BEAUTIFUL TABLEAU MOST NOVEL FEATURE CITY'S FEMINE CHARMS EFFECTIVELY DISPLAYED. Fourth Liberty Loan Well Set in Motion—Throgs Gaze and Applaud.

The war tableaux in the show windows on Market street Monday afternoon and evening attracted thousands of spectators to the business section of the city and proved one of the most novel features ever attempted here. Each tableau was directed as a direct appeal to the Chattanoogaans to help the boys "over there" and the war victims and assist in bringing them to a speedy close by buying liberty bonds.

During the entire window display the sidewalks were roped off and the city policemen, assisted by the military, were kept busy keeping the crowds of the sidewalks. Thus the people viewed the scenic tableaux from the street instead of the sidewalk.

Thirty-five windows on Market street were converted into war tableaux and scenes, marking the first evening of the fourth liberty loan campaign.

Bright colors afforded by the forest at this season gave nature's own hues to the background, which surpassed the brush of an artist. Added to these were various colored lights which gave a soft touch to the scenes, and spotlights which were thrown on the windows.

One of the windows that perhaps attracted the largest crowds during the exhibit was that in the Wallace Buggy company. This was "Hang the Kaiser to a Sour Apple Tree." A dummy was dressed up to represent Kaiser "Bill" and placed beside an apple tree.

Another window, Oscar J. Siero and Martin S. Moore, of motor company 15, section B, Camp Greenleaf, were the two soldiers selected to pull the rope.

Though it would of course be difficult, and outside the spirit of the affair, to attempt to give first honors to any of the participants in this window display, one window that attracted a larger volume of comment than others, Miss Margaret Ochs, posed as Charles Foster, "Ochs, I Wish I Were a Man!" In Shaw's window, was one of these. Miss Ochs was not unlike the girl in the real poster, her posing was a soft touch to the scene, and she took on the spirit of the tableau in a way that won much praise.

As physical charm essentially demands recognition, the group of girls posing as Red Cross nurses at Joy's, especially during the afternoon, forced huge crowds to linger long in admiration. The window in the center, Miss Louise Llewellyn; right, Miss Doris Carter; left, Miss Kathleen Gager.

In "The Boys' window Miss Gloria Lamb put on a laughing act which, to say the least, through its animation was in contrast to the less mobile poses in other windows.

One of the most appealing and original displays was that labeled "Pleading Mercy" in the window of Edwards & Bron. That hands are of themselves expressive was strongly exemplified by this feature. Though not gaudy and lean as might be expected of the outstretched hands of Belgium—in fact, they were very plump, pretty arms in the window—the spirit was nevertheless there. The tableau was in a sense grotesque, but effectively impressive.

Rhodes-Mahoney must have had a remarkable window, as it was next to impossible to get within periscope shot of it. In the window next to this P'Pole Hardware company was a Hun. A lady holding a small babe in her arms, a small girl at her side, with an expression pleading for mercy, on either face. At the side of the woman and her two children was a Hun charging her with his bayonet. Miss Margaret Johnson represented the woman, and her daughter, Vivian Shaw her daughter standing by her side. The Hun was Private Matthews. The subject of the tableau was "Hear Voices Calling."

"Columbus" was represented in the Starr Piano company window by Mrs. Maxine Adams, of E. S. Adams, manager of the store, and on either side of her were two Red Cross nurses, Miss Velma McConkey and Miss Nellie Kenyon, representing the needs of two wounded soldier boys. On a table at one side of the window were placed all necessary necessities for the needs of the two wounded soldier boys in khaki. The boys posing were Ed Astleir and E. S. Miller, of Camp Greenleaf.

"Mothers Reading Letters From the Front" was shown in Davidson's window and was represented by several women from the Old Ladies' home. "Good-bye, Dad, I'm Off for the Front," was the scene represented in one of the windows of the National Clothing company. This was represented by Mr. Cleary, an elderly man, and William Morris, a soldier boy from the camp. The soldier was shaking hands with the old man and saying "Good-bye, dad." At the oil painting was also displayed in this window, donated by the artist, J. C. Long. In the other window was a Red Cross nurse showing the first-aid tent and three Red Cross nurses—Mesdames Z. L. Greg, Mary and F. M. Charles and Miss Dixie Charles. Herbert W. Welch, a soldier boy from the camp, was posing as a soldier going back to the front and waving good-bye to the nurses.

