ST. ELMO BOY MENTIONED IN ORDERS FOR BRAVERY IN THICK OF BIG BATTLE

Corporal Adams Congratulated by Commander for Gallant Conduct—Albert Jackson, of Aero Squadron, Glad He Can Serve the Stars and Stripes.

CHATTANOOGA BOYS

Another Chattanooga boy, Corp. Gardner Adams, has covered himself with glory "over there." General orders No. 44 of the Second division, A. E. F., state that Adams "carried messages and ammunition through heavy shell and machine gun fire, helping to give first aid treatment to the wounded regardless of his own danger, and faithfully following his superior officer through shelling into the trenches and during the reorganization of all machine guns in that sector after the attack, June 7, 1918."

The orders were issued at the direction of Maj.-Gen. Bundy and bore the personally written congratulations of Corp. Adams' commander.

The young man is only 20 years of age. He is the son of Mrs. Edith Stonelicher, of 1501 Alabama avenue, St. Elmo. Fifteen months ago he enlisted in the marines and went to France nearly a year ago.

He has seen much hard fighting besides that at Chateau-Thierry and Bouvaches, and is of that disposition that, while realizing all the horrors of war and while regretting the necessity for it, he is cheerful and uncomplaining and sees many things to laugh at in this relieving the tension of constant war.

His letters to his mother have been filled with stories of the war, interspersed with much of a lighter nature.

On Aug. 4 he wrote that he had just had his first leave of absence in one year and it was for only nine hours, during which he visited his little home that before the war had a population of 120,000. At the time of his visit there were only 40,000 inhabitants.

There is a story that Adams' department store and it rained him of his store. His headquarters, where he wrote, have been in a chateau, where there were wonderful feather beds.

However, he has had to sleep at "home sweet home" to the best bed in the world.

In speaking of a party given at home, he regretted his inability to be present. Adams is a graduate of South St. Elmo school. He attended Central High, where he was a member of the Junior class. He also attended business college here. He was employed at the time he was in the army.

He is a member of the Epworth League and he has been going to church to march down "Unter den Linden" to the tune of "The Star-Spangled Banner" played by his own the marine band.

If possible, he wants to gather up hair from the Kaiser's mustache with which to make all old cats jealous that they can't grow such bayonet-like bristles for whiskers.

Corpl. Jackson. Optimism is the keynote of a letter received by Mrs. Alice Jackson, 315 Pine street, from her son, Corp. Albert Jackson, who is somewhere in France with the 26th Aero Squadron. "We sure are having some time," he wrote.

"Everything is going good and everybody keeping well. I never felt better in my life. I am in good health and I believe you will have to hand it to the old 26th Aero Squadron for putting out the food, and it sure is cooked right. I am a glad I am with them."

"Remember what I said, do not worry me, but for I am all O. K. You know, that this is a duty every soldier owes his country. I am only glad I am in good health and I hope you the good old Stars and Stripes. Remember me in your prayers. You know, when I left those were among your last words. I have carried out with me the Stars and Stripes and a piece of good. It has brought me to realize what the good things of life are, and I am proud to know I have a good mother to look to in all of my troubles and in the church."

Corpl. Jackson, before entering the service, was connected with the Chattanooga Printing and Engraving company. He has many friends here, with whom he was a favorite because of his happy, sunny disposition and his inclination to look on the bright side of things no matter how dark they appeared to be.

Workers Needed at Red Cross Headquarters

The situation in the local Red Cross headquarters Thursday is a large order for surgical dressings on hand, and very few workers to get it out.

Since the reopening of the rooms after the summer's vacation the sufficient to make but small progress on this order which is an emergency one.

The Red Cross faithful dependants the fact is discouraging that there is not a sufficient number of women to do the work, and the point arises are the boys over there in the trenches, in the hospitals and in the air sacrificing their physical comfort and lives not worth a housekeeper's sacrifice of time?

The religious work committee of the Young Women's Christian association met Wednesday afternoon to outline the work of that department.

NO OBJECTION TO NOISE

A New Yorker in a letter to a Chattanooga friend tells of a poster that occupies a prominent place in a leading restaurant of the Metropolis. It reads: "Use Sugar Sparingly. Stir Like H—J. We Don't Mind the Noise."

