

CAMOUFLAGED STREET CROWD

Automobile Rushes Into Foyer of Rialto—Reason, Why and How It All Happened.

The first real liberty loan camouflage was staged at noon Monday in front of the Rialto theater at a time when Chattanooga's business men and women were hurrying back and forth to their work. Market street, between Seventh and Eighth streets especially, was crowded with the stream of people. Just at this time it was no small crowd that was attracted to the Rialto when an automobile went dashing into the entrance of the theater. In fact, so great was the crowd that the policemen executed their imperative duty of trying to keep the curious people back. But the more they were advised to "back" the more they crowded forward. But it was most essential that a passage way be made for the "corpse" and "injured," to be carried to Chapman's and "Wanni" ambulance which made record-breaking runs to the scene and hurried away with the victims. Miss Edna Scott and Mrs. Mildred O'Neal, Miss Scott of the Rialto, and Mrs. O'Neal of the Alcazar, and the machine, did his part of the camouflaging well, for he succeeded in breaking up all of the glass cases that were placed in the doorway of the Rialto the doorways the vaudeville stunts. He stopped the car just in front of the large glass door. Glass was scattered all over the floor and a generous supply of gas was turned on the engine of the car, making a noise which could be heard from one end of Market to the other. At this point the crowd became almost too much for the policemen, for it was one time the policemen just had to say, "We don't know what's the matter."

Cheer for Wilson

Throng in Streets Bohemian Capital Denounces Germans, Hurrahs for Allies.

Amsterdam, April 15.—Thousands of persons gathered in the streets of Prague, capital of Bohemia, on Saturday, denounced the Germans and cheered the entente and President Wilson, says a dispatch from that city to the Lokal Anzeiger of Berlin. All the Czech members of the parliament and party delegates, together with Slovene and Serbo-Croat delegates, met in the town hall and adopted a manifesto. The crowd gathered in the streets outside the hall in support of the policy of the delegates. The principal demonstration occurred at the close of the meeting. The feeling against Foreign Minister Benes, who is shown by the shouts of disapproval with which his name was greeted. The crowds dispersed singing anti-German songs. A conference of representatives of all Czech parties at Dux, the dispatch says, unanimously opposed the establishment of a German-Bohemian province, asserting the Czech minority in the German-speaking region would resist Germanization to the utmost.

reporter, who just had to find out why, what, when, who and how. After the dead and the wounded had been camouflaged away into the ambulances and taken for a little drive, E. E. Tatum jumped up in the seat of an automobile which had been parked right in the middle of the crowd which thronged the street and began: "Well, people, all of this comes as the result of unpreparedness. And the only way to stop such as this is to buy liberty bonds."

"WHISKYLESS" DAY IN CRIMINAL COURT

Liquor Cases Galore but Only One Package in Evidence, and Capt. Kern Bought It.

Monday was "whiskyless" day in court and though the entire morning session was taken up with discussion of liquor cases only one bottle was seen, and that was brought in by Capt. Kern, of the provost guard, who charged that one of his men had bought it from a bootlegger. George Reynolds was fined $50 and costs for transporting whisky, and Pearl Lock came right along and got the very same thing for the very identical action. But they knew better and knew exactly where the pathway to law disorder leads. Charley Siveley sold liquor, so it was charged, and Charles drew just the nominal amount of $50 and costs of the case. Charley, an other one who knew better, but he seems to have allowed his heart, or thirst, to run away with his better judgment. Sarah Lee Byrd appeared in court on a liquor-selling charge and the only thing in the world that saved Sarah from a long workhouse sentence was her five or six-month-old baby. Judge McReynolds told Sarah Lee he wouldn't recognize his docket unless her name was blazoned across it. However, on recommendation of Carl Abernathy, Judge McReynolds sentenced Sarah Lee to six months and fined her $50 and costs, but suspended them both during good behavior, but says S. S. Lee to understand the law, she came back he would surely burn her up. John Brown, who runs a place on Rossville avenue, did not fare as well as others charged with selling whisky, for the reason probably this was the second offense for Brown. He was given six months and fined $50 and costs, but Judge McReynolds suspended five months of the sentence pending good behavior. W. H. Johnson drew $50 and costs for liquor selling, but Albert Gattling drew the same thing for the same offense.

"KAISER" THRILLS AND KINDLES BITTER HATE

Sensational Picture at Alcazar Has Dramatic Qualities as Well as Patriotic Appeal.

