

HEAVY TOLL OF LIFE FROM EXPLOSION

EIGHT KNOWN DEAD AND OVER EIGHTY MISSING. Heroism Telephone Girl Saves Many Lives—Stuck to Post Despite Danger.

New York, Oct. 5.—With a new series of explosions which rocked the countryside for miles around, the great conflagration at the munition loading plant of the T. A. Gillespie company, at Morgan, N. J., twenty miles from New York, may result in a death toll of over 100 persons, was still under way today.

Estimates of the loss of life reach as high as 200, and reports of the number of injured are vague. No responsible person or any of the military authorities have taken charge of the situation.

Four explosions occurred between 10:10 and 10:30 a. m., the last more terrific than all the others. All reports received indicate that the entire war plant, which comprises over a hundred buildings valued at approximately $18,000,000, will be entirely destroyed.

Many transports and barges already loaded with munitions for the American overseas forces, were saved by the pre-emptive precautionary plans made by the United States coast guard commandant in this district.

A state of terror exists today through the area which has been interested around Morgan. Men, women and children are fleeing and entire towns are being evacuated.

Army authorities who took over the fire-swept and shell-torn scene of disaster soon after the catastrophe occurred, refused early today to give out any information pending an official statement later in the day.

Reports received in Perth Amboy early today said that practically the entire plant had been destroyed or wrecked or damaged. One hundred and fifty buildings compose the plant, which occupies practically the whole town of Morgan.

Many stories of heroism were told by the injured who were rushed to South Amboy, Perth Amboy and other towns in all kinds of vehicles hurriedly pressed into service.

Heroism of Telephone Girl. A young woman telephone operator at the plant is credited with saving many lives. Her office was about half a mile from the main plant.