MISS GLADYS RIGGS BRIDE OF CAPT. MAGUIRE

WEDDING AT HOME THURSDAY MORNING

One Hundred Guests—Couple Leaves on Motor Tour to Camp Dix

The marriage of Miss Gladys Riggs and Capt. William Howard Maguire, of Portland, Ore., was celebrated this morning at the family residence at Oak street and Fairview avenue. The ceremony was fairly well performed by Dr. W. B. Bachman, pastor of the First Presbyterian church. The bride came down the stairway through the sun parlor, with her father, and met the bridegroom and minister in the living room in front of an altar.

At each side were altar stands supporting lighted candles placed in graduated holders, and shedding a soft light over the darkened room. The living room on the south side, especially suited for the wedding scene. The altar was built in a cornered window niche. Smilax covered the frame work and trellised the window seats, with white lilies placed effectively at available places. The bride wore a gown of the greatest city of northern Syria, but he will procure and combine the great line of travel and commerce from Mesopotamia through Damascus to Beirut, the fronts on the Mediterranean and the chief cities of the Mediterranean coast.

Should he be able to press still farther, he will unite with the forces coming up from Bagdad through

The bride was attired in a traveling suit of brown trimmed with beaver fur. Her hat and shoes were of dark brown, and her gloves white. Her corsage bouquet was of orchids and lilies of the valley. The young bride, who is an attractive brunette, never looked better during her wedding suit. The nuptial music was furnished by the Woodworth orchestra and soft strains from the stringed instruments were delicately played during the ceremony.

Mrs. Frederick Leonard Riggs, mother of the bride, wore a unique white georgette dress embroidered in pink coral beads. Her corsage bouquet was Sweetheart roses. Mrs. Riggs received the guests in the hall, which was decorated with Richmond red flowers. Assisting her were Mrs. W. H. Trotter, Mrs. Frank Witherspoon, Mrs. Norman Raoul, Mrs. William Mills, and Miss Clara Trotter.

Following the ceremony a buffet luncheon was served in the dining room. Opelia roses were used to decorate the room. In the center of the table was a plaque of the roses, and vases of the same flowers were around the room.

About 100 close friends and relatives of the family were present. Many beautiful and costly presents were received by the couple, besides substantial checks from the bride's father and her family. Following the luncheon, Capt. Maguire and his bride left in an elegant touring car, a gift from the bride's father, for Camp Dix, at Brown's Mills, N. J.

The bride is the only child of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Riggs, and has had superior advantages in education and travel. She has been away from Chattanooga much of the time of her parents' twelve years of residence here, but has a large circle of friends who esteem her for her many virtues of character and loyalty in friendship.

Capt. Maguire is a graduate of Cornell university, where he received a B. S. and LL. D. at that university. He was instructor in the second training camp at Camp Warden McLean, and it was while there that the young couple met.

There is much excitement in the city. Bucharest, according to a telegram to the Vossische Zeitung, of Berlin, as to what would happen in the event of Queen Marie, who is strongly anti-German, becoming regent.

SELECTIVE SOLDIERS GIVEN FINAL INSTRUCTIONS

Foster V. Brown Impresses Upon Negroes Importance of Obedience to Orders.

Sixty negroes from city board No. 1 were this morning assembled in the Knights of Pythias hall and given final instructions in regard to their enlistment tonight.

Foster V. Brown, chairman of the board, administered the oath of allegiance to the men and warned them to be obedient to commands.

He said that the degree of A. B. for liberty and that he would look to them to make a good showing for themselves. He told them all that he wanted them to have a good time and to be obedient to the degree of A. B. He said that the degree of A. B. was given by a negro who had come to the city, I am going to have one game for I want to make a lot of passes before I go into that man's army."

The men will march again in the Knights of Pythias hall for roll call and then join the parade to the station.

Each soldier was supplied with a khaki brassard which they seemed to wear with a good deal of pride. This is the first batch of men supplied with brassards.

The quarterly conference of the Ridgeville M. E. church, south, will be held Thursday night following the revival service.

"AM IN SOUND OF GUNS"

So Writes Dan Hinkle to Folks at Home. "We can hear the rumble of the big guns as they pound away," writes Dan Hinkle, under date of August 30 to home-folks.

"At night and during the early morning hours, when the great guns are belching out their great masses of destruction make a noise that reverberates throughout the old world, it seems, and rattles and rattles like angry thunder in the distance."

