with their cards file in and take seats opposite the officers and answer the questions on the cards. The officers writing. The cards interrogate each registrant as to his main occupation, what branch

NOTED MEDICOS HERE SUNDAY

Meeting of Medical Section, Council of Defense, Brings Scientists Here.

Chattanooga is to have the honor of playing host to the most notable gathering of American medical scientists that has ever met in the south. One hundred or more of the country's greatest psychological, medical and sanitary experts will assemble at Camp Greenleaf Sunday to attend a meeting of the medical section of the Council of National Defense. This session is almost coincident with the dedication Monday of the camp auditorium, the gift of Mrs. McLean, mother of Warden McLean, a cadet at the first officers' training camp, who was killed while training for a commission in Uncle Sam's war army. The chief significance of the event is the recognition of Greenleaf and Chickamauga as a medical concentration point of prime importance, and would tend to bear out the prediction of the establishment of an immense training school and hospital here, which will equip practically all of the doctors for America's army abroad. The list of those who will attend the meeting and dedication includes such well-known names as Surgeon-General Gorgas, whose wonderful work in the Panama canal zone a model of sanitation; Surgeon-General Blue, of the United States health service; Maj. GENERAL COMES TO GREENLEAF

Brig.-Gen. Birmingham to Succeed Col. Page, Who May See Foreign Service.

Brig.-Gen. Henry P. Birmingham, of the medical corps, will take command of Camp Greenleaf. Announcement was made yesterday that Brig.-Gen. Birmingham had been detailed as commandant of the greatest medical training camp in America. He relieves Col. Page, under whose direction the big medical machine was constructed. It has been intimated that Col. Page will be given foreign service.

Brig.-Gen. Birmingham entered the medical arm of the service in 1881 and reached the rank of brigadier-general last summer. Since that time he has been in the surgeon-general's office in Washington. The general will reach the age of retirement, 64 years, next Friday. His appointment indicates a birthday gift of many more years of active service.

POLITICAL BEE BUZZES IN SPRING BONNETS

Historic Lookout Affords Opportunity for Observation of "Lady" Politics.

The humming, buzzing and roaring that makes folks in the valley gaze up looking for a twin-motor Caudron, a Niuport biplane or a three-passenger Leotard is merely the buzzing of the political hornets in the spring bonnets on Lookout mountain. The mountain affords an opportunity for the observation of "lady" politics at its sweetest and freshest. The "top" is the only municipality in the state where women vote—just a year ago James H. Anderson headed the move to put woman's rights in the charter and to provide that one of the school directors shall (must) be a woman.

P. F. Jones, John H. Wheelock, W. T. James, Newell Sanders and W. E. Bingham are now on record as the five town commissioners, but Messrs. Jones and Bingham having moved away there are now but three discharging the duties. Mr. Wheelock is regarded as an excellent public servant, but the other members, also in the same class, at present in the service will probably not desire re-election. Among those mentioned are John H. Wheelock, Arthur M. Allen, Adam Haskell, Brunswick Lowe, R. S. Annis, Grant Yarnell, John Brig and C. A. Leavitt. To be a town commissioner one must own land in his own name.

The present school board directors are Arthur M. Allen, J. T. Charlton and John Chambliss. Mr. Allen will no doubt be elected to the "big board." Mr. Chambliss has announced that he would not seek the office, and Mr. Charlton will be the only man new on the board available. "e is the choice of everyone." This board consists of three, since the amendment two men and a woman. John H. Keller is being asked to consider the position and will no doubt be elected. The warmth of the fusillade is around who the "velvet lady" is.

Mrs. James H. Anderson is an avowed candidate, and since she has two children—one a girl, one a boy; one in the primary department, one in the intermediate department—she is considered eligible. Mrs. J. Harvey Wilson is being urged to run by many patrons of the school, but owing to strangeness of politics, is holding back. Her friends bespeak for her a family of four, three now in school and one to begin soon, one of these being in each of the divisions of the school—primary, intermediate and senior. In addition she taught two years and was in close touch with the Park Place school and Parent-Teachers' association, said to be highly admired by school authorities.

One of the peculiar features of the races on the mountain this year is the aloofness of John J. Lively. Mr. Lively is an aggressive democratic candidate for criminal court clerk and believes in keeping hands off. So highly sensitive is he that he is said to refuse to discuss mountain politics with James H. Anderson because he is a republican and the son-in-law of that "big boss" Senator Newell Sanders, the next door neighbor of Mr. Lively.