"The Kaiser," showing to packed, cheering houses at the Alcazar, might be called "The Rivals," if his Satanic majesty could have a counterpart, a twin, a co-worker, who rivals or even outdoes him in villainous deeds. The picture in downright fiendish, true, and creature, is the Kaiser as pictured by Rupert Julian in the story of "The Beast of Berlin." His audience cheers, laughs and hisses, and pommel bald heads in the row in front. Old men and even women override the conventionalities and turn to exchange vehement comments with the strange children. All told, everybody gets all keyed up and enthused, and either goes out and enlists or buys more liberty bonds. Such is the "Kaiser, the Beast of Berlin," but "More Thrills than 'The Birth of a Nation'"—well, permitted his patriotism to run a bit amok. The story is exceptionally well produced. Details are worked out with minute accuracy and no opportunity is overlooked that might serve to rouse the sentiment or stir the lump in the throat. The setting of the story is the wildest cheer of all when Marcus, the Kaiser's sheer wickedness as a sort of joke. They hate him roundly, but enjoy his deviltry. They cheer when he is worsted and howl when he knocks down his enemies. The picture is a masterpiece of dramatic art, and the scenes are carried out with strong contrast. The pleasant peasant life and the pastoral charm of the country is shown in sharp contrast with the devastation. But even the insults of the Hun officer to the Belgian girl is artfully handled. There is no repulsion at the details, only the presence of hate, the hate that rings in the wildest cheer of all when Marcus, the giant father, grips the Prussian throat in a grasp of relentless steel. And here comes in the second rival, the picture of the man who witnessed the feats of Marcus, best remembered as the giant in "Cabrera" and recently seen here in an Italian war picture. He outdoes Marcus in the intensity of his hate and in feats of strength. But the big Italian also has a rival. Elmo Lincoln as the Belgian blacksmith has a superb physique and a strength almost superhuman. Rupert Julian, who both directed the production and had the nerve to play the Kaiser, has done well in both capacities. His country is shown in an exceptionally clean cut and he has caught the spirit of the type of man he would portray. He is overbearing, filled with nervous energy and as fiendish a villain as the picture shows. Another actor who deserves special mention is young George Hupp. The boy does a splendid bit of character work where he huris a German soldier, overbearing German captain. In spite of the fact that the picture "scoops" the Associated Press reports on the fate of the unhappy captain whose U-bomber sank the Lusitania, much of the story is carried on unalterable fact. This is carried out even to authentic quotations of the Kaiser and other important men. The picture should serve superiorly as a builder of hate and to give an impetus for recruiting. Aside from this feature, however, it has exceptional qualities as a thrilling story well told.

TOOK MEDICINE ALL THE TIME

But Says It Did His Asthma No Good. LUNG-VITA CURED HIM

Says He Has Not Even Had a Symptom of It This Winter.

"I had asthma very bad and had to work on the front end of a car in that shape," says Mr. W. O. Clemons, who lives at 16 Main street, Nashville, Tenn. "I was taking medicine all the time, but got no permanent relief until I got Lung-Vita. It has positively cured me, however, and I know it has, for I have worked all this winter without losing any time and have had no symptoms of asthma. I even worked all through the bad weather we had without losing a day or even having a cold. I am gaining in flesh, right along, and want to say to the man or woman who has asthma that they can be cured if they will get Lung-Vita and take it according to directions." Lung-Vita is sold by druggists and dealers.—(Adv.)

NAVY NOW MAKES MOST EXCEPTIONAL OPENING

Reserve Corps Open to Recruits—Many Will Be Trained and Commissioned Officers.

A whirlwind campaign is to be carried through for naval reserves. Word has been received by the local recruiting station authorizing the enlisting of all who apply. Four-minute speakers will probably be heard at his picture shows and the trees. Ministers are to be notified to boost for the navy and others of influence and authority urged to assist in recruiting all the men that are now needed to aid Uncle Sam free the seas. The period of enlistment in the reserves is technically, four years, but in fact, for the period of the war, however, and after the struggle for democracy is ended reserves will be permitted to return to their homes, "subject to call." They may resign from the service at any time when the country is not engaged in war. Those enlisting will be sent at once to New Orleans, where they will undergo three months' training. After that they will be placed in active service. Those showing the greatest aptness and who have sufficient education will be sent to the naval academy and trained as naval reserve officers. This is one of the exceptional features of the opportunity.

The local office is now allowed to enlist only three men a week for the regular service. In this case carpenters are given preference and are to be placed in the ranks. Then they are to be sent to the eastern cities to boost loan campaigns. "You buy liberty bonds," she's saying. "On to Berlin!"

H. G. NEY'S CHILD LOST FOR HOUR ON MARKET ST.

Dorman Ney, infant child of Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Ney, strayed away from its mother in a down-town store this morning and was lost for more than an hour. Mr. Ney was notified and both parents were much worried. The child had been taken in charge by some woman, however, who, after walking south on Market to Cowart, possibly expecting to meet the parents, or new knowing what course to take, went into a drug store there and telephoned police headquarters.

LEADERS DISCUSS CAMP ACTIVITIES WITH COLONEL

Col. Abner Pickering, of the Sixth division, called a joint meeting Monday morning at 7:30 of the army chaplains, the Y. M. C. A. officials, the Knights of Columbus and the Jewish welfare workers. The object of the meeting was to dovetail all the work of these organizations with that of the others and thus prevent an overlapping of endeavor.