Motherhood, from the orphans' home, was in Loveman's window with the little children from the Vine Street Orphan's home. They wore the dress of Red Cross nurses and attracted a great deal of attention.

Mrs. Pearl Glover posed as the Goddess of Liberty in Miller Bros' window, and Miss Mary Smith at Belgium. Miss Alice Moore, France; Miss Edna Stuart, Italy; and Miss Leonora Daniels, England—all these being employees of the store.

The Fort Riley band started playing at 8 o'clock and added a great deal to the evening by playing popular war pieces and patriotic numbers during the hour. Sidney Markey, a former movie star, who is now a buck private at the camp, gave his time to helping arrange those taking part in the tableaux and assisting in the "makeups."

BIDDY BYE'S GOOD FORM

It is an unpardonable breach of etiquette to hide behind a curtain or around a corner and listen to the conversation of others. Movie heroines and heroes are constantly getting into this unconventional position when obtaining evidence which proves the righteousness of their cause, but a great many well-bred persons would rather fail than imitate them.

CAL CLUBS TO BUY BONDS Women's Organizations Urged to Assist in "Bond Drive."

A call has been issued that the presidents of all women's clubs, societies and fraternal organizations have a meeting of their members to discuss the buying of bonds. A number of the heads of the various clubs of the city have been heard to say that their organizations were not prepared to buy bonds at this particular time, stating that they purchased bonds during the last drive and were also supporting French orphans.

"Now is the time to give, not to wait," said an enthusiastic worker, and revival will be the result. That the city will respond to the call. All reports must be turned in before liberty loan day, to Mrs. W. C. Johnson, chairman of clubs, societies and fraternal organizations.

First Baptist Calls Off Gatherings

As a result of a conference of the deacons of the First Baptist church Monday night, the series of cottage prayer meetings announced for this week has been called off. Also the teachers' tea for Wednesday evening, though no action was taken in regard to the regular Wednesday evening prayer meeting. The cottage prayer meetings were planned as a preliminary to a three weeks' revival to begin next week. It is understood that this revival will probably be postponed, and there is a suggestion that the Sunday school may be closed. The action was taken on account of the influenza situation.

Lieut. Wolff to Talk To Auxiliary

There will be a called meeting of the Chattanooga Tank auxiliary Friday afternoon at 2:30 in the Manufacturers' building. The meeting is called for the purpose of having the members of the auxiliary, Lieut. Wolff, son of Mr. Gorby, east of Missionary ridge. He will make an address to the wives and mothers of the boys of Company C, 302nd Tank Battalion.

Lieut. Wolff to be on a brief furlough. He belonged to Company C until the Tank Reserve sailed for France, when he was transferred to Raleigh, N. C., as an instructor.

Dr. Major Wants Names Of Boys in Service

Dr. Harold Major, pastor of the First Baptist church, desires to secure the names of all boys in the service of his church and congregation who are fighting in the cause of liberty. It is his purpose to write to each one a personal letter in behalf of the church. Any information regarding these boys should be sent to the church secretary, P. J. Johnston, in the church office, which is open daily from 8:30 a. m. to 12:30 p. m. and from 1:30 to 5 p. m. except Sunday afternoons.

BOOK CLUB POSTPONED

The North Chattanooga Book club announced to meet Wednesday with Mrs. W. H. Sears has been postponed indefinitely on account of the influenza situation in the suburbs. Mrs. Sears' two children are now victims of the epidemic.

Call for Flowers for Soldiers' Funerals

The Memorial committee of the Women's Service league makes an appeal for flowers. At this time of year there is a quantity of golden glow, cosmos, scarlet sage, and fall roses in bloom, and these flowers, picked from home gardens in the suburbs and city would be so gratefully received by this committee. People having flowers to donate are directed by the committee to leave them at Chapman's Undertaking establishment in the forenoon.

ELECT WESLEY CLASS OFFICERS.

The following officers of the Wesley Bible class of the Centenary Methodist church have been elected for the ensuing year: Mrs. Bruce C. Colby, president; Mrs. C. L. Hall, vice-president; Mrs. Price Jacoway, treasurer; Miss Acehelle Murphy, recording secretary; Miss Grace Crutchfield, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Paul Jones and Miss Nettie Eyster, teachers.

IT DOESN'T PROHIBIT. Said Robin Hood with pathos to John Baylecorn, his friend, "These poor fanatic folks are bound to read in every paper of the breaking of their laws. Where circumstances liberties has given people cause."