"It makes us chump the bit, for we believe these are our 'big babies,' annulled by our boys and clearing a path for the advance of our infantry. We are told that when the infantry gets close to Fritz, with their bayonets fixed to the tall timber. And on that point we have it down here. We are expecting to go right into them, and the bayonet charge is where the real fighting is."

"If we don't waste right thought them, we'll be the worst disappointed set of boys that ever got ready."

"The boys at the front can't be choked off, and won't let us have a job at the home front."

"You need not worry about me. I'm with a fighting bunch and with the best company in the regiment. It is conceded to be the snappiest company in the whole regiment, and that is saying a great deal. But all the old regulars say so."

"We are not afraid but what we can take care of ourselves. I get bundles of the old home papers occasionally. I read it all except the war news. We get the war news daily, and it's fine, isn't it?"

"I read all the local news and then go through all the ads. The old familiar names of the old Chattanooga firms reads good away over here in France."

"I like to see all the old firms still intact over there, but the well-known firm of Me and Gott' over here has dissolved partnership."

"Do you know what makes the American boy proud? It is the great people back home behind him. That's where it all comes from. The boys and the friends in America. The people, patriotism and sacrifices of the great back home is reflected in the best fields of Europe. We feel it distinctly."

GEN. ALLENBY CUTS OFF MOST EVERY WAY OF RETREAT OF TURKISH ARMY

Dr. J. W. Bachman Rode Horseback Over These Battle-ground Twenty Years Ago and Vividly Recalls the Geography of the Country.

Dr. J. W. Bachman, who, together with the late Mrs. Bachman, took a 400-mile horseback ride over the Holy Land twenty years ago, the very same section upon which the armies are ruthlessly treading now, recalls the scene with as much vividness as though they were yesterday. He is able to recall many instances of their trip.

He says "Gen. Allenby in taking the Jordan and the railroad from the east land the Pharaohs of Egypt from 1600 years before, or down to the days of Ramees the great.

"The armies of Egypt passed through this country from Egypt to meet the armies of the east. Napoleon passed with his army over the same route and fought a great battle in the plain of Esdralon, a beautiful plain lying beside Nazareth."

As a reminiscence of his trip a score of years ago he recalled that he had been anxious to visit the cedars of Lebanon when the guide had told him it was a two day's ride, and besides there were only five of the cedars left. At this his wife reminded him of the fulfillment of the prophecy how Lebanon should be hewn down and the trees become such as a child could number them.

He said there would be wars and rumors of wars until the coming of the Lord, and he did not believe that this was the war of Armageddon, spoken of in the Bible; however, interpreting prophecies he considered a very uncertain thing.

In connection with facts of ancient history, Dr. Bachman said "Gen. Allenby is fighting along the line of the great pathway of the armies of Egypt and Syria, Nineveh, Babylon, the great Medeo-Persian empire, Cyrus, Nebuchadnezzar and Sennacherib from the east and the Pharaohs of Egypt from 1600 years before, or down to the days of Ramees the great.

CENSUS OF WOMEN FOR NURSES TO BE TAKEN

Southern Division of Red Cross Instructed to Make Survey of Women Available.

Eugene Black, the recently-appointed manager of the southern division of the Red Cross, has planned a reorganization for the purpose of making a survey of all women who can render nursing aid to the civil and military population. Frank E. Callaway has been appointed by Mr. Black as division supervisor of the nurses' survey.

This step is taken in response to a recent government appeal for a complete census of all women who can render such aid. The women located in any way will be immediately begun in the southern division, under the direction of Mr. Callaway.

Locally the subject will come up at a meeting of the executive board of the Red Cross Thursday afternoon, when it is probable that Dr. T. S. McCullie will appoint a chairman for the division. Dr. McCullie stated on Thursday morning that he expected to begin the work at once. Instructions have been received at his office from the southern division headquarters in Atlanta, Ga., which are fully outlined in instructions issued from Washington.

It is suggested that individuals such as physicians, clergymen and pharmacists may help in furnishing the local Red Cross chapter the names of nurses in their respective localities.

Each division making this survey is to be furnished with questionnaires, which will cover every possible branch of information useful to the government in locating nurses and passing upon their fitness for the work needed.