"That's what I say," the burglar cried, "near the bar he stood. 'Why are they always making laws that don't do any good? I still can't find and plunder any house I can't to it and plunder any house I can't to it. And if I treat the Force just right, they wink the other eye.'

"How true that is," the trembling dope floundered himself to plead. "What profits it to meddle with a man's most urgent need? I get my drug in roundabout and inconvenient ways. They cannot stop the sale—and, oh, the price a fellow pays."

The man with knucks and slungshot he grinned an evil grin. "There's cases, let me tell you, where murder is no sin. A scoundrel may be killing, air, he always does get killed. No matter how the statute books with laws are piled up, a fellow will get his 'That's just my case' broke in the tearful voice of Kaiser Bill. 'I've all along been telling them to let Why, Belgium violate today might sing and dance. If that's not let me march across it into France!'" —EMMA BELL MILES.

Steward, recording secretary; Mrs. Foster McFarland, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Fred Fox, treasurer; Mrs. Henry Engar, auditor; Mrs. M. N. Whitaker, state federation secretary; Miss Bessie Oehmig, historian; Mrs. J. G. Richardson, honorary president.

Besides the regular active membership enrolled there are about one dozen honorary members mentioned. The club's interests include educational propaganda, conservation of natural resources, civic and war work generally.

THEDA PUTS ONE OVER ON ANNETTE KELLERMAN

Barer Indeed! Cleopatra Most Gorgeous Spectacle of Filmdom.

Theda Bara has fulfilled her mission. She couldn't possibly do more and get by with it, even where censorship is tempered with wartime mercy. Annette Kellerman's beauty and grace, to see her voluptuous rival gleam through the gaudy intricacies of "Cleopatra," for Annette at least had her hair.

William Fox must also be gratified. He has long sought justification to show his star—just as she is without one plea, in vain, he directed this picture. More serene than "Egypt," Queen of the Nile, keystone of the vamps of ages, she who placed the sign in stent.

What if there is a kingdom in the glory of a Caesar, the triumph of Mark Antony, if all the ears in the universe were lent him, were he granted a great one eye. Who blames the poor Pharon, the fake astrologer, ambitious to restore his line of kings, for though beauty unarned by adornment, in spots, as Cleo, must of a truth be beyond stabling.

Particularly the photoplay production of Cleopatra sets a new precedent. Next to "The Birth of a Nation" it may be well said to rank first among pictures in the line of filmdom. "Intolerance," "The Daughter of the Gods," all other spectacular attempts are excelled by this lavish elegance and reason. The scene on the Nile, the palace, the fighting, and above all, the costuming of the star could not have been paralleled during the reign of the mighty Ramses. The heart, it of course, does not carry the best punch of "The Birth of a Nation." Its appeal is different. It comes from a spectacular standpoint. William Fox has placed one across. The costuming which decorates the rather bulky structure of Miss Bara was gorgeous almost beyond belief. It is unfortunate, however, that Theda's conception of this tempting Venus is merely to squirm. She is salacious almost to a point of repugnance. Every one expects the vampire queen to be sensuous, but then there are temptations and temptations. Critics, however, seem to lose themselves in their own enjoyment, for there have been no loud-voiced yelps of disapproval, and Theda still serpentine about in a grandeur that would make Croesus look like a piker. One wonders why she should have ever been dragged through the streets of Rome.

Throwing Bombs!

Our boys are showing remarkable proficiency in hurling hand grenades or bombs. From earliest infancy our boys learn well to "throw ball," and this stands them in good-hand in "throwing back" the Hun.

The explosion takes place quickly, scattering pain and destruction—just like an uric-acid explosion within the body. One day a man's all "O. K."—next morning when he tries to get out of bed—Oh, such pain! Pain in the back (lumbago) or hips, shoulders, arms, legs or feet (rheumatism or gout). This rheumatism is the result of an uric-acid explosion within, probably following excessive use of meat—or beer—or over-exertion and over-heating. Swollen hands, ankles and feet are due to a dropsical condition, often caused by disordered kidneys. Naturally when the kidneys are deranged the blood is filled with poisonous uric acid, which settles in the tissues of the feet, ankles, wrists or back as uric salts; or under the eyes in bag-like formations.

It is just as necessary to keep the kidneys acting properly as to keep the bowels active to rid the body of poisons. Uric-acid poisoning and rheumatic pains can be conquered and expelled by taking a little "Anuric." This is the recent discovery of Dr. Pierce, and can be had at all good drug stores. If you want a trial package, send 10 cents to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y.
